The happy couple returned to Wilbur today where they intend to make their future home.

LOCAL NEWS.

D. H. Hollowell and wife, of Olalla, are registered at the Grand hotel in this city.

Mr. McBroom, editor of one of the Chehalis, Wash., newspapers, arrived here last night and left for Eugene this afternoon. Mr. McBroom formerly lived in Roseburg and was at one time connected with the Roseburg Review. He expects to spend Christmas at Eugene visiting with his wife's sister, Mrs. Charles Fisher.

Some unknown person, unquestionably without brains or principle, late Saturday night or early Sunday morning, partially painted the brick pier, situated at the northeast corner of the new hotel structure, with a coat of water-proof paint, resembling tar. As a result Contractor Arthur, who has charge of the building, will probably have to spend no less than $100 in replacing the defaced bricks. It was first thought that the substance could be washed from the brick, but this was disproven when an attempt was made to do so this morning. The citizens of Roseburg are indignant over the affair, and it is believed that a substantial reward will be offered for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty party. At any rate, a man who will do an act of this kind should be sent to the penitentiary for a term of years and thus protect society, and most especially people who are attempting to upbuild the town.

George Hoover, who has been spending the past few days in Roseburg leaves for Portland tonight where he will spend Christmas with his family.
