Socialists Of The World Will Oppose War—Judge Ordered Defendant to Sit With Others—Witness Uneasy.

(Special to The Evening News.) BASLE, Switzerland, Nov. 26.—Socialists of the world have started a move to discountenance war and will attempt to prevent it. While socialists have always taken a stand against this mode of settling national and international disputes, this is perhaps the first time that the issue has assumed a world-wide phase. In a declaration penned by Jean Jaures, a French socialist leader, which has been published by the International Socialist Congress, addressed to the socialists of America and Europe, he urges them to resist attempts of the nations to plunge into war on account of the threatening conditions prevailing over issues which are of no importance to the masses of the people.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—During the trial of the union men here today, and while Ortie McManigal, the confessed dynamiter and states witness, was on the stand under cross examination, Olaf A. The witness became uneasy and finally was so disconcerted under the steady eye of Tevittmoe, that the

LOGGERS TRAIN

Plunges Through Trestle in Coos County.

EXPLOSION FOLLOWS WRECK

Train Crew Killed—Logs Blown to Splinters—Rancher Jumped Off Just Before Accident

MARSHFIELD, Or., Nov. 25.—Added to the horror of wreck today was the explosion of 700 pounds of giant powder, causing death or injury of everyone aboard the train on the Seeley Anderson logging road near Bandon, when the train dashed through a trestle 70 feet high into the gulch below.

The train and logs were blown to splinters.

Three men are dead and several of the injured will die.

The dead: James McDowell, engineer on the logging train; Charles Smith, fireman on the train; Morgan, logger, first name not known.

The injured: L. Anderson, brakeman, badly injured but may recover; Guy Rose, a bookkeeper of Myrtle Point, badly crushed and scalded by steam, probably will die; Atkins, a logger, first name not known, recently from California, horribly crushed and will die; Clancey Humphrey, logger, recently from California, badly crushed, probably will die.

Anderson is the only man who has much chance of recovery.

There was a trestle 300 feet long over a gulch, and when the train ran on the trestle the latter gave way, either because of the recent rains or because of some defect in the building.

At the place where the break occurred practically the entire train dashed down into the gulch below.

William Doyle, a rancher, had been on the train, but jumped off for some reason just before the disaster. He sent word to Bandon and the Seeley-Anderson Logging Company and rescuers started out. The accident was back from the river where the road terminates, and the scene of the accident was reached with difficulty.

The victims were pinioned under the wreckage of the train and logs. The injured were taken to the hospital at Bandon. The bodies of the fireman and engineer have not yet been recovered.

Cianey Humphrey died at an early hour Tuesday, and Anderson is not expected to live. Mrs. Smith, wife of the dead fireman, is a prospective mother, and the shock of the affair has endangered her life.

MAN IN ENGLAND IMPERSONATES DR. R. H. BARBER.

Former Gardiner Physician Is Impersonated By Stranger—Officers Seek Information.

The English authorities, through State Health Officer Calvin White, of Portland, have written a letter to Dr. George E. Houck, of this city, in which they seek the details concerning the death of Dr. Richard H. Barber, a former Douglas county health officer who was drowned in the vicinity of Gardiner early in December, 1904. The inquiry of the English officials follows the arrest of an impostor, who is said to have circulated reports throughout England to the effect that he was Dr. Barber, and formerly lived at Gardiner, Douglas county, Oregon. According to the letter the impostor is now being held in England awaiting information from the local authorities. Inasmuch as Dr. Barber's estate was probated years ago, local officers cannot understand why the so-called impostor would attempt to appropriate his title.

Dr. Richard H. Barber, the physician named in the inquiry received here today formerly lived at Gardiner, and for a time held the position of county health officer.

Late in December, 1904, Dr. Barber was summoned by Fred Cassidy, of Florence, who sustained a severe injury by accident in a logging camp near that place. The physician started up the coast on horseback to Florence immediately upon receipt of the summons, and upon reaching Ten Mile creek experienced some difficulty in crossing as a result of high tide. On reaching the mouth of the Siuslaw river and finding no one there to meet him he decided to swim his horse across the jetty. This he accomplished successfully, but on reaching the jetty and in attempting to walk to land he fell through an opening into about five feet of water. Being bruised on the side of the head by the fall he was drowned, the body being recovered on the following day. The horse was found roaming about the beach nearby.

