

MURPHY OUSTED

Chief of Tammanyites Deprived of Membership in Club.

MEN FAILED TO PAY THEIR DUES

This Fact Gave the Famous Democratic Club a Chance to Get Rid of Its Undesirable Members.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The complete downfall of Tammany Hall as a political factor in Greater New York is forecast as the result of the dropping of Charles F. Murphy and several of his district leaders from the roster of the National Democratic club, the greatest democratic organization in the city. But it was not generally known that the dropping of Murphy meant an actual money loss to the chief, by forfeiting their membership, Murphy and his henchmen lost their equities in the property of the National Democratic club, which is worth considerably more than a million dollars.

Non-payment of dues was the ostensible reason why Murphy, Thomas F. Foley, James E. Caffney and about one hundred lesser tammany lights were ousted from the club, but the real reason was that the followers of President Wilson are now in control of the democracy of New York. The fight for Murphy's removal as a member of the organization was engineered by Edward O'Dwyer, chief justice of the city court, who is an ardent Wilson adherent. O'Dwyer is president of the club. Some time ago he was asked if he and his friends would withdraw from the National Democratic club if they were defeated in their efforts to put the wigwag men out. O'Dwyer replied that he or one would not quit the club, because it would mean financial loss.

"It would be very unwise to withdraw," O'Dwyer said. "The club house and other property of the organization are very valuable, worth more than a million dollars, in fact. Individual members have an equity therein which it would be foolish to sacrifice to enrich opponents."

Through the strategy of O'Dwyer and his readiness to force the fighting, the anti-Murphy men were induced to drop Murphy and several of his most influential followers and the Wilson men say they have obtained complete control of the organization.

"I took this action," O'Dwyer said, "because Murphy and other tammany leaders are detrimental to the interests of the party, to good government and to the club." "Will they get back if they pay up?" was asked. "They won't if I have anything to say about it," was the reply.

As an extra slap at Tammany Hall, the meeting of the club's governors who ousted Murphy, elected to membership Gov. Martin Glynn, known to be with the president, who recently informed Murphy that he was no longer acceptable as leader of the New York state democracy; Dudley Field Malone, the young collector of the port, who despite the Tammany affiliations of his father-in-law, Senator James O'Gorman, made bitter war on the Tiger in the last municipal campaign, helping thereby to defeat Judge McCall, Tammany's candidate for mayor; Robert Adamson, formerly the late Mayor Gaynor's secretary, who managed the anti-Tammany campaign and was rewarded by Mayor Mitchell with fire-commissionership, and Joseph Patrick Tumulty, president Wilson's private secretary.

The cleavage between Wilson democrats and Murphy democrats has been more sharply defined since the club incident and close observers believe that war to the knife is on, the president being determined to dominate the party in the Empire State. It is predicted that henceforth the rich club-house on Fifth avenue will be the scene of administration pow-wows and that Tammany men will have to go back to the Fourteenth street wigwag for their conferences.

Seventeen of the twenty-seven governors who attended the meeting voted with O'Dwyer. It was the original plan for the administration men simply to drop Murphy, Caffney, Foley and a few others against whom they had real objections. Tom Smith, however, who led the fight against the ousting of his chief, spoiled the plan by insisting that all members who were derelict in their dues, should be dropped. The anti-Murphy men were forced to put through a blanket resolution dropping more than 100 members. The club has a membership of 750 and its home is one of the costliest and handsomest along Fifth avenue.

"It is all right," said O'Dwyer, "We are in control of the organization now and were not hurt by the blanket resolution. We can reinstate such dropped members as we desire to have in and can easily bar Murphy and his friends from reinstatement."

"We anti-Murphy men have known all along that the members have an individual equity in the club's property, which, with its wide frontage on Fifth avenue and Fiftyeth street, is worth considerable money."

"The Tammany men evidently overlooked that feature of the fight, and in their apparent efforts to embarrass the club by failing to pay their dues, left themselves open to being dropped."

PLANS FOR BUILDING SEPTIC TANK ON FARM

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Ore., March 19.—The purpose of septic tanks on the farm is to dispose of house and farm sewage without contaminating the premises and endangering the health of the owners. A great deal of the sewage that finds its way into the septic tank has more or less solid matter suspended in the liquid. If this matter is left on the surface or in the nearby soils it produces bad odors and disease germs when it decays. In the septic tank most, but not all, of the solid matter is liquified and rendered harmless by the action of the bacteria.

"In order to bring about those changes," says Professor T. D. Beckwith, of the Oregon Agricultural College, "it is necessary that the tank be composed of two compartments. One of these must be as nearly airtight as possible and the other well supplied with air. There must be no possibility of air escaping from the second chamber into the first. Many of our so-called septic tanks in Oregon have only a partial dividing wall between the chambers or only one chamber. Such a tank is nothing more than a cess pool that is a serious menace to health. There are two sets of bacteria whose work is necessary to decompose the solid matter. The kind that first attacks the solid matter in the sewage cannot live and work in the presence of air; the kind that finishes the work cannot live without air."

The details by which the foregoing results are achieved are not so complicated as one would suppose. A full account of the location construction and preparation of septic tanks for the farm have been prepared by the Oregon Agricultural College in Bulletin Extension Series Two, No. 8. Copies of this bulletin may be had free of cost by requesting them of Extension Director, Corvallis, Ore.
