

J. M. UPTON

Independent Candidate for Circuit Judge, to Reside in Coos County.

To the Voters of Douglas, Lane, Benton and Lincoln Counties:

At an earlier period in the present campaign, many citizens of Coos County expressed a desire that I should become a candidate for the office of Circuit Judge. I deferred conclusion of the matter until a week ago, when I expressed a willingness to offer myself as a non-partisan candidate; dependent, however, upon an endorsement of such strength and character as would afford assurance to the voters of the other counties comprising this Judicial District that there is substantial local desire for my election. Within four days from the day of my declaration over seven hundred electors of all political faiths had signed my certificate of nomination.

With this endorsement, I submit my candidacy to the voters of Douglas, Lane, Benton and Lincoln Counties.

Assuming, as I think I may do, that the interest of these voters in the selection of a Judge to reside in Coos County is largely incidental, and that, in the absence of personal knowledge of candidates, only political affiliations would serve a majority of them as a guide to their choice for such official, I am hopeful that they may be pleased to give favorable consideration to the non-partisan choice of myself by the people of this, the most concerned, section of the district.

Marshfield, Oregon, October 5, 1910.

J. M. UPTON

Following is a list of about 500 endorsers, whose names appear on Mr. Upton's Certificate of Nomination, as forwarded to the Clerks of the several Counties for filing. Over 250 other names came in after the Certificate was prepared for mailing.

WILL R. KING, JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT.

Candidate for Re-election, Six Year Term, Whose Place is Sought by George H. Burnett, Assembly Nominee.

Four judges of the Oregon Supreme Court, two of them republicans and two of them democrats and all of them candidates for re-election, believe the supreme bench of the state should be removed from partisan influences. These four are Will R. King, Frank A. Moore, Woodson T. Slater and Thomas A. McBride. While Justice McBride and Moore are nominees of the republicans and Slater are the nominees of the democrats, all four of them are nominees of the non-partisan judiciary, which seeks to take the supreme court out of politics and has selected these four incumbents, because they are already non-partisan, as the four best suited to establish the precedent that the supreme court judges of Oregon shall have no party debts to pay and no political influences to fight against.

Justice Will R. King, whose cut appears above, has been on the supreme bench nearly four years. Some of the knottiest opinions rendered by the supreme court during that time have been written by him. His celebrated opinion, for example, in the Irrigation case of Hough vs Porter is regarded as authority in irrigation law and is used as a textbook in big Eastern Law Schools. It required three months to examine the law and the evidence and write this one opinion, and for one unfamiliar with that subject much more time would have been required. Yet the total number of opinions turned out by him is equal to the number credited to any Oregon judge in many years, the false reports of the Oregonian to the contrary notwithstanding. Other opinions of note by Judge King, which have commanded the admiration of the people and the bar alike, are Straw vs Harris (54 Or. 424) upholding and clarifying the initiative and referendum system of law making and Longworth vs State (104 Pac. 424), sustaining the constitutionality of the local option law.

Judge King's place is sought by George H. Burnett, nominee of the republican assembly and consequently a believer in political methods as a means of choosing the men who are to have the last say administering the law. Judges King, Slater, Moore and McBride not only have the work before the supreme court well in hand and the organization of the supreme court well perfected, but believe in these principles:

"The supreme court is the last place that should be used for the purpose of party rewards."

"Political influences only impair the dignity, purity and independence of the court."

"Jury lists are chosen without regard to party; there is no more reason for inquiring into the politics of a judge than into a juror's."

The argument for a non-political judiciary is an appeal to patriotism. There is no good reason why good judges should be put off the bench on account of politics and other judges put on the bench in their stead on account of politics. If you believe in non-partisanship in the supreme court you are respectfully invited to vote for these four present judges.

C. P. McHenry, of Portland, arrived in Roseburg last evening, to spend a few days in this locality looking over the field with a view of engaging in business. Mr. McHenry has been employed in one of the large novelty stores at the metropolis for several years and is desirous of engaging in business for himself. He is much pleased with Roseburg, and in the event he is impressed with the business conditions, he may decide to locate here permanently.

The Catholic fair, given under the auspices of the ladies of the Roseburg Catholic church in the Matthee's building, on Cass street, last Saturday, proved a grand success, both financially and socially. The beautiful hand painted picture was won by Henry Denn, while the cut glass bowl went to Mrs. T. R. Sheridan. Many useful articles were sold during the day, and the success of the occasion far surpassed the expectations of the ladies who are famous for their entertaining ability.
