With the opening of the hunting season numerous hunting parties departed for the haunts of game. Many of the parties departed for the woods on the day preceding the opening of the season so as to be ready for business at the first break of day. It is safe to predict that no less than fifty hunters from this place and immediate vicinity will be in the woods before the week shall have passed. That many deer will be killed is almost self-evident, as many of the hunters are crack shots and know every inch of territory over which the hunting will be done. If the season passes without some unfortunate hunter being mistaken for game and shot it will be a great relief to the public an evidence that nitrods are becoming more careful and are respecting the laws more closely.