Dr. Barber's body was brought to Drain following its recovery and was later interred. For some reason neither the undertaker who conducted the funeral or the physician who was summoned following the drowning ever filed the required death certificate. As a result the records do not show that any such man as Dr. Barber ever died in Douglas county. The above information, together with more complete details, will be sent to the English officers, who, from the tone of their inquiry, are patiently awaiting a reply.

Mr. Barber left a widow, Jean Barber, at present a resident of the Gardiner vicinity.

TEXTILE WORKERS OVERJOYED

Men Express Their Appreciation To Jurymen—Hundreds of Working People Embrace Acquitted Leaders.

(Special to The Evening News.)

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 26.—At the opening of the court here today, the jury that held the fate of the textile workers in their hands, returned a verdict of not guilty, acquitting Ettore Giovannitti and Caruso, charged with the murder of a young woman striker during the labor disturbances at Lawrence, Mass., last spring. The jury arrived at a decision early the night before, but were unable to report until this morning. The defendants wept with joy when they heard the verdict, and above the noisy demonstration which greeted the jury's decision Giovannitti screamed: "Thank you, gentlemen of the jury, in the name of justice and civilization," while Ettore shouted: "Thank you in the name of the working class." The acquitted men were embraced by hundreds of working men while many spectators shed tears of joy over the termination of a long and hard fought case. Caruso embraced his wife, and then the three men again faced Judge Quinn. Other indictments against the trio made it necessary for them to give bonds, the court fixing Caruso's at $100 and $500 each for Ettore and Giovannitti. A dismissal of the charges will probably follow.

Rosenthal Murderers to Die.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Louise Rosenburg, "Gyp" Horowitz, "Whitey" Lewis and "Dago Frank" Ciroflet, the four men recently found guilty of the murder of Rosenthal the gambler, were this morning sentenced by the court to be electrocuted during the week of January 6. Justice Goff, of the state supreme court, pronounced the sentence.

The convicted men were taken to the court in a prison van, the sheriff and a dozen guards, each wearing a long overcoat and carrying a revolver in each pocket, accompanying the quartet. There was no demonstration, however, Lewis was the first to be sentenced. He accepted the death penalty with a smile. Neither of the four doomed men evidenced emotion, and they talked and joked with the officers in an unconcerned manner, pretending to treat the matter lightly. Handcuffed to deputies the men were started for Sing Sing, where the death penalty will be inflicted.

WOULD APPOINT GUARDIAN OVER HIS AGED FATHER.

Many Witnesses Called to Testify—Aged Lady Smokes Pipe With Contentment.

With the county court room crowded to its capacity with a typical crowd of mountaineers, County Judge G. W. Wonnacott is today listening to the evidence and arguments in the suit recently instituted by Orville Thrush, who asks that a guardian be appointed over his father, Abraham Thrush.

The entire forenoon was consumed in the examination of witnesses in behalf of the junior Thrush, while this afternoon witnesses summoned by the elder Thrush are testifying. The witnesses introduced during the morning contended that Abraham Thrush was nearly 90 years of age, and consequently was incompetent and unfit to transact his own business. It was also alleged by several of the witnesses that the aged man had become quite feeble of late, and that his memory was fast failing him. Other witnesses testified that the elder Thrush was subject to puerilism, and it was feared that he would give his property away in the event the court failed to appoint a guardian. Still other witnesses testified regarding certain incidents where the elder Thrush had displayed symptoms of incompetency. Important among these incidents was the burying of money on his farm, which a few weeks ago was stolen by some unknown person who apparently was well acquainted with the premises and the habits of the aged gentleman. These incidents, together with the age of the old gentleman, is the foundation upon which the younger Thrush hopes to base a victory and thereby remove his father from control of the remaining property.

The evidence adduced by the witnesses introduced on behalf of the elder Thrush testified that the aged gentleman was perfectly competent to transact his business affairs, and that the action was brought with a view of preserving the land in order that it might eventually fall into the hands of Orville Thrush, the petitioner.

As in most cases of this nature, the evidence was somewhat conflicting and tended to indicate that even the members of the Thrush family were divided on the questions at issue.

Many times during the progress of the hearing the witnesses engaged in petty quarrels, and upon more than one occasion it was necessary for the presiding judge to restore order in the court room.

Among the witnesses who attracted considerable attention was an aged lady, who continually smoked a pipe during the progress of the hearing.

Owing to the many witnesses who have been summoned to testify it is not probable that the hearing will be concluded before late this evening, or possibly tomorrow.

Attorney Binger Hermann represents Abraham Thrush, while Attorneys Buchanan & Porter are looking after the interests of Orville Thrush, the petitioner.
