Coroner Jewett received a message from Seattle this morning to the effect that F. R. Hamlon, a resident of that city, will arrive here Sunday evening to claim the remains of his brother, John Hamlon, who was yesterday found dead in bed at a local rooming house. Telegrams sent to Oakland, Cal., yesterday brought no response and the coroner was finally compelled to telegraph to the deceased's mother at Meywood, Ill. It is believed the remains will be shipped east for burial.

Col. Hofer, former editor of the Salem Capitol Journal, played the part of the Good Samaritan while returning north on train No. 14, near West Fork today. Near the town of West Fork Mr. Hofer noticed a man, surrounded by a wife and four small children standing beside the track. During the delay of the train there Mr. Hofer talked with the husband and father and learned that they were enroute to Tillamook. The father was only recently discharged from a hospital at Grants Pass, and is in poor health. Without funds the family struck out on foot and reached West Fork this morning. Entertaining pity for the family, Mr. Hofer and a party of friends raised $20 which was donated to them. The family passed through here this afternoon and will probably reach their destination without further assistance.

The Commonwealth Quartette.

The Commonwealth Quartette will appear at the Antlers' Theatre on Monday evening, October 12, to open the season ticket Lyceum course. This quartette comes to us with the best of recommendations and it is certain that all who attend will be well pleased.

Season ticket holders will be allowed choice of any seats in the house with out extra charge.

Ellison and White, the managers of the Chautauqua, have this quartette as attractions in their bureau and guarantee that they will prove a satisfactory part of the Lyceum course.

If you have no season ticket and appreciate good music buy a ticket for this number.
