SHEER GRIT.

Score another success for the old Buckeye State, we don't believe that it could have been pulled off by a native of any other section of this great land. Again we say it, and with stronger emphasis, hats off to old Ohio and the former black swamp of its northwestern territory. All this exuberance is the effect, which has not yet worn off, of hearing the lecture by Ralph Parlette, that was delivered last Saturday night, to us and some fourteen others. On the basis of the lecturer's ably advanced theory, that we own just that much of everything in this world that we can use and enjoy, we figure it out from the attendance that was there, compared with what should have been present, we absorbed just thirty times as much as was our due, and enjoyed every bit of it. The lecturer has graphic descriptive power and a world of homely pathos; his assertion that he (meaning all of us) was absolute owner of the world, and the manner in which he used this possession, was inimitable. For instance, he said that among other things he needed at times, was oil; now he didn't have time to go out and build derricks and drill wells so he just let Rockefeller and Flaxler and Arch, bald go ahead and do that part, and they attended to it so well that whenever he needed a little oil all he had to do was to go to the nearest corner with a can and get it filled— for 20 or 30 or 40 cents as the case may be, and see what a vast amount of trouble was spared him. And so it was with everything, all we got out of our vast ownership in this world, is just what we can use or fit. In telling of his experience in the old black swamp region of Ohio, he did not know that right down in front of him was a fellow victim of those old age days, now happily gone forever. And so it went, from start to finish, the truths and fallacies of life were exhibited with force and depleted with reality, to that appreciative scant score of listeners, until the imagination could picture every seat filled with a cheering applauding multitude. And that is why we say in the beginning, that Ohio and the old black swamp scored a signal victory, for Parlette told us afterwards that he would have delivered that lecture, if he had to make it to us alone, and knowing also that we were present on an editors passport. Keep it up, Parlette, a thousand people here regret today that they missed hearing you.

MONEY FOR EDUCATION, YES.

Inasmuch as there is to be in a short time several measures of importance before the voters of Oregon at the coming election, it behooves the giving of these questions more careful consideration than is the usual procedure when voting for men as between men. One of these measures especially, should never have been forced to run the gauntlet of indiscriminate voting changes, it should have been so organically associated with the constitution, that its passage by any legislature would have meant its amendment, beyond the subject of any recall measure. We refer to the measure that involves the spending of public money for university extension. Surely there are not voters enough in this state who will cast their ballots against a measure of such vital interest to the present and future of the citizens of all this state, and jeopardize its acceptance. Education wider and more extended, is going to play an important part in the future of Oregon. It is going to be demanded more and more each year that passes, and with the younger and more progressive citizenship that will be asserting itself, the facilities to obtain it are not going to be hampered for lack of funds to carry on the work. This measure should be given the earnest and faithful support of every friend of progressiveness along educational

FRIENDS CONFIDENT VICTORY

Governor Names Lawyers for Un-skillfully Presenting Defense
—Both Sides Using Great
Pressure on Court.

(Special to The Evening News.)
ALBANY, Oct. 12.—Convicted that his defense has been unskillfully conducted, Governor Sulzer has practically broken with his lawyers in the impeachment case pending against him. The governor is incensed in particular by what he considers a virtual admission on the part of Attorney Herrick, of the defense, that he is unfit for the governorship of New York state, which admission was coupled with the contention that the unfitness was not sufficient ground for impeachment. Sulzer considers, too, that his lawyers made a fatal mistake in refusing to allow him to take the witness stand in his own defense. In speaking of the conclusion of the case the governor today said that if he were convicted he would never cease to blame his attorneys. Feeling is running high among friends of both sides in the controversy, and tremendous pressure is being brought to bear on the impeachment court, both for and against the governor. It appears improbable that a verdict will be reached before tomorrow, but that Sulzer will be able to get a pretty good idea concerning his chance of victory will be indicated in a vote that is scheduled for late this afternoon, when the governor's contention that the impeachment court has no power to try him for an alleged offense said to have been committed before his introduction to office, comes before the court.

Despite the fact that Sulzer has only eleven members of the impeachment court favoring him, when he will need twenty votes for acquittal, Senator Wend said today that he was sure the governor would win out in the final decision. While Wend was sure of the result, he gave out no figures, but claimed that Sulzer has enough friends to prevent his impeachment.

Johnson's Bond Forfeited.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Federal Judge Carpenter today declared the $30,000 personal bond of Jack Johnson, son, deposited when the negro appeared from the conviction on the charge of white slavery, forfeited. The bond was ordered forfeited when the burly pugilist failed to appear in court. Benjamin Bachrach, attorney for the negro, requested a continuance of the case, alleging that he was convinced that Johnson would return to America as soon as he had finished certain vaudeville engagements in Europe. Judge Carpenter refused to listen to the request.

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 12.

From an habitual criminal, showing at times tendencies to violent insanity, Jeff Lee, a prisoner at the penitentiary here, has been transformed into a quiet, gentle man, perfectly sane. The skill of the surgeon has made Jeff Lee a new man. Recently his skull was trepanned and a pressure on the brain removed. As a result, Warden Tynan today announced that his cure had been effected.

