According to the story told by persons who arrived here from Glider-in-law, Edward Lasina, were enroute to the headwaters of Honey creek to enjoy a few days hunting when the accident occurred. They had reached a point about eight miles north of Glide, from which place they expected to pack their camping outfit, and were in the act of unloading their paraphernalia from the wagon when the rifle—of the 32-calibre variety—suddenly discharged, Lasina, who was standing near the front of the wagon was startled to hear the report of the gun, and upon hastoning to his brother-in-law's assistance, found him standing against the rear of the wagon hox, apparently suffering intense pain. Although realizing that Martini was seriously injured, Lasina was of the opinion that his life could be saved in the event medical assistance was summoned. Consequently, he hastened to a nearby telephone and notified Dr. E. V. Hoover, of Roseburg, who left for Gilde shortly after 6 o'clock last evening. After sending the message Lasina returned to the scene of the accident, and upon brief investigation, was astonished to find that his brother-in-law was dead.

Although there were no eye witnesses to the tragedy, it is presumed that Martini had attempted to pull the gun from the rear of the wagon,

The defense asked for decisions relative to the challenges of Winters and Hampton, both of whom declared they believed McNamara guilty of the crime charged. While the attorneys for the defense are cheerful, it can be plainly seen they are worried. During the first few days the defendant's attorneys entertained little doubt but what McNamara would be acquitted without prolonged deliberation upon the part of the jury. As the days have passed, however, there has been a change in the attitude of Attorney Darrow and his assistants. LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—The most important point in today's proceedings of the McNamara trial was the decision of Judge Bordwell, who overruled the challenges of the defends relative to the qualifications of Whiters and Butcher, who admitted prelidite against unions. A venireman giving his name as Frampton said he believed McNamar was guilty. In connection with Attorney Darrow's argument following Frampton's admissions, Judge Bordwell rulled that the defense would not be allowed to further question men subject to peremptory challenge. As a result of today's decisions the defense is considering the proposition of asking for a change of judges.

After Attorney Horton had challenged Venireman Lee, who was passed by the defense has night, Judge Bordwell excussed him on the grounds that he was bais and could not display importiality.

The deceased was born in Chester-field, New Hampshire, on December 31, 1821, where he lived until he was fourteen years of age, when he moved to Swanzey, a few miles from his former home. His common school education was complemented by an ducation was supplemented by an advanced course in the Academy and the remained on the farm until he was 22 years of age. Shortly after-ward he went to Boston for a short ward he went to Boston for a short time where he worked in a general merchandise store. The next three years he was engaged in the mercantile business at Waro, Mass, afterwhich he again went to Boston, remaining one year. While there he made up his mind to go to California, and he and twenty-four others chartered a one hundred and twenty-sight ton schooner and fitted it out to take them to the Isthmus.

The Journey was anything but pleasant, and it was not until July 1, 1819, that the party landed in San Francisco. Practically without funds the party wandered from San Francisco to Sacramento and finally rancisco to Sacramento and finally reacher Sutter's Fort, where they secured employment in the harfields. After assembling about $300. Mr. Stearns and a companion purchased a four-horse team and began teaming from Sacramento to the mines, receiving 25 cents per pound for transporting provisions and supplies. The following smmmer Mr. Stearns opened a miners' store at Trinity, and still continued the pack train during the summer. The next winter he kept a store at Sonora and in the spring went to Trinidad, and later to Samon River, where he sold goods and ran a pack train until the fall of 1851. He next opened a store at Yreka, Cal., which he conducted until May, 1852 when he sold out to advantage and returned to New Hampshire, owing to the filness rancisco to Sacramento and finally w Hampshire, owing to the fline

New Hampshire, owing to the Hiness of his wife.

In September, 1853, Mr. Stearns returned to the West, having great faith in the development of the country. Opening a store in San Francisco, he carried on business there until the next spring, when he sold out and came to Scottsburg, Oro. As a partner in the firm of Brown, Dunn & Co., he conducted a general store at Scottsburg until August, 1854, when, selling out, he started a store at Jacksonville, and did a successful business there for two years. During the winter of 1855-56 his store was destroyed by fire his loss amounting to considerable, and he returned to Scottsburg, and contracted to run a pack train for the government troops and serving as assistant commissary during the Rogue River war.

In the year 1857 Mr. Stearns purchased from Dr. Wells a donation claim of 600 acres on the Umpquariver and engaged in farming and stockraising until 1859, Leaving the ranch be bought a hotel in Roseburg, where the McClallen house now stands, and also creeted a livery and feed barn. ## Setting The Pace

HAT is our maxim in business. We argue that by giving our customers the best value for their money, the best styles, the best workmanship and the lowest prices, we ensure their patronage in future seasons. It has always come out that way in the past, and it will certainly do so this season, for our models are the best we have ever offered, and those who have already inspected our goods proclaim them to be remarkable values. You will find a few minutes well spent in looking over the new styles we have to offer you. Our customers' only difficulty is to make a selection from such a pleasing array.
