MONDAY, JANUARY 5, 1914.

The affair at Copperfield holds .......... the attention of the citizens of Oregon at present, and despite the varying opinions as to many of the acts ...... of the governor in other matters, the fair minded, law abiding people must admit that in this case he is fully within his legal and moral rights. The governor may be eccentric and most peculiar in many respects, but It is the duty of all well minded citi- Drain last evening after a day spent sens to uphold him when he happens in this city, to get in right.

There is sometimes such a thing in this city, as making too valuable a discovery. This is the case of the diamond digger in one of the South African today, mines who found a clear amber diamond weighing a trifle over 178 carets, and is unable to dispose of it friends, on account of its immense value, although indisputably the rightful owner. It is even too costly for the hours today, American magnates
