

"NEAR" BEER THE SLOGAN.

listen to these men whose very acts have branded them violators of the law. If this ordinance will do what it is intended to do, it will have a tendency to rid the town of these persons who persist in violating the local option laws. I intend to support the ordinance."

Sether In Doubt.

Councilman Sether was also one of the councilmen who yielded to the threats of the "near" beer artists. Through his admission, he gave the council to understand that he was misled, and was afraid that the "interests" would carry their nefarious threats into execution, and thus render the acts of the council illegal. In such an event he contended that a law-suit would follow, and that the city's credit would be placed in a questionable light. "In the event you can assure me that these men will not carry their threats into execution I will vote for the ordinance," said Sether, "otherwise I will have to vote against its adoption."

It was Councilman Sether's contention that the license of these resorts should be placed at such a figure as to prohibit them from operating. In this way he thought conditions could be improved. Other than a high license Councilman Sether advocated the insertion of a clause whereby the council could revoke the license when they found that the persons to whom licenses were granted were carrying on an illicit traffic.

Town Will Go Wet.

According to the remarks of Councilman Fullerton, Roseburg will go "wet" at the next election by a vote of at least two to one. "I have examined the ordinance in question," said Councilman Fullerton, "and after due consideration I find that I am unable to give it support. We have the local option law—county and state—and it is up to the county officers to make good. Under this ordinance I find that the city is given the right to prosecute persons who sell liquor illegally. From this source we might get some fines, but suppose that our prosecutions were not successful. Then we would naturally be forced to pay the costs. I do not think the city should saddle onto itself prosecutions of this nature."

In further conversation, Councilman Fullerton said he had visited a number of "dry" towns throughout the state of late, and had noticed that conditions were about the same as in Roseburg.

Without further argument or discussion the ordinance was placed to a vote and was lost by a vote of 7 to 4. Councilman Chapman, also favored the ordinance, was unavoidably detained from the meeting.

Resolution Is Adopted.

In supplementing the "near" beer ordinance submitted by Councilman George E. Houck, with a resolution giving to the city council the right to reject the license of those persons convicted of selling intoxicating liquors, the public received another "lemon" which might well be considered a joke. The resolution was submitted by Councilman Fullerton, and it is the belief of The News that he acted sincerely, but without due consideration of the conditions. "For instance, suppose that the license of one of the present 'near' beer dispensers was rejected for some cause or another. With the necessary weapons at hand, it would be a very easy matter for this person to commence a factitious sale with the result that another license would probably be granted to the pretended purchaser. This fellow might be a bartender, or even a bootblack—just so he was connected with the resort affected. While the resolution was adopted last evening, it does not appear to meet the approval of many of the councilmen, who at the time of its introduction, were unable to detect its weak points.

In speaking of the resolution following last evening's meeting of the council one of the influential councilmen said: "With all due courtesy to Mr. Fullerton, and believing that he acted sincerely, I do not think the provisions of the resolution are in harmony with the desires of the citizens, nor do I think that its enforcement will amount to naught. It is an easy matter for one of these fellows to 'sell out', and at the same time maintain a controlling interest in his establishment. Such games are time-worn, and are bewhiskered with old age. I think the best thing we can do is to re-consider this resolution and vote it down."

JAMES GETS LIFE TERM.

had entered plea of guilty, and thereby saved the county of Los Angeles and the state of California thousands of dollars. The district attorney also declared that the ends of justice had been satisfied through the confessions of the two brothers. He said that under the present conditions, especially in view of the frequent attempts to bribe members of the jury, a conviction of the men might have been difficult. He said, however, that they were guilty, and as men, had acknowledged their crimes.

District Attorney Fredericks also called attention to the fact that the McNamaras might be needed in future prosecutions, and for that reason, he believed it would be well to send them to the penitentiary. In conclusion he asked that his recommendations be carried out by the court.

Men Are Searched.

Every man entering Judge Bordwell's court this morning was searched by Detective Browne and a picked force of men. He said he had received information to the effect that an attempt might be made to shoot the McNamaras while being sentenced. The McNamaras slept well last night, and although extremely nervous before being taken to the court house, said they were willing to take their medicine. They said if they received prison sentences they would both work for a parole for which they would become eligible in seven years.

Bargain Is Kept.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 5.—"The bargain was kept, the promise made by counsel for the McNamaras, and the big business men who wanted the cases disposed of prior to the municipal election were fulfilled by Judge Bordwell," according to statements of attorneys here today. With all bravado gone, the prisoners faced Judge Bordwell, apparently aware of their fate.

"You deserve being sent to the gallows," Judge Bordwell addressed James McNamara. "It was the recommendations of the district attorney that saves you from such a fate. James almost collapsed as he sat down. John stood up with eyes sunken and displayed deep worry. Judge Bordwell said he was fully as guilty as his brother. The men were hurried back to jail at the conclusion of the sentence where they will remain awaiting their journey to San Quentin."

Following the passing of sentence Judge Bordwell said: "Some labor leaders who are denouncing the McNamaras are absolutely as guilty as they are and I know they are implicated in the dynamiting outrages. I know as much about them as does James McNamara himself. I know exactly who were implicated. The sentences pronounced by the judges were right."
