Wall Paper

Some of the most artistic effects in wall paper are simple in character and moderate in price.

The accompanying illustration is an example of one of the many new ideas in "Home Decoration" for 1911.

The fact that we are making a special feature of Alfred Peck's "Price" Wall Paper is sufficient assurance that the styles are the latest and quality the best.

EDENBOWER ETCHINGS.
News Gatherings at That Prosperous and Growing Neighborhood.

A little child of Mr. Rutherford, former proprietor of the Union Tea Store, fell Tuesday from the upper floor of a porch to the residence to the ground below, a distance of 11½ feet and narrowly escaped serious injury. As it was the little one was badly bruised, and it was feared it might die. Dr. Housack was called and at last accounts the little sufferer was resting comfortably.

Edenbower appears to be entering upon a building boom. Mrs. McCoy has just completed adding as much more to her residence and Mr. McKinley is finishing a 2-room bungalow, a neat affair. Mr. Aldrich is preparing to erect two new buildings, four new buildings have about reached completion in the southern part of town and three more are being built in the north. The planing mill is also being run regularly, preparing lumber for several buildings contemplated by citizens who have the money to build and ample faith in this section's future.

Fourteen days ago the buildings at the poor farm and the contents of the one occupied by Superintendent Finley, were totally destroyed by fire. During the fourteen days in question a residence 28x25 has been erected, a home for the indigent has been built, and yesterday evening the indigents were moved into their new quarters. There are eight inmates of the home. During the last two months one has died from inoperable burns, three have been turned off cured and capable of making their livelihood and the general health of the remainder is as good as could be expected. One of the inmates has been at the poor farm twenty-four years. The present home is larger, more comfortable and is in every way better than all the others have been, according to general statements made by reliable parties. The superintendent, and his deservingly commendable tireless energy they exerted in bringing order out of chaos when confronted as they were under such disheartening circumstances.

Merchant Butcher has caused a neat flagpole to be raised over his store, and on the morning of the 14th will throw to the breeze Edenbower's first permanent American flag with appropriate ceremonies.

The hay, grain and berry crops have been unusually large this season and those growing corn and garden truck will reap a profit from their labors. The small acreage proposition is a decided success in this neighborhood, and this success will be more marked when the railroad give Edenbower a siding and the citizens build canneries to take care of and prepare the products of their incomparable crop for market.

It would seem that those who have care of the Masonic cemetery would see to it that there was a proper caretaker, employed constantly there to keep the cemetery in first-class shape—keep the graves in repair, mow the grass, trim the shrubbery and trim the flowers. Nature has made the cemetery naturally a beautiful spot, and with the right man to see it cared for it could be made "the most beautiful home of the dead in Southern Oregon."

The number of tramp wagons on the roads at the present time is very large. By actual count fifty such wagons have passed north and south during the past three days. One in particular contained nine people, two men and six women and children. They don't seem anxious about anything or anybody, but simply affected with a wander lust.

Petty thieves are pestering the community. A large tent, two sets of harness and minor other articles are reported missing by several citizens, who attribute the thefts to a gang of rascals who have been hanging about for some time past and lately suddenly took their departure.

JOINING THE ARMY
Opportunities That Are Open to the Enlisted Man.
HIS PAY AND HIS PROSPECTS.

Even as a Private He Can Run His Salary Up to $35 a Month, and as a "Noncom" He Can Double That and in Time Retire Rich and Pensioned.

There are many opportunities open to the man who enlists in the United States army and wears the uniform of Uncle Sam with honor to himself and his country. The pay is good, the advancement is numerous. It is up to the individual man himself to make good and to take advantage of the situation.

Writing in the Columbian Magazine on army affairs, Edward Marshall in discussing the status of the enlisted man says:

Summarized, this is what a man who thinks of marching for his Uncle Sam as an enlisted man has to consider:

On first enlistment the soldier for Old Glory nowadays gets $15 a month, far better pay, for instance, than the average clerk's, for board, lodging and clothing are furnished by the government. If he qualifies as a marksman he gets $2 to his pay; if as a sharpshooter he gets $3 in addition; if as an expert rifleman a full third more. Thus he may at once get $20 monthly cash and found if he is able and keeps busy.

If he enlists as a musician he gets $21 monthly to start off with, the highest "rookie's" pay. In the signal corps, the hospital corps and the engineers' corps first class privates get $15 monthly, and second class privates get $15.

Upon enlistment every man is allowed $83.70 for his uniforms, etc., and afterward $13.54 twice annually. At least one-half the men save money on their clothing allowance, which is more than ample. Privates' pay increases $1 a month for each three year enlistment. An expert rifleman who never gets to be a petty officer, therefore, can run his pay up, with good conduct and intelligence, to $35 a month and all his necessaries "found" in five enlistments covering fifteen years.

Noncommissioned officers are taken from the ranks on recommendation of their company or troop commanders and are often given their posts upon their first enlistments. These men are really well paid. A sergeant major is allotted to each regiment. He receives $45 monthly when he is appointed and $4 additional per month each time he re-enlists. Regimental commissary sergeants, regimental quartermaster's sergeants and the three battalion sergeants in each regiment get the same high pay. Each company has a first sergeant at $45, with an increase of $4 upon re-enlistment; a second sergeant at $30, with $3 increase for each re-enlistment; a corporal at $18, with $3 each for re-enlistments. The government acts as banker for the soldiers, too, if they desire to have it, and noncommissioned officers have left the service with as much as $30,000 saved—not one cent but money. If he sticks tight to the service for full thirty years a noncommissioned officer is entitled to retirement on pay ranging from one-half to three-quarters of his service pay. Seventy dollars monthly is not unusual pay for a "noncom" to retire on. And every year of service seen outside the United States counts as two years at a home post. A man, therefore, after fifteen years of service in the islands may retire on his half pay.

The food the "noncoms" and the other enlisted men are given is wholesome and well cooked, the medical attendance free and able, post and garrison schools have been provided at all posts for the primary branches, and at several posts trade schools have been established. A worthy man, no matter where he may be stationed, is almost certain to get transferred to a "school post" if he asks for it. Cooking, baking, blacksmithing, veterinary surgery, electrical and stationary engineering, all are taught at these trade schools, as well as many other things. Thus a boy who has had little chance to get an education may, after he has joined the army, get a very good one.

There seems to be but one thing which army life does not offer to the enlisted man. But that one thing is home.

In its degree indeed the life of the enlisted man now offers more inducements than the life of the West Pointer. The commissioned officer's pay is small when his expenses and the effort he must make to get noncommissioned at all are considered. And, furthermore, the noncommissioned officer is not so subject to political influences as the West Pointer, who gives him his commands.

Oysters as Rat Traps.
Catching rats with oyster shells is the unique method employed by some purveyors round about Broome, Western Australia. They leave a large oyster on the floor of the cabin at night. It opens for a breath of fresh air, and the smell of fresh meat attracts the rats. When the rodent thinks he'll try a little supper, the oyster suddenly decides that he doesn't like fresh air. Next morning the shell is piled open and the dead rat thrown overboard.
