

DICKEY IS DEAD

Picked Up in Unconscious Condition Wednesday.

IDENTITY OF MAN DISCLOSED

Man Was Traveling Without Money—Fellow Traveling With Him Said His Name Was Dickey—Coroner Investigates.

Wednesday evening at about six o'clock a young man was discovered by some boys sitting on the step of the Commercial Club exhibit building just south of the passenger depot, and his peculiar appearance alarmed them so they ran across to a barber shop just opposite and told the proprietor to go over and see what was the matter with the fellow. The barber, Mr. Cottrell, did so, and when he touched the man he pitched forward on the gravel, unconscious. His face was so black that at first he was mistaken for a negro, but a purplish ting of the ears evidenced that such was not the case. He was evidently suffering from some sort of a fit or from an overdose of some powerful drug. G. W. Rapp, the grocer, immediately telephoned for a physician, and in fact sent hurried messages after two or three doctors, but it was not until more than an hour had elapsed and a boy was sent in person to summon medical aid, that assistance came. Meanwhile, the young man was left lying on the gravel of the depot grounds, where those who had first gone to his assistance had stretched him, but not knowing any remedies to administer. After arrival of the doctors the man was removed to a rooming house and given restoratives, but all efforts were unavailing. He lingered until early Thursday morning when he died.

At the time the man was taken ill there were present a couple of young fellows, who were apparently his traveling companions. One of these fellows said that the sick man was Charles Dickey, and that his father lived in Spokane. There was not a scrap of anything on the body by which the man's identity could be told. With the exception of a spool of thread, a pipe and 10 cents, he had nothing on his person. The coroner followed this slight clue and immediately sent a wire to Spokane in search of the father of the deceased. The wire was addressed to Chief of Police Dounst, of Spokane, who in turn began a search for the relatives of Dickey, with the result that late in the evening Coroner Jewett received the following wire:

Lewiston, Idaho, Sept. 18, '13.
Coroner N. T. Jewett, Roseburg, Or. Hold remains of Charles Dickey. Am coming at once. Will bury there. THOMAS DICKEY.

According to this announcement Mr. Dickey will probably arrive in Roseburg on the early train tomorrow morning.

Investigating the sources of information concerning the affair, News representative discovered that Wednesday afternoon a man giving his name as Murphey called on a local physician and said that a friend of his required a prescription for morphine. It was given him and later filled at a drug store. In the meantime the man Dickey was waiting near the depot for the "dope" and was engaged in conversation by several persons among them H. G. Riley, a Southern Pacific brakeman. Riley said that Dickey talked in a perfectly rational way, and there was nothing to indicate that he was a dope fiend. When Riley started for his supper he left Dickey sitting on the steps of a barber shop on Cass street.

This was shortly after five o'clock. At six o'clock Riley said that he was attracted by the crowd near the exhibit building, and going down there to see who was entertaining the crowd, saw his acquaintance of an hour before lying on the sand in an unconscious condition. Two men present stated that they knew the sick man, and that his name was Charles Dickey. One of them said that he was addicted to such fits, and that he would soon be all right, stating that he had been with him for five years and had seen Dickey in the same condition many times. Another said that Dickey was just recovering from a prolonged spate. These men were later called before the coroner who questioned them as to the identity of the man who died while under the influence of a powerful drug, and they told practically the same story, and it was from them that the clue was obtained which finally resulted in finding Thomas Dickey, a relative of the dead man. The men who gave what little information was obtained concerning Dickey have not been seen in the vicinity of the depot since they gave their testimony, and it is believed that they have traveled on. The body of Dickey is being held at the Roseburg Undertaking Parlors awaiting the arrival of Thomas Dickey, who wired from Lewiston.

Jealous Husband Kills Two.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—A double murder occurred here this morning and a third person was seriously wounded in the lunch room near the Atlas Garage when an unidentified man entered and opened fire on George Kovack, night clerk at the garage and William Acker, a chauffeur, as they were lunching with Mrs. Coulson. The latter, though it is thought she is fatally wounded, claims to have recognized the murderer, but refused to tell the police who the man was. Believing that the murderer was A. R. Coulson, husband of Mrs. Coulson, a general order was issued for all officers to keep a lookout for the man and arrest him if found. Mr. and Mrs. Coulson have been estranged for some time.

