

IN THE NAME OF JUSTICE.

EDENBOWER, Or., July 2.—(Editor News)—Permit me, in the name of justice and in the interest of truth, to make a statement on my own behalf in the columns of the Evening News. With the evident intent to do me malicious injury certain parties have made statements to the effect that the indigent poor of Douglas county, prior to the late fire, which almost extinguished everything from existence but the indigents themselves, were crowded up in a sleeping room without a window a foot square, and it was therefore dangerously unsanitary and diseasing. The party who made this statement was never in the former home of the county poor, and in an event maliciously and intentionally lied. The truth is the old home was thoroughly ventilated by three windows and two doors.

Another untrue statement was that "Grandpa" Moore, one of the inmates of the home, was compelled to sleep out doors in the cold nights after the fire without food, and suffered severely therefrom. Mr. Moore did not sleep out of doors the night of the fire or any other night since I have supervision of the home. This is another intentional and malicious lie manufactured from whole cloth with the hope of injuring myself and family. The truth of the matter is that within two and a half hours after the fire every inmate's bed had been put up in the Son residence, which had been previously cleaned up and prepared for their reception, the bed ridden comfortably put to bed and all made ready for their supper which I had, in the meantime, hurried to town to procure the material for. Permit me to say here most emphatically, not one has slept out of doors, or compelled to go without their meals that would get up and wash themselves for them and be the circulator of the whole story man or preacher, he or they willfully lied when they told it, and gave vent to the spite their petty souls bore me.

BUYING A VASE.

Wertheimer's Clever Coup by Which He Secured the Prize. The late Charles Wertheimer when asked on one occasion what he considered to be his greatest business coup thought for awhile and then told how once when he was walking through a Brighton square he espied through an open window what he knew to be a priceless Chinese vase. He went to the nearest postoffice, examined a town directory and found the name of the resident. Then he called and asked for the gentleman and was shown into the study under the name of "Hamilton." He briefly explained that he was looking for a modest house in Brighton and had taken a fancy to this one. Would the gentleman entertain an offer for the vase as it stood—"flowers, stock and barrel?" The offer, a little amplified, interested Hamilton. "I will give you an extra thousand." "Call tomorrow at 10:30, then," replied the owner. Hamilton did and found him prepared to accept $18,000 for the twenty years' unexpired term and the contents of the residence. Although this was well over market value, Hamilton at once closed, adding the extra thousand, according to promise. As, however, he afterward sold the vase for $25,000, his coup was unmistakable.—London Telegraph.

WHISTLER THE FIGHTER. The Artist Always Took His Revenge in a Refined Way. In "Whistler as I Knew Him" Mortimer Menpes, the author, has a good deal to say about Whistler the fighter and his quickness in resenting an affront. He is careful to add that Whistler was always refined in his methods.

Slavery in Old Greece. The Greeks were slave owners with a vengeance. All manual work was done by "barbarians," as the Greeks called those who had been captured in war. The greatest of the Greeks saw as well in the institution. Aristotle is quite mistaken in his justification of slavery. A certain amount of manual work had to be done, he claimed, and "mean natured men" were intended to do it. The slaves in some of the Greek states outnumbered the freemen four or five to one. Manual labor came in Greece to be thought a degradation, suited only for beings who could not do the higher work. Even freemen who worked for wages were by Aristotle placed outside the constitution. And what was true of the Greeks was equally true of most of the other ancient nations.—Exchange.

A Kicking Deferred. Aunt Clara to her young nephew, who has just brought a bucket into the parlor where she is sitting—Good gracious, Tommy! What are you doing with that bucket? Take it down to the kitchen at once. Tommy—I want you to kick it. Aunt Clara, cause I kicked papa saying when you kick the bucket you'd get at the very least $25,000.

His Objection. Mrs. Rhoback to John I want you to buy a new parlor suit. Mr. Rhoback—Maria, I've been agreeable enough so far to get different clothes for morning, noon, afternoon and night, but I'm constrained if I'll change em every time I go into a different room.—Brooklyn Life
