

YONCALLA LODGE INSTALLS OFFICERS TUESDAY NIGHT.

Many Yoncalla People Go To Portland To Attend The Elks' Convention This Week.

E. Hoellwell is looking after business matters in different points in the Willamette valley this week. Hon. R. A. Booth and wife, of Eugene, visits with relatives here a few days the first of the week.

Mrs. A. J. Lee and Mrs. Emma Carr were business visitors at Drain last Tuesday.

C. F. Applegate and family made a business visit to Roseburg the first of the week.

Jas. Hanna and G. C. Ambrose were at Cottage Grove on business one day this week.

Lee Armstrong, of Oakland was here on business Tuesday.

F. F. Patterson, contractor and builder, of Roseburg, was here on business one day this week.

A. F. Stearns, of Oakland, was a business visitor to this city the first of the week.

Thos. Roberts, of Ashland, is here for a couple of weeks' visit with relatives and friends.

Among those to attend the Elks' carnival at Portland from this place are F. L. Beard, Ruth Thiel, A. H. Kelso, J. F. Daugherty and wife, C. P. Huntington and wife, Mrs. J. T. Cook and Edith Smith.

J. W. Cowan, A. Hellwell Jas. and Chas. Pumphrey left Wednesday morning for a few days' fishing on the North Umpqua river. There will be but little chance of any fish being landed after this lawless bunch concludes operations.

At the regular meeting of the W. O. W. last Tuesday evening the following officers were installed: J. H. Kruse, C. C.; C. A. Stock, Adv. Lt.; E. Burt, Escort; W. P. Drew, manager; Chas. Stevens, Watchman; Roy Kruse, Sentry. One trembling victim in the person of Robt. Francis, was duly prepared and introduced into the various mysteries of "Chop-wood" after which a big feed of ice cream was staged, to which all did ample justice.

Stearns & Chenoweth are seriously contemplating building a two-story brick building on their property at the east end of 2nd street. In all probability the structure will be fitted for a general store below while the upper apartment will be utilized as a lodge hall. From what can be learned the Odd Fellows are contemplating dropping their proposed building and leasing the upper part of the building proposed by Stearns & Chenoweth. The city is in due need of lodge accommodations and it is to be hoped that one of the proposed building will materialize.

Mrs. Mary Huffman has returned from Honglin, Or., where she spent a few weeks visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Stinnett.

F. C. Alton, of Roseburg, was here on business the first of the week. Mr. Alton has just returned from the east where he disposed of a part of his Scotts Valley holdings.

At the regular meeting of Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, Friday evening July 5th, the following officers elect were installed: Estay Harshbarger, N. G.; Blanch McClarnan, V. G.; Anna Hangeberg, secretary; Myrtle Beard, treasurer; Minnie Lutz, R. S. N. G.; Ella Marks, L. S. N. G.; Jance Cook, R. S. V. G.; Isabelle Schindler, L. S. V. G.; Minnie Straw, warden, Joete Wise, conductor; Eva Sanborn, Chaplain; Frankie Nance, inside guardian; Mamie Wise, musician. District Deputy President, Minnie Lutz officiated as installing officer.

MANY ARE SUCCESSFUL.

Only Eight Per Cent of Applicants Fail in Examinations.

The state board of examiners have completed grading the teachers' manuscripts for the examination held June 19, 1912. Of the 48 applicants only eight failed. Most of the applicants were writing for one-year papers, a few were writing for exemptions, while four were writing for life papers. These certificates must be registered in the school superintendent's office before the applicant can teach, but before they can be registered, teacher's must satisfy the county superintendent that they have read the reading circle books.

Following are the names of the successful applicants: Frances Wikon, Desda Wikon, John Kernan, Emma Agee, Hattie Rose, A. C. Crews, Rhoda Watson, Mabel Smith, Victor Boyd, Grace Boyle, R. E. Morris, Fanta Kidwell, Mrs. Pearl Price, Abbie Bond, Mrs. Starr, Dolie Colwell, Clara Sprague, Allie Smith, Maple Moore, Ruth Boyle, Clifford Boyle, W. L. Starr, M. V. Thomas, Mrs. J. R. SHERIFF BOWN HURT WHILE AUTOMOBILING.

