SOCIAL DUTIES.

Another difficulty confronts the ladies who happen to be married to members of Congress or of the Cabinet at Washington, in the increasing multiplicity of social duties made necessary by the return of calls, and they are formulating plans by which it can be abated. Being a mere man, any suggestions we may offer can have little weight, but as a benedict of long standing, we can vouch for the strenuousness of formal calling in smaller circles than the congressional at Washington. Men meet haphazard for chats at their office or the clubs or favorite loafing places, according to their social and business standing or occupation, and the lines of eligibility are not so closely conformed to. In home places no set rules are necessary for the women to enlarge or curtail their list of mere acquaintances, and this may be large or small as the disposition of the individual may desire, but in official circles, etiquette has exacted much in the past, and is demanding so much more, that it has become not only burdensome but onerous, and close adherents to it have no time for any of the other many duties of life. Every community has its quota of well known women who neither extend nor receive purely formal calls, but who are welcome guests in every house at all times, and whose own home is ever open to greet her friends and where affection and stiffness are never a part. These are the ideal calls and home visits, where friendships are kept alive and confidences are exchanged, and there are few among the fair sex but can bring to mind such places where it is a real pleasure and relief to just drop in and chat after a series of purely formal calls have been ended. Such places are a part of the great social system not to be overlooked, but until the feminine natures and desires are changed through increasing occupation and enlarged duties, it is to be doubted that much difference will be made in preparations that the ladies make to attend Mrs. So-and-So's afternoon at home.

NOT ROSEBURG'S P. M.

"I don't know as I feel just like hurrahing for a government," said Uncle Cryus, who had come to the village postoffice to mail a letter and had forgotten to bring any pocket change with him, "that has got hundreds of millions of the people's money locked up in its postal savings banks and yet won't trust one of its worthy citizens for the price of a postage stamp."

TOUGH ON CANDIDATES.

"My mother made me what I am," said the political speaker as he proudly threw out his chest.
"Well," said a small man at the rear of the hall, "she must have put in most of her time at other things."

Gaspit. Yes, I'm a self-made man.
Cynicus. Well, I must say you are entitled to a great deal of credit for your charitable act.
Gaspit. What charitable act?
Cynicus. Relieving Heaven of the responsibility.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the republican nomination for the office of county judge of Douglas county, subject to the will of the voters, at the primary to be held May 15th, 1914.

A Red Nose Is Mortifying.
The red nose is a true danger signal. A simple diet should be indulged in the feet and ankles rubbed well every day. To keep the ankles warm it is well to wear woolen bands under the stockings. Rubbing the body from chin to toes with a hair mitten dipped in alcohol will improve the circulation and prevent a chill when going out on a cold day after a bath. In the open air always breathe deeply through the nostrils, and in this way many colds will be prevented. If these rules are followed the red nose will eventually disappear.
Make deep breathing a habit. It will improve the health as well as the appearance. Men seem to be ashamed to complain of cold and, as a rule, face the winter blasts bravely. They eat a good breakfast, take long strides and long, deep breaths, walk erect with feet and body comfortably clad. Of course they do not feel the cold as a shrinking little woman in low shoes, thin stockings and diaphanous waist would feel it.

Care of the Hair.
The hair often becomes unruly in windy weather. Curly hair when affected by wind or dampness can be coaxed back to its natural state. Wet the hair with hot water, push it up into loose waves and stick a little fine side comb into each wave, tie a soft veil over the head and allow it to dry. Never use hot irons on hair that is naturally curly.
If the hair looks dull and lifeless it requires oil and massage. The hair must be kept scrupulously clean to be either healthy or good looking. There is no danger of cold after shampooing if the hair is dried at once with hot towels, followed by a tonic and massage, as there is usually more or less alcohol in the tonic, and the massage causes good circulation, thus preventing a cold.

To give luster to the hair use five drams of castor oil, four drams sweet almond oil, six ounces of alcohol and three of any extract preferred. Drop a little in the palm of the hand and on the brush, then brush the hair.

Homemade Nail Paste.
A good paste to use where the nails are dry is made of sixteen grains each of powdered resin, table salt and powdered alum. Add a quarter ounce sweet almond oil, forty grains white wax and a grain of carmine. A little of this should be well rubbed into the nails every night and soon relieves the dry condition which causes them to break easily. As the manicuring should only be done once a week, this paste may be applied every night the week previous, and effects will be very apparent in a short while.
After the process as given is finished the nails are ready for the polishing process, and this requires care also, as if the buffer is used too long or too hard the nails will soon get very tender and too thin.

The Face in Windy Weather.
The face most often be exposed to the spring blasts protected only by a thin veil, which many times serves to make the lips and nose chafed more than if it had not been worn. It is a very excellent plan to use a little good massage cream before facing the cold winds, rubbing it in gently for only five minutes, then wiping it off and using a good face powder. Literally rub both in, for the powder and cream will afford great protection to the skin and not injure it, as so many claim. But, of course, the face must be thoroughly cleansed with a cream before retiring.

