INQUEST TODAY.

them in arriving at a true and just verdict.

Strikers Give Testimony.

Fred Schwartz, a local Southern Pacific striker, testified that he went to the scene of the wreck yesterday, and upon making an investigation of the boiler, found the crown sheet bolts in good condition. He also said the boiler evidenced first-class workmanship. Schwartz said he was unable to tell the cause of the explosion, considering that it might have resulted either from low water or defects in the material. Schwartz's evidence is considered decidedly in favor of the railroad, and came as a great surprise to the coroner and members of the jury.

Walter Christie, a striker, partially corroborated Schwartz' evidence in testifying that the boiler was apparently in good condition prior to the explosion.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the inquest was continued until Tuesday morning when a number of additional witnesses will be examined. Among these will be the government expert, who is expected to arrive at the scene of the explosion some time tomorrow. Until he arrives the wrecked boiler will remain under guard, that it may escape tampering.

Sub More Rock Being Blasted—Big Prune Crop—The News Meets With General Approval.

Gas Nelson, accompanied by his wife and three sons, have returned to their home in Edenbower, hardy and healthy, after their three months spent in the nearby mountains cutting wood for the local market. They report having made good wages during the time engaged, and find themselves financially ahead, with a busy spring awaiting them.

A. S. Wilson was engaged during the past week in setting out new plants and vines on his residence property.

Miss Bertha H. Marley departed Wednesday for Myrtle Creek to visit her brother, Lane Marley, who is engaged in teaching school at that place, and will return on the Saturday morning train.

Dr. Miller was called to attend a Kill Your Gophers, Moles, Squirrels and other Rodents by using

Whitneys' Patent Rodent Torch

This remedy was thoroughly tested for moles and other pests on the Lewis and Clark Fair Grounds and for gophers on the D. A. C. campus at Covallis, Oregon.

The torch burns with such force that it drives the gas through every ramifications of the burrow, and no animal, young, bug, or germ can live combined in the fumes of the gas.

The gas formed by burning the torch is known as Sulphurous Anhydride and is not injurious to persons or animal life when burned in the open air.

I will be in Roseburg for a few days and will demonstrate and sell at reduced prices to introduce this product.

Manager Wayland, of the R. Harness store, moved into his new home this week. When he took possession of it, he found the barn literally alive with rats, and with a hammer succeeded in killing five within a few minutes. There were so many rats yet left he gave up the task as a hopeless one, and he concluded to call to his assistance Fred Berrell and his two English terriers. Consequently there will be a rat baiting at the barn next Sunday, and it will be a case of "rough on rats."

Thomas A. Finley has returned to his task of blasting rock at Winchester for the rock crusher. The crushed rock is being put upon the public roads as fast as possible.

The prunes in this neighborhood have so far advanced as to insure the most abundant crop for years. Owners of orchards are delighted with the prospect before them, and anticipate not only a heavy yield of fruit, but one of the best markets for years.

The News is being generally congratulated upon the awardment of the city printing after its successful contention that it be given to the lowest bidder, and it is applauded by all good citizens in its crusade against the bawdy house on Sheridan street, and the "tin-horn" gamblers, of Roseburg. There is no doubt that the editor has the support in this matter of all that is honest and decent in the community, and their support will be lasting and not of a day. Of the low and the vicious The News can well afford to do without their approval, and let them go with cheerfulness to someone else, who may be hand-in-glove with them.

A striking illustration of material instinct was shown by a hen owned by Mr. E. E. Speicher the other day. An old cat was the possessor of a litter of young kittens. She carried them to the barn and cached them in a box where there had been placed some rags. Shortly afterward came the hen in question, examined the box in question and the kittens attentively, got down beside them and raked—not her. She clawed the kittens under her wings and hovered them as she would young chickens and raised such a rumpus with the old cat when she put in an appearance that Mr. Speicher's attention was directed to the matter. The cause of the trouble was apparent. The hen had appropriated the kittens as her own, and she was fighting the old cat to a finish for them. She had the best of the battle, but Mr. Speicher drove her from the nest and blocked her return.

The county court has established the front warehouse of Rudolph Harness as the primary polling place of Edenbower precinct.

Judge J. W. Hamilton this morning handed down a decision in the circuit court, in which he granted a decree of divorce in the case of Dennis C. Bosley vs. Laura H. Bosley. The plaintiff is also awarded the custody of the two minor children, upon whom the defendant may call at proper times. According to the decree, Judge Hamilton found from the evidence that Mrs. Bosley neglected the children, spent considerable time in company with Willis Simpson and was not a suitable person to care for her off-spring. The case was tried here about three weeks ago and was bitterly contested by the defendant. Attorney Johnson, of Cottage Grove, appeared for the plaintiff, and Attorney A. N. Orcutt, of Roseburg, for the defendant.