Thrown From Automobile While Enroute To Portland Yesterday.

EUGENE, Or., July 10.—Harry L. Bown, for four years sheriff of Lane county, was probably fatally injured when he was thrown from R. C. Keeney's automobile, four miles north of Corvallis, today. Deputy Sheriff Parker, who took Mrs. Bown and sons to Corvallis as soon as news was received, returned here with the word that the sheriff's condition is critical. He sustained a fracture at the base of the skull and may have internal injuries.

The car at the time was running slow, to pass some new road, when a pin in the steering mechanism broke, allowing one wheel to turn, break off and then turn the car against the embankment. The sudden stop threw Mr. Bown out into the roadway onto his back. Joe Delaney and a boy named Morrison, also in the tonneau, were thrown out, but not injured. The sheriff was taken to the Corvallis hospital at once, and late in the afternoon there appeared to be slight improvement.

Sheriff Bown, a democrat, has been twice elected in a strongly republican county, and is exceedingly popular. He is a man of strong vitality, which gives him his only chance. Deputy Parker declares there can be no blame attached to anyone for the accident.

Mr. Bown was one of a party going from Eugene to the Elks' convention.

Dr. E. J. Bonner, of Medford, the eye specialist, is in town for a short time. See him for expert advice. Phone 281.

H. T. McClallen has returned from Portland where he has been employed in the land department of the Southern Pacific Company. He expects to return to Portland in a few days.

Miss Ina Irvine left for her home at Newport this morning after a few days spent in Roseburg visiting with her friend, Ana Allen. Miss Allen accompanied her to Newport where she will remain for a week or ten days.

Among those leaving for Portland last evening were Frank Brand and wife, John Winnford, Carl D. Shoemaker, Elbert Hermann, I. R. Smith, J. F. Barker, Richard Williams and wife, Dr. A. C. Seely and wife, W. W. Purdy, Hermann Marks, F. E. Charles Bowker, Ben Caro, Nellie Kirk and Gertrude Rast.

Hear her, the second Mrs. Armour, only more attractive, at the court house lawn Sunday evening at seven o'clock, July 14. Mrs. Atkins is one of the chautauqua-speakers this year, thus we are able to secure her for this date. She is earnest, forceful, strong and eloquent speaker.

If you are contemplating building a house, barn or other buildings, I will be glad to furnish you with estimates. I have only skilled mechanics in my employ and they are all insured by me under the Workman's Compensation act. Therefore, when I do building for you you take no chance of being sued for damages or any injury that may befall any employee while working on your building. B. S. Nichols, contractor and builder, 181 N. Jackson street, Roseburg, Ore. Phone 327-Y.

A Dealer In Foreign Fruits
By LUIGI CONTA

In lower New York there is a sign "P. Martelli, Dealer in Foreign Fruits and Oil." One day a young man entered the shop and, seeing the proprietor working on his books, said to him in the Italian language:

"Signor, I have just come from Naples to America to better my condition I wish a position."

"I cannot afford a clerk. I wish I could. I am poor at accounts. They bother me."

"I kept books for one of the largest exporters of oil in Naples. I know all about bookkeeping."

"That may be, but I have told you my business does not admit of an assistant."

"Let me work for you without pay. I have brought over with me a little money on which I can live while I am getting a knowledge of America. I will serve you for, say, a year. By that time my money will be all gone, but I can then find a position with a salary."

Martelli was much captivated with the proposition. He told the man, who gave his name as Giovanni Miele, to take hold of his books and straighten them out. If he showed that he knew how to do so he would teach him his business. He told Miele that his face was familiar to him, but he could not tell where he had seen him, to which Miele replied that nothing was more likely, since they had both lived in the same city.

