University Measures Adopted—Compensation Act Safe.

SEVERAL TOWNS VOTE A DROUTH

Stabborily Fought Fight in Salem Results in State Capital Going Dry by Big Majority—Sheridan Dry.

ALL GONE DRY.

PORTLAND, Nov. 5.—Prohibition made great headway in Oregon in yesterday's elections. Salem and Oregon City, two of the largest cities in the state outside of Portland, were transferred to the dry column. Other victories for the "dry" were Springfield, Hillsboro, Ranier, Harrisburg, Woodburn, Walla, Dufur, Florence, Gresham, Stayton, Sherwood. In addition to these victories six precincts in Multnomah county voted dry.

Approve Measures.

PORTLAND, Nov. 5.—Late returns from practically all sections of the state today show that all of the measures passed by the last legislature on which the referendum was invoked in yesterday's special election were adopted with the exception of the sterilization act. It is not believed that complete returns will materially change the present figures. The two university appropriations passed by a two to one vote, and the workmen's compensation law was confirmed by a three to one vote. The county attorney measure carried by a narrower margin, but is safe. A light vote was recorded in most precincts throughout the state.

PORTLAND, Nov. 5.—Partial returns from nearly every county in the state at 10 o'clock last night showed that the referendum measures on the two state university appropriations, the county attorney act and the workmen's compensation act had passed and that the sterilization act had probably passed.

This means that the money appropriated by the last legislature for new buildings at the university at Eugene will become available for immediate use.

By adopting the workmen's compensation act the people of Oregon have provided for the creation of a state industrial accident commission of three members who shall provide a fund for the automatic compensation of workmen injured while employed in hazardous occupations. The money is to be raised partly by the state, partly by the employers and partly by the employees. Harvey Beckwith, of Portland; W. A. MacCall, of Portland; and C. D. Babcock, of Salem, were appointed by the governor members of this commission prior to the time the referendum was invoked. Now that the measure has been adopted their appointments become effective.

An interesting element in the result is the almost unanimous support given the university measures in Lane county—the home of the institution. The negative vote was so small as to be inconsequential. For 1810 votes cast for the measure there were but 7 votes against it.

Multnomah county came to the support of the university with a ratio of more than 3 to 1.

Polk Against University. Early returns indicate that Polk and Marion counties have gone against the university. In some other counties the vote is said to be close.

The sterilization act secured a majority in Benton, Douglas, Lane, Sherman, Union and several other counties but ran behind in Baker, Jackson, Multnomah and others. The vote against it in these counties was heavy and may defeat the measure.

Salem Is Dry.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 4.—Salem has gone "dry" by more than 400 votes. Seven precincts out of 10 give a majority for local option of 280, and it is believed the three that have not been counted will favor no saloons.

More than 5,000 votes were cast, about 2,000 of which were women. W. H. Trimble, manager of the campaign against the saloons, thinks the total majority for local option will be close to 400.

Early in the count it became evident that the prohibition sentiment had carried the city. In the downtown precincts, which were expected to roll up large majorities in favor of the saloons, the first 100 votes counted showed only a slight advantage for the "wets". As the count progressed the proportion was maintained, but the large majorities for local option in the outlying precincts soon settled the issue. The city hall precinct, which was expected to give more than two to one votes in favor of the saloons, recorded 294 against and 353 for the saloons.

The third and fourth precincts, also downtown, give disappointing results for the liquor interests. One outlying precinct went almost four to one in favor of prohibition. The vote in another was "Dry" 232, and "wet" 90.

The fight has been a vigorous and exciting one and the church people and anti-saloon element generally are jubilant. It was declared by several opponents of the saloons that the result here furnished an index as to how the state would go if a statewide vote were taken on the proposition.

W. H. Trimble, manager of the anti saloon fight, said tonight that prominent ministers throughout the state and members of the Anti-Saloon League would meet in Portland soon and determine whether a statewide election is to be held on the question at the regular election in 1914.

Before prohibition could be made a state issue, the home rule amendment would have to be repealed by the people and it is probable that the anti-saloon forces will try to have this and prohibition voted upon at the same time. They are convinced that the only way to make Portland "dry" in the near future is for the voters outside of the metropolis to do it.

Dalles Mecca for Thirsty.

THE DALLES, Or., Nov. 4.—The Dalles wet by 74 votes.

Many Towns Go Dry.

More than a score of cities and towns in the state voted on the "wet" and "dry" question with the result about evenly divided.

Falls City, Joseph and Oregon City have gone "wet", Salem and Hillsboro went "dry". Harrisburg also went "dry" as did Wallawa, Woodburn, Gresham, Ranier, Dufur, Sherwood, Long Wet, is Dry.

SHERWOOD, Or., Nov. 4.—After being wet a score of years Sherwood by four votes turned the tables and went dry today in a bitter and closely contested fight.