The judge will be away about three weeks as nearly as he can tell, and will take advantage of the opportunity to make a visit to some of his old camping grounds. He left on the night train for the East.

"GRAND STYLE"

Society is Formed to Revive Courtesy of Past.

UNCOVER IN PASSING STATUES

Fish Discovered in Australia Has 53 Light Organs—Looks Like Front of a Moving Picture Show.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Deploring the present-day disregard of manners, a league of young men has been founded in London, whose object is to attempt to revive the courtesy of the past in "the grand style". The league today commenced business in picturesque style. Whenever they passed the statue of a great Englishman, the members raised their hats and bowed profoundly. Standing bare-headed the members of the league naturally attract considerable attention in the crowded streets, and when a crowd had gathered, they are supposed to address a short homily to the assembled throng on the pressing need of retaining the courtesy and respect to greatness which were so characteristic of a past age. Some of the members find their courage fail them at this point but others conscientiously carry out their missionary duties.

"We are hoping that our little acts of courtesy in the street will do much to convince London that there is just as much need for courtesy nowadays as in past generations," said A. E. Wilson, secretary and founder of the league.

"We may be accused of flamboyance, but the attitude we are taking up is the only way to bring the objects of the league home to the people. England is getting slack in its manners, and anyone who knows the Continent intimately will agree that the 'foreigner' can teach us a much needed lesson in courtesy."

New Species of Fish.
SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sept. 19.—A new species of fish having the appearance of an electrically lighted ferry boat has been secured in the Great Australian Bight, at a depth of 250 fathoms.

This curious fish which has fifty-three brilliant light organs on either side of its body, which itself shines like a mirror, has been named the Tudor. It was hauled up by the trawler Endeavor, and has been placed in the museum here.

More than 100 other new varieties were obtained, all the specimens inhabiting these submarine depths being more or less luminous.

DINING ROOM OPEN.

New Umpqua Hotel Served First Meals Today in Spacious Dining Room.

The new Hotel Umpqua this morning served breakfast in the new dining room. Since the informal opening a week or ten days ago the Umpqua has been compelled to use the grill room for dining room purposes, but yesterday the carpenters and finishers completed their work and the tables were installed last night. The dining room is not yet complete. Curtains, carpet, buffets and the other necessary articles have been ordered and will be installed as soon as they arrive. The new dining room is spacious, well lighted and presents a most delightful appearance. Manager Glasau is working hard to get the hotel fully equipped and expects to have the hostelry complete within a short time.

JOSEPHINE COUNTY FAIR.

The third annual Josephine county fair will be held at Grants Pass for three days, commencing Wednesday, September 24th, and continuing till Friday night. The catalogue and premium list shows that provision has been made for many new classes of exhibits, and for all of the old ones, with valuable prizes in every division. The annual show of the Josephine county poultry association will be held in conjunction with the fair, and competition will be lively with one of the best exhibits of poultry ever brought together in the district. A silver cup has been offered by the Southern Pacific company for the best individual exhibit of fowls.

The dairy cow contest will be one of the chief attractions of the fair, citizens of Grants Pass having added to the purse offered by the fair management, a prize of $50 being hung for the winner and $20 for the second prize winner. In the contest this contest is open to any dairy cow, the milking and butter-fat tests to be conducted on the grounds by a committee.

A petition was today filed nominating W. L. Cobb as councilman from the fourth ward.

MISS NOT AMISS

New York Misses Follow Their Mothers Styles.

MODIFIED FASHIONS FOR YOUTH

Miss Margaret Mason Writes Fashion Article for United Press—Furs Dyed With Vivid Colors This Winter.

A Miss is as good as a Mrs. When it comes to a question of style and you've often seen that sweet sixteen Has thirty beat a mile. Her frills are just as frilly. Her frocks as sheer, I wiss. While a skirt that's split up quite a bit For a Miss is not amiss.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Leading fashions are prone to be misleading when it comes to the younger generation and the American Miss is quite as prone to be misled. Sally School-girl and Susie Sixteen are replicas of their daintily dressed, or rather undressed mamas, and their slit skirts often show that as the tree is inclined, so is the limb.

