Bumper crops and prolific gardens—heap good rain.

O. E. Holdridge and wife have returned after a week's visit with relatives and friends at Portland and Salem.

James and Charles Pumphrey returned a few days ago from a visit with Lem Emerson at Tiller and Riddle.

School Superintendent Chaney spent several days in our city this week.

Mrs. J. Wendell Wright, of Roseburg, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Beard this week.

Miss Alma Powell, of Oakland, is employed as an accountant at Stearns & Chenoweth's.

Mrs. H. C. Stearns visited with relatives at Oakland last week.

Little Katherine Starr is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Porter Cornelson in Scotts Valley this week.

Little Thelma Crouch, of Springfield is visiting with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Applegate, at this place.

R. W. Long, one of our prosperous farmers, made a business visit to Roseburg the first of the week.

Mrs. W. L. Starr departed Thursday evening for Myrtle Creek where she will visit with relatives for a few days.

Miss Merle McClarnan, who has been teaching at Canyonville, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McClarnan at this place.

Wm. Hellwell departed Wednesday for Portland where he goes as a federal grand jurymen.

The grade entertainment held at the opera house Thursday evening was well attended and an excellent program was rendered. Many who took part did exceptionally well, and are entitled to commendation for their excellent renderings.

Commencement exercises will be held at the opera house Friday evening. Rev. J. K. Howard, of Glendale, will deliver the principal address of the evening. O. C. Brown will deliver the diplomas and a grand good time will be experienced by all who are interested in educational matters.

E. and A. Hellwell, business men of Cottage Grove, were here on business the first of the week.

Benj. Huntington, Jr., of Drain, was here on business Thursday.

Mack Huntington, who has been attending school at Corvallis, is home for an indefinite time.

A baby boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cornelson on June 5. All doing nicely.

C. A. Newman had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse while teaming a few days ago. The team suddenly started to run and before they could be checked one of the horses jumped onto a sulky plow which stood near by and received injuries from which it died within a short time.

Yoncalla will probably celebrate the 4th of July this year, as preparations and preliminaries are being talked and there appears to be many who favor the honoring of our national day. A meeting is to be called next Saturday evening for the purpose of appointing working committees and making other necessary arrangements for the occasion.

The building spirit seems to have taken new life here this year and much activity is noticeable along building lines. Already two new residences have been completed while others are under construction and plans are being drawn for others. J. W. Wise has recently completed an excellent windmill tower and surmounted the same with an 8,000 gallon tank and has installed gasoline machinery and other appliances until the tower is a credit to the place and very useful to Mr. Wise.

The local I. O. O. F. lodge is contemplating the erection of a 36x99 foot, two story brick building on their property at Second and Burt streets, while other substantial buildings are likely to go up before the snow flies again.

Children's Play Clothes.

Dutch play clothes are the privilege of smart children, but the pretty garments which are shown in a number of the big shops can be reproduced at home for half of the store cost—that is, as far as the imported article is concerned, for there are some domestic imitations which are quite cheap. The novelties include frocks, aprons, bonnets and coarse stockings, with which are worn the usual leather sandals. Everything is very Dutch in effect, substantial and amusing, and the sizes of the various articles are two to six years of age.

Little frocks of striped drill, tan linen or white drill trimmed with a border showing designs of Dutch children can be had as low as 65 cents. If the dress is banded with embroidery it will cost from $1.25 to $1.95. In style the frocks are much like the square necked aprons or else they are in the form of high, long sleeved smocks, with front pockets made of trimming. The aprons are square or round necked, with the armhole cut very deep and the gay bordering used only about the neck, armholes and pockets or else all around. The same drills, linens and crashes are used for them as for the frocks, but of course they are only used to protect the usual nice little gown, as over a Dutch dress they would be superfluous. A number of the bonnets, which are short at the back and show turnback front flaps, are of the same textures as the frocks and aprons. Others are of coarse white linen.

These frocks and aprons can be made of ordinary denim, prettily worked at the edges with a herringbone in colored thread, or dish towel linen could be used, this ornamented with a banding of the Dutch figured fabric, whose bright colors would be very effective against the brown of the garment. Again a brilliantly colored calico, with figures or without, might form the banding, for all that is needed are gaiety of color and durability. Home knitted stockings would fill the place of the coarse hose offered for play, although the ribbed stockings young boys generally wear are quite good enough.

The Untrained Mother.

Probably the idea of training children aright started with Moses. Solomon prodded it along a little.

But no one seems to have given any admonitions about training the parents.

No doubt all the rules for bringing up children were laid down by the parents themselves, so, of course, they complacently think they are quite capable of rearing children properly. But many parents need training quite as much as the children. And many a young boy or girl whose life is wrecked is primarily not to blame for it. The real cause lies not with his or her willfulness or deception, but with the parents, who lacked the training that fitted them to guide the lives of others.

"Has Helen drunk her hot water this morning?" asks Helen's father. Helen hesitates and gives a shrewd glance at her mother. And the mother, because she knows Helen dislikes the hot water and that the practice is only a fad with the father, says, "Yes." In later years Helen's mother tearfully wonders how Helen can deceive her so. "I'll admit I have spoiled her," says Helen's mother, explaining to a trained nurse Helen's willfulness. And, having said this, the mother complacently thinks it is all sufficient. But this explanation will not remove from the daughter's path all the trials and hardships and suffering that "spilling" will entail. Even then she was suffering as the result of it. And if Helen ever does remedy it herself in later life it will only be through years of earnest effort and much sorrow.

Interest the Boy.

Give him a plot of his own in the garden, or, lacking space here, perhaps there is an available space just over the back fence or in a vacant lot close by your home where the small lad can dig away to his heart's content, plant some vegetable seed and reap the profits from his efforts in due season.

The idea does not make an instant appeal to the small boy at first, but persuade him to stick at it for a few days or a week, and it will soon hold attractions that will get him out early in the morning to do his digging.

Lettuce, parsley, radishes, string beans, scullions, bush lima beans, beets, corn and tomatoes may all be raised with little skill, and if he is successful with his little garden patch he will find a ready market for the produce among the neighbors after giving mother the equivalent to the cost of the seeds, plants and implements.

Such an occupation is not only a source of health, but it encourages the boy in industrious ways.

An Outdoor Game.

A splendid way to get children out doors is to get them interested in the "architect." A stony vacant lot or open field is the playground, and the children vie with one another in gathering large pebbles, with them making "small size" bungalow plans upon the ground. This done, the pebble plans become make believe houses for the little folks to play in. Children seem to keep up interest in this simple game for months.