A total of 156 ballots were cast, 91 being men and 65 women. For prohibition 79 votes were cast, with 75 against it, two not voting.

It may be possible that the second university measure will carry when all the returns are in, but it seems improbable. In fact, most of the returns have been received from the towns, where the university measures met with the greater degree of success. In the country districts of the county the

YOUNG COUPLE WEDDED AT PRESBYTERIAN PARSONAGE AT NOON TODAY

C. W. Stump and Hazel Brown Are United in Marriage By Rev. Lux.

A quiet but nevertheless pretty wedding was solemnized at the parsonage of the First Presbyterian church, in Roseburg, at high noon today, when C. W. Stump and Hazel Brown were united in marriage. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Paul J. Lux, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and was witnessed by a few intimate friends of the contracting parties.

A. S. Ireland, of Olalla, was a witness in Roseburg for a few hours today.

WOULD SUICIDE

Mrs. Carrie Stump Drinks Vial of Poison.

IS FOUND BY NEIGHBORS

Leaves Letter in Which She Requests Her Daughter Not to Attend The Funeral—Hope of Recovery Entertained.

Apparently tired of life, Mrs. C. Stump, well known in this city, made a desperate, yet unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide, at her home at the corner of Lane and Pine streets this afternoon.

The first intimation of the woman's rash act came to light, when W. D. Duke, who lives almost directly across the street was attracted by cries similar to those of a woman in distress. Fearing that something unusual had occurred, Mr. Duke rushed across the street and entered the front door of the Stump residence. Passing through the residence in the direction of the chamber occupied by the unfortunate woman, Mr. Duke detected the following note pinned on the door:

"Walk in. Your first love is in this room at rest."

Satisfied that Mrs. Stump had attempted self destruction Mr. Duke notified Marshal Tom Williams, who responded in haste. Finding the chamber door locked on the inside entrance was effected by force.

On the bed lay the prostrate form of the woman—apparently in death's grip. Dr. Houck was summoned and upon arriving at the scene administered such temporary aid as was possible. Although rallying somewhat, Mrs. Stump was in a precarious condition late this afternoon and fears are entertained that she will succumb.

On a small table in the parlor of the home was found an empty vial, which from its label had contained a quantity of iodine. Another bottle showed evidence of having contained wood alcohol. That Mrs. Stump drank considerable of the iodine is evidenced from a partially emptied glass, which stood on a table near her bed. In the bottom of this glass was found traces of the deadly drug.

From all appearances the woman entered the chamber, locked the door, drank the poison and laid down on the bed with the intention of committing suicide. Her failure to do as intended was only interrupted by the quick action of those who heard her cries.

In addition to leaving a note pinned on the door of her chamber, Marshal Williams found the following letter (corrected) on a stand in the living room:

Roseburg, Or., Nov. 5. Clell Stump: "I am going to die and will leave all I have got to you, for my life is not worth living to me. You are all to me a bad trick. Don't have Mollie attend my funeral for I don't want her. So that's all. I will close now. Good bye to you and your wife. "From your mother, "CARRIE STUMP.

"P. S. Don't go and say that you love me."

That the attempted suicide of Mrs. Stump was due to domestic troubles is the general belief of those in touch with the case. In fact, only a few days ago Mrs. Stump ordered her daughter, Mollie, and a companion to leave her home. Since that time the daughter has been living at a local hotel.

Only this noon Mrs. Stump's son, Clell, was married in Roseburg to Hazel Brown. This fact, it is said, may have had something to do with Mrs. Stump's attempt at self destruction.

At any rate, just as Mrs. Stump's condition was discovered a messenger arrived at the Stump home with a note asking that the mother deliver over certain articles. This note was signed by Clell Stump and is at present in possession of the officers.

Bull Fights With Musk Ox About Cape Sparbo

"A day later, two musk oxen were seen grazing along the moraine of a wasting glacier. Now the musk ox is a peace-loving animal and avoids strife, but when forced to fight it is one of the most desperate and dangerous of all the fighters of the wilderness. It can and does give the most fatal thrust of all the horned animals. No Spanish bull of the pampas, no buffalo of the plains, has either the slant of horn or the intelligence to gore its enemies as has this inoffensive-looking bull of the ice world. The intelligence, indeed, is an important factor, for after watching musk oxen for a time under varied conditions, one comes to admire their almost human intellect as well as their superhuman power of delivering self-made force. Our only means of attack was with the bow and arrow. The boys crept up behind rocks until within a few yards of the unsuspecting creatures. They bent the bows, and the arrows sped with the force and accuracy as only a hungry savage can master. But the beasts' pelts were so strong. The musk oxen jumped and faced their assailants. Each arrow, as it came, was broken into splinters by the legs and the teeth."