Until the operation, half of Lee's 20 years had been replete with criminal acts and periods of insanity. He went to the penitentiary in December, 1912, to serve from two to five years for burglary and grand larceny. He was sullen and mean; he constantly defied the warden and ignored the prison rules. Two months ago he attacked a fellow prisoner and when put in a straightjacket showed indications of insanity.

Until Jeff was ten years old he was a quiet, well-mannered, lovable boy. Then suddenly he became a veritable little demon, the terror of his neighborhood. He rapidly drifted into crime and spent most of his early years in reformatories. Recently Warden Tynan, questioning the man, discovered that his criminal tendencies followed immediately an accident which caused a depression of the skull and he arranged for an operation. Surgeons removed splintered pieces of bone and scraped the skull where it was pressing on the brain. Almost instantly the youth's life changed. His sullenness and meanness vanished and the sweet disposition of his boyhood days returned.

Warden Tynan says his intelligence also has improved wonderfully. "Jeff Lee's moral sense is what it was when he was a small boy," said the warden today. "He would not now consciously do wrong. What terrifying sight lead to none of us can tell. It might prove that hundreds of our habitual criminals are not criminals at all—merely poor sick men suffering from a pressure on the brain."

matters, it should be talked over, it should be voted for. It should be shown that in this respect this state was enough people who want to forge ahead and not stand still. This vote should show that the sons and daughters of Oregon will be loyal to their state, if the citizens will do their part, and not make it necessary for them to go outside to get that which they should receive at their home institutions. Study this matter up and see if you can not make a vote for the measure that might be against it, because they did not realize its importance.

BURNED AT SEA

Voltornos Abandoned by Passengers and Crew.

WIRELESS BRINGS RESCUERS

Survivors Taken to Various Ports—
One Hundred and Thirty Six Persons Thought to Have Perished.

(Special to The Evening News.)

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Latest wireless reports concerning the burning of the steamship Voltornos, Friday, in mid ocean, state that the hull did not sink, but that it is drifting about a constant menace to navigation. Admiralty ordered the British cruiser Donrria to locate and destroy the wreck. The fire that destroyed the ship was not thought seriously of when first discovered in the hold, but the flames gained headway very rapidly. Panic among the hundreds of passengers followed the discovery that the ship was doomed, and wireless messages for aid were sent to ships within reaching distance. The steamships Carmanlia, Minneapolis, Devonian and Kurfuerst responded to the appeal and headed for the burning ship, all arriving in time to take off the imperiled passengers.

Carmanlia in Port.

FISHGUARD, Oct. 12.—With a large number of the Voltornos survivors aboard, the Carmanlia arrived in this port today. Captain Barr's story of the wreck, together with a list of the survivors is expected to be given out soon. The steamer Minneapolis, with other survivors will probably dock at London tomorrow, and the Devonian, with still more of the Voltornos passengers, will reach Liverpool the same day.

Kurfuerst Sends Wireless.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Standing off Nantucket lights, the Atlantic liner Grosser Kurfuerst, in charge of Captain Spangenberg, began sending wireless accounts of the wrecked ship Voltornos today. The Kurfuerst has 103 survivors of the wreck on board, and messages state that she was the second vessel to reach the burning steamer. The captain of the Kurfuerst stated that two boats from his ship were in the water from Thursday night until 3 o'clock Friday morning endeavoring to reach the Voltornos. During the night the boats picked up 32 passengers and crew. At day break they rescued 68 more. Altogether the Kurfuerst saved 86 passengers, 2 officers and 16 of the crew. Wireless messages from the German steamer Seydlitz reported that they had picked up and had on board 2 officers of the Voltornos, five stewards, 1 saloon passenger, 16 sailors, 16 men, seven women, 2 girls and four boys who were among the steamer passengers of the Voltornos. One hundred and thirty six are so far reported lost.

French Steamship Has List.

HARVE, Oct. 12.—Wireless messages received here state that the steamship Latouraine, with a share of the Voltornos survivors, will reach this port tomorrow.

A few years ago the falling health of Chaplain Jones forced him to turn the helm over to Rev. Henry Hager, then pastor of the Euclid Ave. Baptist Church, better known as John D. Rockefeller's church. It is through the rector of the Euclid Avenue house of worship that Rockefeller gives much of benefactions. A short time later the boat was dry-docked in a barn and has lain there ever since. But now her original pilot has come back. A few days ago he attended services at the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church and spoke to the oil king and the pastor, Rev. W. W. Bustard, concerning placing the boat again in commission. It is said Rockefeller heartily agreed to aid in the relaunching.

In this missive Miss Carter arranged a date with Mr. Coates, claiming that she would meet him at Sutherland Saturday night. One paragraph of this letter asked Mr. Coates to secure a lower berth at Roseburg in order that they would not have to sit up en route to Portland. Apparently the couple had intended to meet at Sutherland Saturday evening on their way back to Portland.