Dry the Hands Carefully.
Always dry the hands carefully after washing them. A very healing, softening lotion is composed of glycerin and one ounce of witch hazel. A few drops rubbed into the hands every time they are bathed before retiring will usually keep them soft and white. Soft, white cotton gloves two sizes larger than the hands require can be worn at night if the hands should be badly chapped, but if the lotion is rubbed in while the hands are warm and moist after bathing it will be absorbed and gloves will not be necessary.

The Eret Skin Tonic.
Exercise is a splendid skin tonic. A brisk walk, no matter if in the rain, will freshen the complexion, even as it freshens the flowers, and a simple aperient will do wonders for a muddy skin. It remains for all women to preserve such beauty as they have and to cure the defects which are peculiar to them or that time has wrought. Every skin is different and must be treated accordingly, and it takes a reasonable woman to experiment carefully and find out the proper method of treatment for her skin.

Spice Sachets.
Egyptian spice flower bags are the newest of the sachets. The bags are made of ribbon decked bolting cloth and are filled with fragrant flower petals and oriental spices. Old fashioned lavender flowers, which many housekeepers consider are almost necessary to give the required freshness and delicacy of color to household linen, may be put up in this way. Dried rose and violet leaves also serve the same dainty purpose.

QUO VADIS.

George Kleine's superb production of the marvelous photo drama Quo Vadis adapted from Henry Sienkiewicz's world famous romance, will be revealed in Roseburg for the first time at the Majestic for a two day's engagement commencing Friday night with matinee, every day including Friday and Saturday. Beyond a question of a doubt this is the most marvelous achievement up to date in photo drama and visualizes a story with the broadest appeal imaginable. Lovers of history will revel in the reproduction of the gorgeous pictures of ancient Rome with its magnificent palaces, its catacombs, the Arena and host of other interesting scenes and will enjoy the life-like impersonations of the famous historical characters, Nero, Tigellinus and others. Those who lean toward romance can absorb the beautiful story of the great love of Vintius for the sweet Lygia which turned him from a selfish pagan into a faithful Christian and the heroic sacrifice of the beautiful slave Eulalia for her brilliant master Petronius. Those who take their pleasure in excitement will find ample satisfaction in the chariot races in the Arena, the combats of the gladiators, the stirring scene where the Christian martyrs are thrown into the arena with the lions, and also in the marvelous picture showing the burning of Rome, one of the most gorgeous spectacles ever thrown upon the scene. And those familiar with church history will enjoy the visualization of the trials and sufferings of the early Christians, will strengthen their faith with the object lessons of Peter and Paul and the appearance of the Savior unto Peter as he is about to desert Rome and the Christians. Taken as a whole, this production does more for the scholar, the churchman and the amusement seeker than any entertainment that has ever been presented upon the stage.

WINDOWS BROKEN AND WALLS CRACKED

Other Towns, Feel Phenomena—Must Fight Mother Jones Case in Lower Courts—Files Declaration.

(Special to The Evening News.)

RENO, Feb. 18.—A sharp earthquake shock was felt here at 10:17 o'clock this forenoon and the vibrations from north to south lasted for half a minute. The tremor seems to have been particularly noticeable at Reno, but was felt at Virginia City, Carson and Verdi. A few walls were cracked and some windows broken here by the severity of the shock.

Hebeas Corpus, Denied.

DENVER, Feb. 18.—The supreme court, in a decision handed down today, refused to take original jurisdiction of the Mother Jones case, in which application was made for her writ of habeas corpus. She is held by the state military authorities at Trinidad. The decision compels her lawyer, if he wishes to press the proceeding, to do so through the lower courts.

B. F. Jones Candidate.
SALEM, Feb. 18.—B. F. Jones, of Roseburg, for the last four years register of the U. S. land office at that city, today filed a declaration of his candidacy for the republican nomination for congressman from the first district.

Vanderbilt Home Burned.
NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Mer. W. K. Vanderbilt's half million dollar home at Jerico, Long Island, with all of its furnishings, which were worth as much more, burned to the ground early today. The caretaker attributed the fire to an overheated furnace.

Investigate Associated Press.
HARTFORD, Feb. 18.—Asserting that the Associated Press is controlled by a clique of bond holders, and that it is mutual in name only William Dudley Foulke, head of the National Municipal League, and former head of the United States Civil Service Commission, appealed to Attorney General McReynolds today to act on the recent application of the New York Sun for an investigation.

Gill Popular Again.
SEATTLE, Feb. 18.—Hiram Gill, formerly mayor of Seattle, but who was recalled, at noon today had 10,000 lead over his nearest competitor in the mayoralty race. The nominating primaries occurred yesterday. J. D. Trenholm stands second in the race by 350 votes, and Gill and Trenholm will fight out the battle on March 5. Judge Richard Winsor, socialist, stands third in the race.
