

A STRANGE FRYING PAN.

It Was a Heli of Royalty and Queerly Out of Place.

One day M. Sommerand, curator of the Cluny museum, went into a small restaurant in the suburb of St. Denis, a restaurant of the kind where the dining room and the kitchen are one and the same room. While waiting to be served his eye was caught by a frying pan of an unusual shape which was hanging on the wall.

He took it down, rubbed off some of the soot with which it was covered and made out part of an inscription. To the surprise of the hostess, he offered to buy the old pan, an offer she joyfully accepted, doubtless thinking her customer somewhat mad.

When the copperplate was properly cleaned it was found that it bore the arms of France and Navarre surrounded by the chain of St. Louis and the cord of the Order of the St. Spirit and the following inscription: "Here lies the magnificent prince, King Louis XIV., king of France and of Navarre. Requiescat in pace."

It was evidently the plate which had been attached to the coffin of Louis XIV., and when the vaults of the Bourbons at St. Denis were rifled by the populace in 1793 it had been carried off, fitted with a handle and turned into a frying pan. It is now in the Cluny museum. The handle has been removed, but the three holes remain showing where it was attached.—Rome Weekly Monitor.

Deer Are Great Swimmers.

If a boy were asked to name an animal that could swim a long way it is probable that he would think of almost anything before he named a deer. If you told city folk that deer have been known to swim clear across the sound, from Long Island to Connecticut, they would probably laugh at you, yet all the boatmen along the coast know this to be true. Deer will often take to the sea when they are closely pursued by the hounds, and they have been known to stay in the water swimming until the dogs got tired and went away or until night fell and sheltered them.—New York Sun.

Authors' Names.

Authors who manipulate their names to suit their fancies are not a small band. There is Thomas Henry Hall Calne. There were Gabriel Charles Dante Rossetti and Charles John Huffam Dickens. Only one book of reference gives the full name of Oscar Fingall O'Flaherty. Willis Wilde, some of whose poems first appeared over the initials O. F. O'F. W. W. Lewis Melville is really Louis Benjamin, and very few people are aware that the bearer of the distinguished name Sir Sidney Lee was originally Solomon Lazarus Levi.—London Spectator.

Unsuccessful.

"I made a mistake," said Plodding Pete. "I told that man up the road I needed a little help 'cause I was lookin' fur me family, from whom I had been separated for years."

"Didn't that make him come across?"

"He couldn't see it. He said that he didn't know my family, but he wasn't goin' to help in bringin' any such trouble on 'em."—Washington Star.

Sit For Your Holiday PHOTOS

Have your good photos of the different members of your family. If not, insist upon them visiting our studio for a sitting, as life is uncertain and you will never be younger than you are today. If you, as the head of the family, have never had a picture taken, don't delay coming, but start at once, as life is fleeting and future regrets would follow inaction. The young lady handsomely arrayed in her "best bib and tucker," shows her good sense in coming for one of our latest photos. Why don't you follow suit and get them before the holidays?
