HOW LENSES ARE MADE

If your head aches, if your eyes smart or blur, if your brain refuses to concentrate on the work you have to do, it's time you had glasses—the right glasses, the kind we would like to make for you.

Grinding lenses as we have them done places us in a position to give you a guarantee of satisfaction that means something.

After it has been determined by examination what kind of a lens you require, the rough glass is taken and marked with symbols which tell the expert lens grinders what must be done to give you lenses that are light, right and efficient.

This is the first step—grinding in the curves.

There are no secrets in our business. We supply good lenses because we believe that to be the best and have the facilities to do it right.

After a lens has been ground on both sides it goes to the polisher. This man takes red rouge and after much patient work that requires his constant attention polishes the surface of the lens until it is hard as flint and brilliant as a crystal.

Skill is necessary in every step of lens grinding. Not only are good machines necessary, but one must have skilled men to operate the machines.

After polishing the lens is inspected to see that it is free from flaws and bubbles. If perfect, the optical center is determined. This requires great skill and care. Should a mistake be made here it is very liable to cause you no end of trouble and annoyance.

You may need a round lens, while another may need an oval shaped lens. Getting a lens the right shape and size has much to do with its appearance and efficiency. The optical center having been found the lens is so cut, by special machinery, that the axis is in accordance with your needs. This cutting also gives the lens a rough outline of the final shape.

A great many times special hand work is required to give a lens the desired shape.

This man is "edging" your lens. The process of edging is a delicate one as it gives those smooth edges and the special shape which it has been determined will make the lens look as inconspicuous as possible when you wear it.

You wouldn't think it very important to drill a hole in your lens, but after being edge-ground your lens is drilled, a delicately adjusted diamond point drill being used. The hardest part of making a lens has now been accomplished. The least slip on the part of an operator drilling a lens means that all the work must be done over again.

PICK WHERE THE PICKING IS GOOD Just Now

The topic of the moment is Easter Togs, for Easter is the day of days for dress.

Fittingly So

For it marks the advance of the new season, the time to discard dull raiment and like Nature, look to brighter attire.

Of course you will want an Easter Hat, and this season's styles are really new, novelties in shapes, colors, finish and trimmings.

Then there are gloves, the ever popular and dressy, dressed and undressed kid in light and dull grays and various shades of brown.

Of course you will give the Easter shirt and tie attention for they lend the final touch to Easter dress.

All these Easter things we have anticipated with a special stock in each department, of which we welcome your attention.

LUNCHEON AT THE UMPQUA

Miss Mabel Albright entertained fourteen ladies at a delightful St. Patrick's luncheon, in the beautiful dining apartment of the Umpqua hotel this afternoon. The decorations conformed to the spirit of the occasion, including daffodils and Oregon grape. The blending of the yellow and green was most attractive. Especially pretty was the huge bouquet of daffodils artistically arranged in the center of the table. Unique place-cards of hearts and shamrocks were in evidence. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. J. W. Perkins.

Among the guests were Mesdames A. A. Wilder, Harry Stapleton, J. F. Barker, K. L. Miller, George Ritter, Steven Sanford, G. C. Findlay, J. W. Perkins, Seldon, and Misses Josephine Parrott, Velle and Harriett Barker.
