ANNOUNCEMENT.

"Mrs. Jean Morris, author, lecturer, preacher, psychologist and physiognomist, is one of the foremost women on the American platform today. Her work does not consist merely in character reading, but advising in the art of character building. The building of true character is the most important work of man; by it we are finally reckoned of man and judged of God. In her private delineation of character she forgets self and gives her splendid intellect and heart unreservedly to the assisting of the person she is reading; she tries to see in her dynamic effort to lead others to the acme of their possibilities. She preaches a sane, livable and lovable philosophy of life, and is a safe and wise counsellor and confidante. Her lectures are uplifting and full of interest and meat for young and old alike. As an author she is clear, concise, forceful and inspiring. A lecture that is alike hearable and readable is of the imperishable type—hers stands this test."—Harry Benton, Editor Church and School.

"I consider Mrs. Jean Morris Ellis as much more than an ordinary lecturer upon these subjects; more even than an able and entertaining speaker. Her worth is to be estimated by her success as teacher of those matters and things pertaining to human conduct, and its attendant effects upon human happiness or misery. Her advice is especially valuable to parents and teachers, and her examinations in revealing the innate tendencies of children give the key to their varying discipline. Wherever Mrs. Ellis labors, there society is benefited."—Hon. T. W. Davenport.

Halifax Herald: "Mrs. Ellis is the best character reader who has visited Halifax since Prof. Fowler in 1881."

A GREAT ORATOR

John Wesley Hill Lauds President Taft.

HERE NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Hill Says Taft Is The Logical Candidate For President—Compares Him With Abraham Lincoln.

(Special to The Evening News.)

John Wesley Hill, who last night spoke at Corvallis in the interests of President Taft, will arrive in Roseburg late next Wednesday afternoon and on the evening will speak on the national issues of the day. Mr. Hill is said to be one of the most noted orators in the United States and should be greeted by a large crowd in this city. It matters not whether you are a republican, democrat or socialist, you should hear this distinguished gentleman.

CORVALLIS, Or., April 13.

Speaking of the splendid achievements of the Taft administration in some affairs and of its great success in our relations with other nations, Dr. John Wesley Hill last night addressed the citizens of Corvallis.

He declared Taft to be a great progressive, moving along lines that are worth while, and that to check the movement at this time would be an irreparable calamity.

He quoted from Lincoln's speech at Springfield in 1837, wherein he said: "Towering genius disdains a beaten path, it seeks regions unexplored. It denies that it is glory enough to serve under any chief. It thrives and burns for distinction. Is it reasonable, then, to expect that some man possessed of the loftiest genius, coupled with ambition, will at some time spring among us? Distinction will be the paramount object and although he would as willingly be doing good as harm, yet that opportunity being past and nothing left to be done in the way of building up, he would holdly set to the task of pulling down."

Prophecy Is Fulfilled.

"We are now witnessing," said Dr. Hill, "the fulfillment of Lincoln's prophecy and I thoroughly agree with Theodore Roosevelt when he said in a letter to Editor Moore, December 11, 1911, 'my nomination for a third term would be a national calamity.'"

"We are now," continued the speaker, "facing a grave crisis in our history. This no one can deny who is an observer of the signs of the times. The question now confronting the American people involves the stability and perpetuity of representative democracy. To no one with the slightest knowledge of the history of the ages is it necessary to speak in praise of our representative system.

"All arguments for it are summed up in one great, unquestionable fact, viz: It is the only system under which men have been able to attain orderly liberty, or under which, having cast off tyranny and attained liberty, they have been able to preserve liberty.

Danger of Socialism Seen.

"All human history may be challenged to produce an exception to this proposition. The apparent exceptions, such as some of the Swiss cantons, either were not pure democracies in the sense of the term, or were able to maintain their freedom only because their poverty and obscurity defended them from conquest, or because their powerful neighbors united to restrain aggressive designs upon them.

"We are confronted today with a persistent, insidious, undermining attempt to change our form of government. Let there be no mistake at this point. The revolution to which I refer is a deep-seated conspiracy to overthrow our representative form of government and appear on its ruins a socialistic democracy.

"The movement is not evolutionary, but revolutionary. Understand, I am not defending our representative system against the charge that it has defects. Its short-comings are manifest, its limitations and deficiencies are acknowledged.

Conspiracy Not Justified.

"But this does not justify the conspiracy to destroy. It is not necessary to overthrow in order to uplift. It is poor policy to burn down the barn in order to disperse the rats, and it is a more serious and perilous policy to tear down our flag and offer the substitution of another, the red flag, for instance, because the government represented by the stars and stripes does not at all times work with frictionless precision.

"The proposition, therefore, to change our form of government, to destroy its representative character, should be carefully considered before accepted as a practical working remedy for those minor defects which always assert themselves in the movements of large bodies. The framers of the constitution were not ignorant of the past. They were thoroughly familiar with the history of the ages. They had discovered the failures of absolute democracy to preserve liberty, justice and equality.

ANOTHER ROAD

To Coos Bay Says the Portland Journal.

"BOND ISSUE IS FLOATED"

Local Capitalists Disclaim Any Knowledge Of The Road or Bond Issue—Aston Is Quoted.

ROSEBURG, Ore., April 12.

The news that a $50,000,000 bond issue has been placed in Europe to build the Coos Bay-Roseburg-Boise railroad, was received by Roseburg people with great satisfaction, as this appears to be the brightest prospect for a railroad between Roseburg and Coos Bay ever seen here. The Roseburg-Coos Bay survey was made last summer and fall by Engineer Taggart Aston and associates. The crews started at Canas Valley, 27 miles southwest of Roseburg, and worked both ways, one to Myrtle Point, Marshfield and Bandon, the other crew worked this way, going through Looking Glass and Garden Valley and crossing the Southern Pacific there.

It is said the survey shows a splendid route for a railroad, with easy grades and no difficulties of construction. Engineer Aston is said to be prominent in engineering circles. Chief Engineer Cattell visited this city last November. Officials are expected to come to Oregon about May 1. Men who have been in close touch with the doings of this company think it means business. The men have worked on the quiet and have asked for no bonuses, as has been the case with would-be railroad builders.

Although every effort has been made to substantiate the contents of the above item, appearing in last night's issue of the Portland Journal, The News is unable to find any grounds for its publication, neither can its author be located. Local capitalists disclaim any knowledge of the "bond issue", while the article is "news" to the commercial club officers. It is the general opinion here that the item originated in the fertile brain of a correspondent who receives his salary at "space" rates.
