STAGE OFFERS BIG INDUCEMENTS SAYS MEMBER OF "PRINCE OF TONIGHT" CO.

Catchy Fantasia Coming to Antlers Theatre Tomorrow Evening—Big Crowd Promised.

"The opportunity the stage affords the young man or woman with talent is equalled by no other profession," said Miss Eva Carey, prima donna with the musical fantasy, "The Prince of Tonight" coming to the Antlers' Nov. 13.

"Where in this wide world would a child be able to earn the enormous salary that several younger stars are drawing in the large eastern productions today?"

"The average boy or girl attends school, then college, and oft-times takes a post-graduate course, which brings them into their twenties before they are capable of earning one cent for their training. It is then a question whether or not they care for the profession they adopt, and if they fail it is all for naught. Now take the little girl, for instance, who at the age of 16, possesses talent and magnetism, and who accepts a position in the chorus for the sake of an opportunity to gain an understudy role and display her ability, if she has the making of a soubrette or prima donna she will soon be on the road to success and with a salary that would surprise the world, for many a star is made in a night—just one opportunity and success is theirs. I do not mean to convey the impression that every boy or girl who can sing or dance should go upon the stage, but I do say the world is full of talent and those who are fortunate enough to possess it need not fear of going to the front, if they possess plenty of ability and some magnetism.

Miss Carey entered upon her theatrical career as a show girl. It is true that she possessed a trained voice. However, she went at it with determination and it was only a few months before she was playing leading roles.
