Dr. Wilson and His Wife, Who Shares His Public Interests

If the Democratic candidate is elected to the presidency the next mistress of the White House will be a woman keenly alive to the issues of the day and with a lively interest in all public questions. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson believes that—to use her own words—"the successful wife is one who meets her husband at every turn; she must be his intellectual complement as well as his companion." During Dr. Wilson's term as governor of New Jersey she has accompanied him on his visits to public institutions, showing a particular interest in the asylums for the feeble minded. Governor and Mrs. Wilson have three daughters, one of whom is specializing in the study of music, another in that of art, while the third, following her mother's bent, is engaged in social settlement work.

For the Children

Count Alexander Hochberg Driving His Toy Motorcar.

Many young people might envy the young man here pictured in his motorcar, but it is doubtful if they would care to be burdened with his name. In full it is Alexander Frederic William George Conrad Ernest Maximilian Hochberg. He is a count, or graf, as it is called in German. He is seven years old and is the son of the Prince of Pless of Germany. His mother is an Englishwoman. Recently his father gave a hunting party on his estates in Silesia, and young Alexander proudly exhibited his new car. Even boys with titles enjoy such things.

Chinese Butterfly Game.

In an open space in the garden poles like our Maypoles are set up in a circle. These are hung with tiny wind bells, which give forth a sweet tinkling when they are stirred by the breeze, and with a variety of flags of different colors. In the center of the circle the game of butterflies is played.

Chinese girls and women with their shining black hair freshly dressed and wearing festive garments rich with embroidery arm themselves with fans and enter the charmed circle. Several butterflies that have been previously caught and prepared for the game are flying lazily about. To each one is attached a long, strong, black hair, which is weighted with a scrap of paper just heavy enough to prevent the butterfly from soaring out of reach. The players, shrieking with laughter, rush madly about in their efforts to catch the little creatures with open fans.

A Riming Game.

In this the first word of the answer must rime with the last word of the question. The players are seated in a circle, and the game is started by some one asking of his next neighbor a question on any subject whatever or by making any casual remark. The first word of the answer to this must rime with the last word of the question or remark. This then goes around the circle, each player in turn adding a remark to that made by the one before him, always observing the riming rule. Thus the original question may be, "Do you like peach pies?" The next player may reply, "Wise people always do." The next may say, "You, I suppose, agree with that?" The next, "Flat you may knock me if I don't." The next, "Won't you change the subject, please?" And the next, "Easily; let's talk of books." And so on as long as wits will work.

Conundrums.

Why is life like a very hard riddle? Because it always has to be given up. What evidence have we that Adam used sugar? Because he raised Cain. When an ape is sick, how may he announce it and at the same time tell what kind of medicine he wants? Ape (I) a pill.

When eggs are 25 cents a dozen, how many can you get for a cent and a quarter? A dozen, because a cent and a quarter equal 25 cents.

What are the most patient objects in the shape of humanity? Statues.

When is coffee like soil? When it is ground.

Why is a retired carpenter like a lecturer? Because he is an ex-planer.

Passenger Names.

To ride on people's Christian names is one of Paul's pretending games. He has announced to me that John is comfortablest riding on. For one can sit astride this o. Between the J and h, you know. It's like an army saddle so.

And then, he says, it's very plain that Samuel's a railway train. For when your head outside you poke you see the engine's curling smoke. Mary's a donkey, it appears. With ramrod tail and long, tall ears. A bicycle Otto is, of course. And Anna's like a rocking horse. For back and forth you spell all day. And still just where you were you stay.

Alf is a pony Paul won't try. He says it bucks so very high. But Paul has many other steeds of an extraordinary breeds. And if you like pretending games I'm sure you, too, can tell their names. —Youth's Companion.

Is a Clean Cutter

Its compressing gears and cutter bar revolving device are successful examples of the wonderful inventive genius of Mr. Joseph Dain. The gears are so mounted in relation to each other that perfect balance and smoothness are permanently insured and the crank shaft is relieved of all end thrust, preventing lost motion, reducing draft and multiplying cutting power. That is why the Dain Mower runs lightly and cuts where others fail. It is the only mower you can readily yourself, right in the field with your wrench. This practical adjustment for maintaining the cutter bar in line with the piston, means added efficiency and years of extra service.

A Real Vertical Lift

Notice the angle handle on the lever. Easy to grasp, no twisting. One movement of one lever raises the bar, lifts throws in and out of gear automatically as bar is raised and lowered. The large, hook, flexible spring holds the cutter bar, does practically all the work in lifting with the foot at corners and helps in raising the bar vertically.

Consult the nearest John Deere dealer, learn all about this greatest of all mowers, and about the entire line of John Deere Tools, Ladders, Saws, Delivery Trucks, Scales, Saws, Hakes, Presses, every one the best of its kind. Dain makes the best hay tools. They have been specializing on them for over a quarter of a century.