Miele did not know anything about bookkeeping, but he talked very learnedly about Martelli's accounts and succeeded in confusing the merchant and showing him that his affairs were in much better condition than he had supposed. Miele became a great favorite with his employer, and, with the former's assistance, the business seemed to improve. It did not appear that the sales were larger, but somehow or other when Miele took off a statement from the books he always showed an increased profit. Indeed, so pleased was Martelli that he told his clerk he might draw $5 a week for salary. But Miele said that he preferred to stick to his contract and would not accept any pay for his work.

Martelli lived in a room in one of the narrow streets of lower New York. When he left his shop after business hours he invariably went to this sleeping apartment alone. But one day, after drinking a bottle or two of wine with his clerk, he invited Miele to go home with him and have a game of cards. Miele accepted the invitation. Martelli bought some more wine on the way, and during the evening the two finished it. The wine came from California and is much stronger than the wines one gets in Italy. Martelli showed its effects. When he got up from his seat to get some tobacco Miele slipped a little pellet into his glass. When Martelli returned he was too drunk to notice it lying in the bottom of his glass, and it was soon dissolved. Soon after he had finished his glass his eyes began to look heavy, his head sank down on the table, and he was unconscious.

Miele arose and began to search the room. Protruding skeleton keys, he unlocked everything that was locked and searched under the bed and in every nook and cranny. Unlocking the closet, he found an old pair of shoes. Thrusting his hand down into the toe of one, he withdrew a chamois bag, from which he poured a number of valuable diamonds into the palm of his hand. From the toe of the other shoe he secured several papers, which he hastily glanced over and put them in his pocket. Then he turned and contemplated for a few moments the senseless figure of his victim.

Taking up the glass from which Martelli had drunk, he rinsed and wiped it, then partly filled it with wine. His next act was to carry Martelli to the bed, take off his outer garments and put the bedclothes over him. Then, putting out the lights, he left him.

In the morning Martelli awoke and looked about him. Empty bottles and his own half filled glass stood on the table. He got off the bed, staggered to the table, took up his glass, smelled of it, sipped it and, discovering no taste, seemed relieved. Going to the closet, he felt in the toe of one of his shoes. He started. Thrusting his hand into the other shoe, he gave a cry of anguish. Rushing to the door, he tried to open it, but found it locked. He was looking for some other avenue of exit when he heard footsteps without, the door was opened, and Miele, backed by two policemen, stood in the opening.

"Good morning, Signor Fabroni," he said. "I shall have to trouble you to make a sea voyage with me to our beloved Naples. Signora Martelli missed some valuable diamonds, and at the same time her butler disappeared. He was traced to New York, and I was deputed to come over and bring him back. The government, being interested in a murder case of which he is suspected, chose me, a member of the national police, to do the work."

"I have been a fool. I knew I had seen you before. Now I remember you as you appeared in uniform," said Martelli.

"It has been worth my while to come so far, since I have recovered the treasure you possessed yourself of when you murdered the traveler you waylaid on the road to Sorrento."

A pair of bracelets were slipped on the captive, and he was taken to a ship that sailed the same day for Naples.

... ANNOUNCEMENT ...
Reprinted from Dry Goods Economist, June 22, 1912
It is but the statement of simple fact to say that the corset buyer who has the opportunity to buy GOSSARD CORSETS and does not take full advantage of the splendid offerings for Fall, fails in the duty to employer and public which that buyer desires to serve.
It should be remembered that all merchants are not privileged to buy GOSSARD CORSETS, which further emphasizes the responsibility of those entrusted with their distribution.
Figure imperfections which have developed only recently by wearing corsets of injudicious selection have been accurately anticipated and provided for with that unerring decision and nicety of execution for which the Gossard organization is so eminently qualified.
Those who sell GOSSARD CORSETS this coming Fall will be months in advance of competition. The samples tell the whole story.
