

SPELL THIS OUT

DEEDS count. Claiming to be able to perform a task is different from doing the job itself.

That is why we are called by those who know us best the Quality Store.

When we started in the drug business years ago, we drilled into the corner stone of our business structure and put in a quality resolve.

Then we sealed the hole. It's there yet.

Quality

RIGHT be e we want to say what the quality foundation has made ours a strong store.

We could not build on such a rock and be anything else but strong.

And the longer we have been in business the stronger we have grown.

We are full strength.

Our drugs are full strength.

The strength of this will be made plainer to you if you purchase your drugs of us.

Your desire for more will be strong.

Strength

URGENT means are taken to guarantee purity in all our drugs. We demand purity when we buy, and then we make sure we get what we order; we examine carefully the drugs after we get them.

If an article is found impure we send it back. We don't allow it to stay in the store.

If you have a prescription filled here your doctor knows—and you ought to know—that it is compounded of absolutely pure drugs and the doctor's order followed to the letter.

Purity

GOOD, honest, reliable drug selling is what we stand for. When we say a drug is pure, full strength, the acme of drug quality, you can depend upon it. It's reliable.

Not only is this true of drugs but of every other article we sell. It may be a comb, hair brush, bath requisite, tooth preparation, or any one of the many delights of our toilet woods department, yet we stand back of every article, ready to refund your money, if you are not entirely satisfied. Our guarantee means absolute protection to you.

Reliability

SEEMLY with quality, strength, purity and reliability is accuracy. Freedom from mistake—a fixed result always.

You can have a hundred prescriptions filled here and they will each of them be absolutely correct, or you can have the same prescription filled here a hundred times and always get the same result. A right way of doing things.

A proper way of showing you respect.

Accuracy permeates our whole store.

walk it would have to be rebuilt." Horace Marsters, who was present at the meeting in behalf of the members of the Methodist church, then asked permission to speak briefly, and such courtesy was extended by the mayor.

He spoke in substance as follows: "The members of the Methodist church are in your hands, gentlemen, but nevertheless we hope and expect that we will be treated fairly and impartially in this matter. You are supposed to be a progressive set of people, (referring to the councilmen) but I am inclined to believe that you can see the faults of the church more readily than those of the city. At the time we were instructed to build a cement walk abutting our property on Main street, we deemed it expedient and wise to complete the work of building sidewalks for all time, and consequently we decided to also build a similar walk on Lane street. We had sufficient funds at the time, and consequently we went ahead and the work was completed at a great expense. Now, I think it is unfair for you, as members of the city council, to compel us to discard a practically new sidewalk and build a new one at an expense which we can ill afford.

"We were assured by the city engineer, or a committee, at the time the walk was constructed, that in the event it wasn't right, the city would make it right. I am not positive, but it seems to me that a committee appointed by the council informed us at the time that the grade was correct."

Councilman Josephson then spoke as follows: "I have been a member of this council for about three years, and during that time I have made it a point to keep well in touch with what has been going on. I have no recollection, whatever, of any committee being appointed to meet the church people, and I am positive that I was never a member of such body in the event it existed.

"I was present, however, at the time of a conversation between the pastor of the church and the street committee, and remember distinctly that we offered to modify the grade in the event construction was delayed for a few days."

Councilman Micelli, chairman of the street committee, then charged Mr. Marsters of being unfair in his argument, and intimated that he (Marsters) had attempted to mislead the assembly in attempting to make it appear that he (Micelli) was endeavoring to work a hardship upon the church, and at the same time neglecting other equally as damaging defects. "We begged them not to build their walk on the so-called grade at the time," said Micelli, "and offered to modify it in the event they delayed work."

Mr. Marsters then replied to Micelli in stating that he did not wish to be unfair, but on the contrary had attended the meeting as a representative of the Methodist church in hope of receiving just treatment and a fair deal. "Of course," said Mr. Marsters, "if the shoe fits, put it on, I don't care."

