Entered as second-class matter
November 5, 1910, at Roseburg, Ore., under act of March 3, 1879.
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1911.

That Seattle woman who horn-whipped a judge must believe that a horse-whip is more effective than the recall.

Direct Legislation, the recall and woman suffrage, have already "put a damper on business activities in the Golden state," says a voracious sojourner from that region. He doesn't specify, but it is easy to understand that any effective method of giving voice to public opinion might put a damper on some kinds of "business activities"—the "white slave" traffic, for instance.

There was a time when if a man pleaded that he was intoxicated when he committed a crime he was usually acquitted or escaped with a nominal sentence. It is getting to be different now. For a man to show that he was drunk is no longer accepted as a palliation, rather it is regarded as an aggravation of the offense. All of which goes to show a saner view of justice.

The business man who does not advertise might almost as well put his goods in a basement as on the shelves of his store. He does not realize the truth of the statement made by Lord Mansfield years ago when steam was the great motive power, that, "Advertising is to business what steam is to machinery." He would soon know the truth of it to his great financial gain if he would but test it. This is what the progressive business man does with consequent prosperity to himself and of gain to the public.

Roseburg solicits the appointment of a man for chief-of-police who can take the office and be free to the dictation of his own conscience. A man who will wade into some of the hell holes of Roseburg and throw the harpoon into those who make it possible for the various places of vice to exist. To do this he has only to enforce the laws as already written. A good clean-up would do the old town some good and this is what will be expected of the person who assumes the office of chief-of-police of Roseburg.

It's too bad the grand jury doesn't meet during the summer months for the benefit of many who prefer a vacation during grand jury days.

When your watch is out of repair you take it to a competent workman, and he goes over the works and carefully cleans and regulates them. The result is a perfect timepiece. The same is true of your piano. In order to get the best possible results from this most perfect and delicate of musical instruments, it should be regularly gone over by one who is thoroughly competent to put it in the most satisfactory condition. It should be perfectly tuned and voiced, and the action carefully regulated when necessary. Your piano will then be a household joy. Let H. Jay Stone put it in condition for you. Phone 288-R. dtf
