

WHITSETT DEAD

Roseburg Man Kills Woman at Portland Yesterday.

LATER HE COMMITS SUICIDE

Claude Whitsett Resided in Roseburg For Many Years Prior to Moving to Grants Pass Where He Located.

LIVED IN ROSEBURG.

Claude Whitsett, the principal in the following article, is well known in Roseburg and Douglas county where he resided for a long time prior to four years ago when he left for Grants Pass. During his residence in this vicinity he resided with his parents, who owned a large farm on Roberts Creek. He lived at Grants Pass a year, and later went to Portland. A brother, John Whitsett, left for Portland last night to assume charge of the remaining other than the brother, the deceased is survived by two sisters, one of whom resides at Myrtle Creek and another at Leland, Ore.

PORTLAND, Or., Jan. 18.—

Because, it is said, she refused to give up her position in a laundry and again go back to live with him after having left him a year ago, Claude Whitsett, aged 30 years, a bartender, last night shot and killed Rose Orme, aged 35 years, and then shot himself in the temple, dying instantly. Miss Orme died within a few minutes after the shot was fired, and without telling how it happened. The tragedy took place in a rooming house at Second and Madison streets, shortly after 8:30 o'clock. Entering the room where the woman was sitting at a desk writing a letter to a friend, Whitsett leaned over her and fired downward, the bullet from a 32-calibre revolver striking the woman over the right breast and lodging in the heart. Then Whitsett stepped back and fired at his own temple. The bullet went wild, striking the wall above his head. Then he pulled the muzzle of the revolver to the level of his temple and shot again, the ball lodging in the temple and killing him at once.

Friend First at Scene.

Attracted by the shots, W. P. Morrison, an employee of an oil company, and a friend of both victims of the tragedy, ran to the room and found Miss Orme breathing her last. She was unable to speak to him. Morrison said last night that Whitsett lived with the woman after her former husband, Harvey C. Galbraith, of San Francisco, the two passing as man and wife, for some time and that afterwards the girl obtained a position in the Union Laundry on Second street and refused to live longer with the bartender. Two weeks ago, he said, Whitsett went to the lodging house and to the girl's room. With the assistance of the clerk of the place, Whitsett was thrown out and came back with a policeman, to whom he had reported that Miss Orme was his wife. When the patrolman found that Whitsett was not the girl's husband, he escorted Whitsett from the place and Whitsett did not return again until last night.

Miss Orme, who took her maiden name after her separation from her husband, who she had married in 1902, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Orme, of Grants Pass and Leland, Ore. In their custody is the 7-year-old child, Grace, who is the daughter of Galbraith. Her father is a partner in a place nine at Leland. Following her separation from Galbraith she lived at several places on the Pacific coast, earning her living as a waitress or as a laundry worker.

Whitsett, who is said by Morrison to have threatened the girl's life two weeks ago when turned out of the house, in the words, "I'll get in some time and I'll show you all about it," was a bartender in the Fargo saloon at 101 Sixth street and was a member of the Bartenders' Union. He had been in Portland for the past seven years.

A sister of the woman slain, Mrs. Cora Alderson, of Leland, Ore., was notified last night by the coroner.

NEED ECONOMY IN THE HOME.

Tendency Is To Live Beyond Means Today.

MEDFORD, Or., Jan. 18.—Tonight in addressing the annual convention of the Oregon Retail Merchants' Association in session here, Dr. James Withycombe, director of experiment stations at the Oregon Agricultural College, blamed the high cost of living upon the universal tendency to live beyond the family means, and to the abnormal high rents which dealers in produce must pay, forcing them to add 15 or 20 per cent to the initial cost of the goods. Dr. Withycombe spoke in part as follows:

"All manner of conditions are ascribed as being the chief factors in contributing to the abnormal cost of food. It is popular, in such discussions, to depict the merchant or dealer as the chief transgressor. The trouble is often due to the lack of proper economy in the home, an economy that is in keeping with the family income. There is a strong and almost universal tendency in the flood tide of prosperity to live beyond the family means. Frequently only the choicest and highest priced cuts of meat will suffice for the table. Delicacies are demanded which greatly swell the food budget. The telephone also must bear its portion of the blame for the high cost of living. This modern and indispensable instrument for facilitating business and promoting pleasure affords a ready means for ordering articles that otherwise would, perhaps, be left unpurchased.

"Living expenses should be kept within the bounds of propriety at least to fit the financial station in life. This is the common-sense, frugal practice of the housewife in the home canning of the fruits and vegetables is in grave danger of becoming a lost art.