Though the days of the simple book muslin and blue ribbon are long since past, some modified fashions for youthful wearers are still extant. A charmingly dainty little frock of for-get-me-not sprigged organdie is in good fashion and good taste. The short baby waist has a scalloped fichu around the V-shaped neck and a scalloped ruffle around the elbow sleeves. The skirt is set onto the short waistline with a scalloped heading and the scalloped ruffle around the bottom is set on the skirt with a similar heading. A banding of the blue ribbon runs through a casing of the organdie, binds the elbow sleeves and the waist and from the latter points the long ribbon ends fall from a knotted bow.

A floppy white chip hat wreathed in forget-me-nots and rosebuds, tied under the chin with black velvet strings complete this ingenue costume.

A party frock of pale blue chiffon, stamped with pink roses is made with a pannier overskirt of pink taffeta. The kimono waist of the figured chiffon is cut away in front over a round necked vest of flesh colored chiffon. A wired bow of narrow black velvet ribbon at the waist, adds a Frenchy touch, and the neck of the chiffon vest is drawn up with a black velvet run through heading. A leghorn with a ruching of blue malines encircling the crown and covering the brim is caught on one side with a La France rose.

A white wash crepe is cut on long straight lines with its low cut oval neck outlined with a little upstanding de Medici frill of net. The long sleeves are finished with a frill of the same and a prelate sash of coral satin, very wide, breaks up the dead whiteness with a splash of vivid color.

A chic little suit of rose ratine has a jaunty pony jacket whose distinctive feature is a yoke and sleeves cut in one piece. It has a cutaway front and a little turnover collar and turn back cuffs of coral batiste. The straight skirt falls from a deep black satin girdle and is worn with an embroidered coral batiste waist.

Cool and girlish is a dainty white dotted Swiss with a square low neck formed of wide cluny insertions. Bands of the same insertion divide the skirt into three parts and a soft sash of corn color satin girdles the normal waist line. The elbow sleeves are finished with bands of the insertion and a tiny bunch of orange satin apples is caught on the belt.

All of these suits and frocks are ankle length and in exquisite taste for the maid of sixteen and eighteen years.

Instead of painting the Lily or gilding the rose comes the announcement that furs are to be dyed with a mad riot of color this winter.

Visions of Emerald green fox, purple mink, and old-blue seal skin small one, and the thought of being in the grip of a magenta ermine neck-piece takes one by the throat. It's a good thing a cat has nine lives or it never could stand the strain of having to die and dye again before it is fit to warm a lady's jeweled fingers as a salmon colored Russian fox muff.

By this weird fashion perhaps even a leopard at last may be made to change his spots. Of course, it is a "furry" fad originated by Paul Poiret, and to be classy, you will have to accept without asking what fur. Possibly the only humans, however, who will feel at home in these colorful furs will be those in the habit of associating with pink elephants and purple mice.

Makers of small bicory handles for hammers, chisels, and the like, are now trying to use the waste from mills which make bicory spokes and pick and ax handles.

There is much waste in getting out the flawless white oak necessary for tight barrel staves. The forest service is trying to get manufacturers of parquet flooring to use some of this waste.

FISH HATCHERIES LOCATED.

Two New Plants to Be Built Next 2-20 PAGE—$300.

The commission has decided to leave the appointment of deputies to the county clerks hereafter believing they will be able to know the persons and hence make better choice.

$25,000 ATTRACTION AT MAJESTIC—MME. PEARL TANGLEY

Perhaps the greatest and most mysterious attraction that has ever appeared in this city, is that of Mme. Pearl Tangley, Seeress, who will appear all of next week at the Majestic theatre.

There have been acts shown that rival the best that the vaudeville country offers, but never one that is so mysterious, so full of the thrill that comes with the occult as the marvelous work of this little lady. She has studied under the high priests of Egypt. Although while not a pretender of any kind, still she may be classed as one who is able to govern herself by her first impulse or instinct. She will answer all questions that are asked her from those in the audience and it matters not where they are written or upon what paper. She works while seated upon an extended platform which projects out over the orchestra, thus eliminating all possible chances of employing the stock tricks generally practiced by the fortune tellers and the like.

CLEVER DOUBLE PLAY

This photograph shows the completion of a clever double play worked by the infield of the New York Giants on the Brooklyn Dodgers. Outshaw, of the Dodgers, had reached second base when Daubert came to bat. He made a short line drive off first base which First Baseman Merkle went after. Second Baseman Grant covering first. Grant sniped Daubert and with a beautiful throw caught Outshaw making for third, and the camera man snapped his camera as the runner was tagged.
