

POLICE CHIEF

Orders Deputy to Blow up Smelter Plant.

WOULD CHARGE STRIKERS WITH OUTRAGE

Officer Alleges He Refused to Execute Instructions—Resigned His Position—Said the Work Was too Raw.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 24.—James R. Little, for many years a deputy United States marshal, in an affidavit sworn to today, charges that Chief of Police Huggins, of Ruston, near Tacoma, ordered him to blow up the transformer at the smelter works with dynamite, in order that he (Huggins) might blame the "outrage" on the smeltermen, who have been on strike for several months.

The strike started January 1, when 350 men walked out because their wages were cut.

The Ruston smelter is the only sea coast smelter of the big Guggenheim interests on the Pacific coast. Ruston is a town of 3000 inhabitants and is owned by the Guggenheims.

Little says he refused to have a hand in a scheme so "raw," and quit his job as special deputy sheriff at Ruston.

The former deputy marshal made a name for himself in Alaska, where for 15 years he was engaged in suppressing the liquor traffic among the Indians.

Was Out of Work.

"I went to Ruston," said Little today, "because I was temporarily out of employment and because police and detective work is my business."

"By arrangement I met Huggins that evening and he instructed me to report to him at 4 o'clock every morning."

"He told me I was to 'work' the three saloons to which he had given orders that no liquor was to be sold while the strike was on. 'And,' he added, 'be sure and get the green saloon on the hill, owned by Popritch, a Greek, for he is no good and a bad actor.'"

"I engaged a room at the Ruston hotel and posed as a gambler. That night Andrew Oronke was shot. I reported to Huggins that a striker had been shot and possibly would die and that, so far as I could discover, he was a law abiding man."

"Huggins replied: 'We got him, and we'll get some more of them.'"

"He told me to get acquainted with the strikers and if possible join their union."

To "Get Four or Five."

"The next night, the eighth, Huggins said: 'Little, I want you to get some dynamite and plant it under the transformer and get four or five union men near the place. When you have lighted the fuse call me and I will arrest the strikers and blame them. That is the only way to win this strike. You make your getaway and come back later and go to work.'"

"He told me that the prosecuting attorney, the mayor and the smelter superintendent wanted the job done. 'Tonight I will show you where I want the stuff planted,' he said. I then went to Tacoma and on the way decided I would have nothing to do with a thing like that.

"Finally I wrote a letter resigning. In it I told Huggins that he was 'too raw' for me."

SOUTH DEER CREEK ITEMS

At the regular meeting of the Grange last Saturday evening, which was an open one, the interesting feature of the evening was a mock trial in which one of the younger members of the grange was on trial for stealing a pair of rubbers from a neighbor. Needless to say, he was not convicted, even though the prosecution worked hard for that end. The balance of the program consisted of a reading by Miss Vernie Embree and several selections by the Grange orchestra, after which the ladies of the Grange served refreshments. At the next meeting, which occurs the first Saturday in April, the main feature of the lecturer's program will be a study of caring for baby chicks and turkeys and the building of inexpensive brooders, with special reference to the style of brooders used extensively by the chicken growers of Petaluma, California, where the chicken industry is highly specialized.

The South Deer Creek Sewing Circle met at the home of Mrs. C. H. Bailey last Thursday afternoon, when the ladies were entertained by Mrs. Herbert Miller and Mrs. Bailey. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Smith.

The plasterers are at work on the modern home being built by Mark Miller. Mr. Miller has completed the planting of 40 acres of English walnuts on his farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kruse are spending a few days in Roseburg visiting at the home of the latter's mother.

Farming is about completed in the valley for the season, and the grain growers have had an ideal season for the work. Spraying for scab is about completed and the growers of fancy fruit are getting ready to apply the first scab spray to their apple trees, which will have to be applied as soon as the buds begin to swell.

Miss Constance Moore is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lilburn at Roseburg.

YOUNG GIRL BOUND, GAGGED BUT ESCAPES

Is Seized While Returning From Moving Picture Show By Unknown Man.

HILLSBORO, Or., March 24.—The people of this city were much agitated last night by report of an assault on Miss Gladys Hensley, the 16-year-old daughter of John Hensley, street commissioner.

Miss Hensley was returning alone to her home from the moving picture show about 9 o'clock, and she says that when she reached the corner of Fifth and Oak streets a man jumped out from behind a telephone pole, grabbed her around the waist with one hand, placed his other hand over her mouth to prevent an outcry and loaded her into a buggy that stood by the curb, Miss Hensley fought to free herself, and after the man had driven several blocks she succeeded in throwing herself from the buggy.

N. L. Fletcher, a store keeper, heard her cries for help, and he hastily donned his clothes and ran to her assistance. He found Miss Hensley unconscious. Other men who were attracted by Mr. Fletcher's shouts, ran up and the victim was taken to her home. Dr. J. O. Robb found her badly bruised from her fall from the buggy, but not otherwise injured.

The night was too dark for the girl to see her assailant's features, she says, but she thinks he was a foreigner, as he spoke once to her in what she thinks was a foreign tongue. She thinks the man was intoxicated.

TEDDY GETS THE GUN

Weapon With Which Schrank Fired To Be Given To Colonel

MIWAUKEE, Wis., March 23.—The revolver with which John Schrank attempted to kill Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in Milwaukee, in October, 1912, will be presented to Mr. Roosevelt, together with five unused bullets which remained in the weapon when Schrank was seized and handed over to the police.

This was the understanding today, when E. E. Minter, who says it was he who wrested the gun from Schrank made a request to Judge A. C. Backus of the municipal court, in which Schrank was tried, for possession of the weapon.

Judge Backus granted the request, after obtaining a promise from Minter that he would hand the revolver and bullets to Mr. Roosevelt when the latter returned to this country from South America.

The Usual Result

Madison, Wis., Jan. 1, 1913. This is to certify that I have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism since 1894. Contracted the disease while working with a snow plow on the railroad. For several years I have been obliged to use crutches a great part of the time. Having used three boxes of the

I have thrown away the crutches and am now almost fully recovered. It certainly has done wonders for me and I heartily recommend it. Signed, M. D. REYNOLDS.