"It is not the consumer who is the greatest sufferer under present economic conditions. It is the producer who is the most grossly wronged. This is the one great reason of the unrest and discontent among farmers and causes many to leave the farm and seek business in other avenues. Recently it was estimated by good authority that the annual value of dairy products in Oregon, from the consumers' standpoint, is $16,780,000, for which the producers received only $9,547,000, or a difference of 75 per cent for manufacture and distribution.

"The remedy is a closer co-operation between the dealer and producer. The dealer should manifest a greater interest in the welfare of the producer and thus encourage production. Dealers should take special interest in finding markets for the products of the farm and not be content with simply supplying the local demand, regardless of what may become of any surplus the farmer may happen to have. As the farmer prospers the whole community prospers.

"Finally it is presumable that many homes would be benefited if a more simply mode of life were followed. It is rather too fashionable for the family with an income of six hundred or one thousand dollars to presume to live at the same standard as the family with an income of two or three thousand dollars. This, of course, means inevitable disaster in the end. A careful analysis of the problem will show conclusively that the increased cost of living is not due to the initial cost of food. It will also show that the farmer is receiving a lower rate of interest upon his investment than those engaged in any other industry. In fact, if the plant food taken from the soil by many of the crops were estimated at its commercial value these crops would be produced at an actual loss."

ROSEBURG CITIZENS

Meet The LaGrande Business Men at The Station.

Train Number 29, which carried on it the thirty-odd business men of LaGrande on their "get-acquainted" trip, arrived here a few minutes late this afternoon and it was not until about one-thirty that the six hundred or more Roseburg people got a glimpse of the boosters from the north. The crowd at the station to meet these men who are touring the state was one of the largest gathered there for some time. Although there was a slight rain falling, the ardor of the reception committee was in no way dampened. When the train stopped the throng gathered quickly and met with open arms the visitors. They were easily detected as they wore badges bearing their town name.

After the LaGrande men had all alighted from the coach they stopped and gave three cheers for LaGrande. No college football rosters ever gave a better demonstration of loyalty. Automobiles were waiting for the guests of the city. After a little delay they were whisked to the Commercial Club rooms and introduced to the Roseburg business men, after which they repaired to the McClallen hotel to partake of one of Manager Grunwald's famous noonday luncheons.

Mayor Miceli, Dexter Rice and J. D. Zuercher left this morning for Riddle in order that they might meet the visitors at that point and formally escort them to Roseburg.

CAPTAIN AND MATE ARE KILLED

Survivors Reach on Larline—Convicted Banker Morse Pardoned—Condition Critical—Wife Enroute.

(Special to The Evening News.)

PORTLAND, Jan. 19.—Last night while the river steamer Sarah Dixon was enroute on her regular trip, and when at a point near Kalamia, Washington, on the Columbia river, her boilers exploded and so shattered her hull that she sank in a few minutes. Nine of the survivors of her crew arrived in Portland on the steamer Larline this morning.

All of the men report narrow escapes from death. It is the opinion of the crew who escaped on the Larline that Captain Fred Stinson, First Mate Arthur Monical and Fireman Silas Knowles were killed when the boilers burst. The explosion tore off the superstructure and completely wrecked the vessel. She sank so quickly that those who were injured barely had time to escape in the small boats. There is no reason assigned for the explosion, as the boilers were recently tested and reported as in good condition.

SPEND EVENING

Pleasantly at Home of Senator A. Abraham.

TALK ON THE STRIKE SITUATION

Striking Shopmen Royally Entertained—Coffee, Sandwiches and Cigars Passed Out Liberally—Politics Not Discussed.

The home of Senator Albert Abraham last night was filled almost to overflowing with the throng of citizens who are now out on a strike. The early part of the evening was taken up by informal discussions of the strikers' position in their difference with the Southern Pacific Railroad. Later the luncheon was served and was partaken of with much relish by those present.

"I did this," said the senator, "to let the strikers and the people of Roseburg know that I had confidence in them as law-abiding citizens of our city. There were present about fifty of the men and out of this number more than ninety per cent are property-owners and pay taxes into the city and county treasury. I hope that my stand will have the effect of bringing the citizens generally into closer touch with the men and their cause."

"Did politics enter into the discussion?" was asked the senator. "No, we did not mention that subject throughout the evening. In fact, politics had no bearing on the entertainment," was the reply.

Those present were: Dick Trauger, A. A. Jones, R. P. Dees, J. A. Bailey, P. C. Schwartz, Wm. Deuter, Joe Garlinette, C. C. Christie, Wm. Abonee, E. M. Tennyson, Geo. L. McNally, R. Bond, J. CASE IS FILED

Would Enjoin Collection of Taxes in District 38.

ELECTION IS BRANDED ILLEGAL

Alleged That Election Was Held in November and Not in December as Provided by 1909 Laws.

