Per year $2.00. Six months $1.00. Entered as second-class matter November 5, 1910, at Roseburg, Ore., under act of March 3, 1879. MONDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1913. THE UP-STATE PRESS.

The following article copied from the Journal of Portland, is so apt, so true to life, that we reproduce it in full. There are still a few things that the Journal did not mention that could well be added, such as the steady patron who never pays, but gets from two to four copies every night, the citizen who makes complaints and suggestions, often meritorious enough, but who will not furnish their names, and who might give more, but these will suffice. It will be remembered that the "up-state press" referred to means all those other publications that are outside of the state's metropolises, the country weeklies, semi-weeklies and dailies, whose combined circulation reaches at some time the habitation of every person throughout the state.

The article is as follows: "The up-state newspaper men have been in session in Portland. Much is asked of them and little bestowed. The man who wants free publicity and gives nothing back in advertising, besieges all newspapers but none more than the up-state publications.

The mail overwhelms them with all kinds of copy with request that it be inserted free and marked copies of the paper be sent. Stock shows, horse shows, county fairs, church fairs, state fairs, school fairs, world's fair, charity balls, June festivals, health committees, charity committees, development committees, promotion committees, publicity committees, general welfare committees and every other kind of fair, show, exposition and committee showers the publication office with requests for free space, always holding out as remuneration the assurance that it is for the good of the community, never realizing that white paper must be paid for in dollars, that printers must have money for food, clothing and shelter and that publication offices cannot subsist on warm wind.

Along with the fairs and other free publicity folk, is the real estate agent who doesn't advertise but wants his name mentioned in every sale, the doctor who doesn't advertise because he says it isn't professional but wants his name as the surgeon in a case of accident, and the merchant who doesn't advertise because he says it doesn't pay, but wants the reporter to drop around and write up for the paper a description of a newly arranged show window.

In addition, there is the professional press agent who is paid a big salary because of his versatility in working the newspapers for free publicity. He is the cunningest, craftiest, man with winning ways, chaste smile, polished address and soulful eyes, and when he gets through with the up-state newspaper publisher there isn't much left about the office that the agent wants to buy, especially in the way of advertising.

In no activity in the world is there so much endeavor to get something for nothing as is attempted on the newspaper business. No activity in the world gives as much to the public gratis, and gets as few thanks back.

For all the boasting of the community, for all the constructive agitation, for all the struggle at reform, for all the appeals in behalf of public movements, for all the cheery puffs of the prominent citizens, for all the free notices, free insertions, free publicity, free exploitation, free advertising and free gifts of space and influence of every kind, the community expects in return to lay a few flowers on the grave of the defunct newspaper man when he is dead and let it go at that.

"No public servitor is more faithful and devoted, no citizen more sincere and but few figures in the community so generous or able as is the average up-state editor."

Mrs. Pankhurst, the noted English suffragette, has arrived in this country on a self-imposed mission to the woman of this nation. We say not advisedly, but rather think that notorious would have been in better taste. Aside from a few, and we should infer a very few, of the ultra drastic ones, it is to be questioned whether her reception will be as cordial as she anticipates, and whether her audience will not be composed of the curious than of the sympathetic. We have this much faith in the womanhood and intelligence of the women of our land, to believe that her ideas on suffrage, and her methods of procedure to obtain it, will not be accepted by any great number of them. The adoption of the tactics employed by this woman and her adherents in England, by the leaders of the movement in this country, would have the sure and certain effect of setting this cause back many years, and destroying the effects of all that has thus far been gained. Over enthusiasm on every proposition that arises can be found among men as well as among women, but the latter are more inclined to go to the extremes when thoroughly imbued with the subject. In the case of the extraordinary limits to which the English women have gone, under the leadership of Mrs. Pankhurst, it is the openly expressed opinion of nearly all the active spirits in the arguments for equal suffrage or women's rights, that these tactics will fail to obtain co-operation or recognition here. The women of this country have found out that the great progress in this direction that has been made by them in the past few years, has been accomplished by persuasion and argument, not by force and violence. For these reasons the advent of the Pankhurst woman and the dissemination of the means by which she and her votaries expect to gain their ends, should, as they undoubtedly will be, received with indifference and apathy.

"A race to New York," being the eleventh story of "What Happened to Mary." Will Mary win the fortune? This is one of the most thrilling of the series. Sell special feature "The Light of the Cross" in two parts. This takes you around the world with a hobby. Pathe's Weekly ends this wonderful program.

TO VOTERS OF DOUGLAS COUNTY. On November 4th there are, among other questions, two referred measures effecting the state university appropriations. These measures were passed by the last legislature after due and careful consideration, and were and are very important to the educational interests of the state at large and every individual person in the state. The buildings and equipment of the university are inadequate and the appropriations are sorely needed to maintain the university in its high standing as the first educational institution of Oregon. Do not be misled into the belief that to support these appropriations will increase your taxes. It will not, for the money it already appropriated and in the hands of the state treasurer. It is merely a question as to whether it shall be used for the purpose for which it was intended or shall it be frittered away on some useless commission. We want the university, and we want the best university we can support, because we need it. The movement which led up to a reference of the appropriations is nothing more than spite work and cheap politics. It is asking the people to abuse the power and authority in them vested in order to placate the petty spite of a few persons disappointed because they did not get what they wanted. If all the people rightly understood the motives which prompted the referring of these measures, Mr. Parkison and his cheap outfit would stand about as much chance as a paper shirt in a bear fight. W. W. CARDWELL. "THE LURE" PLEASES PEOPLE OF ALL CLASSES. To Be Presented At Antlers Theatre On the Evening of October 22.

Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, the famous suffrage leader and champion of women's rights, who has a national reputation as a fighter for all that is best for her sex, has come forth in a signed statement in which she declares "The Lure," George Scarborough's white slave drama, to be "one of the cleanest plays I have ever seen on the New York stage for a long time." She protests against such unjust attacks as that which was made upon it, because of its subject, and which caused it to be temporarily closed pending a needless police censorship. The fact that the play itself is one more being given in New York City and is again crowding Maxine Elliott's theatre there with fashionable and cultured audiences is proof in itself that this drama lives up to its claim to be an uplift play with a sincere purpose of moral reform. The opinion of such experts as the United States white slave commissioner and ex-Police Commissioner Binham of New York City, that "The Lure" is accomplishing much good must be offset against the inept opinion of a few over-parliamentary people who see immorality in anything handling a theme such as white slavery. "The Lure," fresh from its Los Angeles and San Francisco triumphs, will be seen in this city at the Antlers theatre on the evening of October 22. BORN. DAWE.—To Mr. and Mrs. A. Dawe, of 215 South street, a son on Sunday morning, October 19.