Contractor F. F. Patterson, who was employed to build the walk, was then called upon to enlighten the assembly. Mr. Patterson could not remember what transpired at the time the walk was built further than the alleged fact that the grade was given him by some person purporting to be the city engineer.

Mr. Marsters then asked permission to speak briefly and such request was granted.

He said that he believed the city engineer tendered the church committee an agreement in writing at the time the walk was constructed, the same being to the effect that in the event the grade was defective the city would rebuild it without cost to the original builders. Mr. Marsters said that he thought that J. H. Booth was present at the time the agreement was tendered and that such gentleman would bear him out in his statement.

Realizing the necessity of delaying definite action on the report of the committee, Councilman Booth advanced a motion to the effect that the report be referred to the city attorney for the purpose of investigating the records in hope of ascertaining whether or not the city is under any obligation to the church people, or at least, to determine whether there is any record to show that the alleged written agreement had been tendered the members of the church as contended.

According to Councilman Booth's motion, it would seem that he considered it expedient to ascertain whether the city engineer, who is alleged to have given the grade was acting in an advisory or authoritative capacity.

Councilman Micelli declared that he was only too glad to delay action on the report—and was of the opinion that the investigation would reveal facts to substantiate the contentions of the committee.

TAX LAW EXPERIMENT.

Framers of Measure Say Will Not Be Effective Until 1912.

PORTLAND, Nov. 22.—Probably intended as the entering wedge for the application of the land tax theory of raising revenues for the support of municipal, state and county governments, the amendment to Article XI of the Oregon constitution, known as Section 1a, will not become effective until 1912. It is too late for the Grange, the Oregon State Federation of Labor and the Portland Labor Council to enact initiative legislation changing the present method of taxation. Members of the People's Power League, who aided in drawing the amendment, yesterday conceded that counties cannot place the amendment in effect until taxation laws shall be adopted under the initiative by the people of each county in 1911, and to become effective in 1912.

Ben Solling, Colonel C. E. S. Wood, W. S. U'Ren, Will Daly, H. J. Parkison and other friends of the amendment, characterize it as an experiment and hope to demonstrate its practicability in Multnomah county. Other counties may drop into line along the same lines of demonstration if the voters see fit, but it is the plan of the promoters of the "management of your own pocketbook idea" to experiment in a few counties until the plan is worked out.

The new amendment deprives the legislature of making a law which shall declare what property may be assessed in the state. That power is now vested in the people of each county. The legislature may cause the state to certify the number of mills which shall be levied for the support of the state government, but at that point its control ceases.

County commissioners may decide how much revenue is needed to run the county for which they are acting, but they must collect the tax in such manner as may be devised by the voters of a county. Briefly, the new amendment repeals the poll, or head tax, on citizens. No scheme regulating taxation or exemptions throughout the state can become a law until approved by the people.

The restrictions of the constitution are removed as to prohibiting a county from collecting taxes in any manner it may see fit. It removes from the supreme court the right to say that the people have not the right to tax or to exempt any class of property.

The new tax law is said to have been originated by the State Grange, and after the idea was whipped into shape at a meeting of the representative members of the People's Power League it was adopted by labor organizations.

"It is probable that the amendment will result in a land tax, and an effort to make land monopolists bear the large burden of expense of government," said an advocate and sponsor for the bill yesterday. "I had little to do with framing the amendment, but, knowing the temper of those who were behind it, I believe that to be true."

"Friends of the amendment hope that in the months which will intervene before the people of Multnomah county are called upon to vote on an initiative bill changing the method of taxation, they may become familiar with the idea that only a redistribution of the burden is intended. We hope that owners of machinery and surface improvements may come to understand that they are bearing an unjust proportion of the cost of government, and that they will aid in trying the change in the largest assessable county in the state."

The Yeomen will give a Thanksgiving dinner at the Eagles' hall tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, and are preparing to entertain their friends in a royal manner. The public is invited to come and enjoy the good things that have been prepared. Don't forget the time—Wednesday at 8 P. M.