Alleging that the recent road election held in district No. 38, comprising a part of Roseburg and extending as far south as Greens, was held in direct violation of law, Attorneys John T. Long, Charles Hamilton and Frank G. Mirell, representing Robert Green, this afternoon filed legal proceedings in the circuit court in which they ask that the sheriff and clerk of Douglas county be enjoined from collecting said tax or issuing certificates of delinquency against the property involved.

According to the complaint, the attorneys for the plaintiff allege that the said election was held at the city hall, in Roseburg, on November 23, and that a three mill levy for road work was assessed against all taxable property in the district. It is also alleged that resolutions advocating the improvement of South Main street, the summit of Parrott hill and the construction of a cement culvert about 60 feet in length, were adopted. The cost of the improvements were estimated at $4,000.

Contained in the complaint are the following reasons why the injunction should be granted:

"That no notice was given, giving the time, place and object of the said meeting as required under the 1909 laws.

"That no notice of such election was posted at the court house.

"That the notice of election did not contain the signatures of 10 per cent of the tax payers of the district.

"That the said notice of election was not published in a weekly newspaper as required by law.

"That at the time of holding the election there were but 12 votes cast favoring the levy, constituting far less than a majority of the voters of the district.

"That no certificate of the levy has as yet been received by the county clerk.

"That the said election was held in privacy and not openly as provided by law.

"That the said election was held in November and not in December as required by law."

LUCH AT GRILL

Seventy Five Oregon Merchants Visit Roseburg.

ENROUTE HOME FROM MEDFORD

Arrive in Roseburg at 1:30 O'Clock and Leave For the North a Half Hour Later—A Jolly Bunch.

Singing a number of stirring airs, including such famous numbers as "How Dry I Am," "Roseburg, How I Love You," and other verses of song especially arranged for the occasion, seventy-five Oregon merchants, enroute home after a few days spent at Medford in attendance at the annual meeting of the Oregon Retail Merchants Association, alighted from northbound passenger train No. 29 this afternoon and partook of luncheon at the Grand Grill.

Apparently a jolly bunch of fellows, they attracted no little attention as they wended their way from the depot to the grill. In fact, the atmosphere seemed alive with song, interspersed with sayings of a humorous and witty nature. Completing the meal, the party hastened back to the train and departed for the north shortly after 2 o'clock.

Speaking for the party, F. E. Nunn, popular Eugene merchant, informed a News representative that the Medford grocery men were a live bunch and allowed no opportunity to pass whereby they might praise the resources and advantages of the Rogue River Valley.

"We are simply delighted with our visit to Medford," continued Mr. Nunn, "and I want to say that the Southern Oregon boys are alert and doing. We were entertained from the hour of our arrival in Medford until the minute we boarded our cars preparatory to departing for home. It was one grand round of pleasure, made so by the efforts of the citizens of Medford in charge of the entertainment."

While unable to spend any time of consequence in Pacific officials, and was well known to the people of Roseburg prior to the arrival of the train.

The opportunity of partaking of luncheon in Roseburg was arranged by the Southern Pacific officials, and was enjoyed by the people of Roseburg prior to the arrival of the train.

LA FOLLETTE CLUBS.

Are Being Organized in Every State.

(Special to The Evening News.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—The La Follette headquarters in this city has just mailed thousands of letters to prominent progressive republicans all over the country in response to requests for aid in forming LaFollette clubs. This action is evidence of the growing and nation-wide demand for an organization whose purpose it will be to further the presidential candidacy of the Wisconsin senator.

The system of organization is simple and effective. Voters in a locality may start a LaFollette club, elect officers, and through their connection with the Washington headquarters, organize the progressive sentiment. The plan will permit of independent organizations, covering any amount of territory, and will allow the affiliation of these independent clubs into larger clubs.

An outline of LaFollette's record during his 20 years struggle for popular government, first as representative in congress, then as governor of Wisconsin, and then as U. S. senator, has been put out by the progressive movement, and is an unusually strong campaign document. This record is in itself a platform.

Accompanying the LaFollette club blanks is a letter of directions of which the following is a part:

"You know that the progressive movement stands for popular government and progressive principles. You also know that opposed to these desirable ends are the special interests seeking special privileges.

"You wish the people to rule and you are willing to help bring it about. The important thing now is the election of the right man for president, and now is the time to organize LaFollette Progressive Republican Clubs.

"A La Follette Club is the most effective means you can employ to arouse interest in your locality; and you will lead others to do likewise elsewhere.

"At any time, not later, however, than thirty days before a primary or convention, you may, if you choose, make your organization permanent, and then 'go to it.' The purpose of the club, remember, is to elect delegates to the national convention who will name LaFollette for president.

The progressive republican managers announce that the organization of LaFollette clubs is a strong feature of the progressive republican campaign.
