For the Children

Little Chinese Girls on Their Way to School.

The city of New York is perhaps the most cosmopolitan city in the world. That means that it is the home of peoples from all quarters of the globe. Men of every race and color meet here on the common ground of equality. The poor and the oppressed of every land have in this country found a haven where they may have the same freedom that is the right of the native born citizen. In some of the schools of the city the scholars may represent a dozen different nationalities, and bright pupils they are, the teachers report. The two little Chinese girls shown in the picture were photographed in Five Points park, which is not far from New York's Chinatown. As you may see, they are bright and intelligent looking, and quite pretty as well.

Conundrums.

Why don't they collect fares from policemen on the trolley cars? Because they can't take a nickel from a copper.

What is men's opinion of bloomer girls? They are divided.
Which is bigger, Mr. Bigger or Mr. Bigger's baby? The baby is a little bigger.

Where did Noah keep his bees? In the ar-hives.

What kind of sweetmeats did they have in the ark? Preserved pears (pairs).

What is the difference between a hen with one wing and a hen with two wings? A difference of opinion.

Why is wit like a Chinese lady's foot? Because brevity is the sole of it.
When are the streets of a town most greasy? When the rain is dripping.

Why is a selfish friend like the letter P? It is the first in pity and the last in help.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Storm and Calm.

Storm and calm is a jolly game. First place a circle of chairs at an even distance apart. Then the youngsters take their places and each one chooses the name of a fish. An extra child is selected to begin the game. He runs round outside the circle, crying: "A storm is near! A storm is near!" Then, when it pleases him, he adds: "Swim deep, swim deep, oh, herring, dear!"

The child who answers to the name of herring rises and trots after the leader, who repeats the former cry with the herring joining in. In this manner all the fish are chosen and their voices imitate the gradual rising of a storm. Suddenly the leader shouts loudly:

"The storm is over," and all the fish, leader included, bolt for seats. As the company is a seat short the child who fails to secure one acts as leader next time.

Chains of Thought.

Each player is provided with a pencil and slip of paper, and then a single word is given out by the leader to the company assembled. This word is written at the top of each one's paper, and then each writes down in a list every thought the given word brings to his mind, making a chain of thought.

When these are read aloud the various paths and the different paths, taken by the "thoughts" cause endless fun.

Tree Conundrums.

What tree is its old age sadly cried? Elder. And from what tall one comes low sighs? Pine.

Which bears the mark of a smoldering fire? Ash. And which to chastise you takes your eye? Birch.

Which one do you carry about in your hand? Palm. And which one tall and slim doth stand? Poplar.

Which one bears fruit so golden and sunny? Orange. And which one bears the sea's deep sound? Beach.

Come, tell now, which is a staid joke? Chestnut. And which from a state awakes? Oak.

To which would you then a firm young man? Spruce. Which one yields fruit round and rosy? Apple.

And what would you like to put in a pony? Tulip. Which tree is cloth and fuel in one? Cottonwood.

And from which does sweet fluid run? Maple.
