ROSEBURG GUN CLUB TO HOLD A TURKEY SHOOT PRIOR TO THANKSGIVING

Meeting is Well Attended and Considerable Interest is Manifested in Several Discussions.

At a well attended meeting of the Roseburg Gun Club held at the Clark Brothers studio last evening, arrangements were partially completed for a turkey shoot to be held a few days prior to the National holiday. Plenty of turkeys will be in evidence and all who attend are promised a good time. Other than local members of the gun club the shoot will be participated in by residents of Riddle, Myrtle Creek, Sutherlin, Oakland and other Douglas county towns. Invitations urging members of the various gun clubs of the county to attend this event are now being prepared and will be sent out in the near future.

Another matter discussed by the gun club was that of securing new grounds for the trap. The grounds, at present utilized by the gun club are soon to be plowed up, and notice has been served on the gun club to seek other fields. A committee has been appointed to secure new grounds and a report from the committee will probably be submitted at another meeting of the gun club to be held in the near future.

The local gun club has a live membership and the boys anticipate a number of interesting events during the coming season.

"PRINCE OF TONIGHT" WILL BE ATTENDED BY A LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD

Pretty Chorus Girls, Catchy Songs and Late Dances Are Sure to Please.

That a fat man is the most sensitive creature in the world is the contention of Frank Harsh, who weighs 390 pounds, and is playing the part of Daniel Stuart, an eccentric comedy, in the musical spectacle, "The Prince of Tonight," coming to the Antlers tonight.

To look at Harsh one would never imagine that he had been a soldier, his waist line of 160 inches or more, it would seem, could never fit into one of Uncle Sam's uniforms, but Harsh explains that his corpulence developed after his service in the Spanish-American war. If he had remained a soldier he would not now be an actor fat man. And which is worse, he asks?

Harsh, who has been playing comedy roles for several years, says there is a difference between a fat man and a man who is fat. The fat man according to his definition, is a fat headed slob, who takes great pride and pleasure in patting himself and gloating over his avoirdupois. On the contrary, the man who is merely fat feels that he did not achieve it, but that nature thrust it upon him. The actor says that his battle against flesh has been much warmer than any fighting he experienced against the Spaniards.

Mr. Harsh says, with grief in his tones, that he has found the old phrase "Nobody Loves a Fat Man" literally true.

"I have never married because I have never found anyone who would have me. If any nice girl wants to propose she may drop me a line care of the above company."
