

CANADIAN GIRL GOES TO FRONT TO WED WOUNDED SWEETHEART

Bridegroom, with his head bandaged, being congratulated by his bunkie, who had been wheeled out to grounds hospital to be present at the wedding. The bride is at right.

A war romance which is the talk of Winnipeg, Canada, where the principals of the story reside, has just resulted in the marriage at an English hospital of Miss Stonehouse to her soldier sweetheart who was brought back from the front incapacitated by wounds received in heroic action on the fighting lines. The bridegroom sailed from Canada with one of the first contingents leaving, as many another brave lad from Canada did, his sweetheart. His name listed among the wounded impelled Miss Stonehouse to leave her home and make the long journey of 4,000 miles to comfort her soldier sweetheart.

DILLARD

S. C. Miller and son, Floyd, J. A. Campbell and E. A. Hubbard left Saturday morning for Roseburg where they joined the W. L. Cobb party for a week's tour in the Bend country.

The historic Liberty Bell was well illuminated Thursday evening and the train slowed down so that the big crowd at the depot had an opportunity to see the cherished old relic whose passage through Dillard seemed to link more closely in thought our heroic past with our enterprising present and to dissipate all distance between the eastern and the western borders of our great nation.

Little Opal, three-year-old daughter of G. B. Laurance, had a finger nearly severed from her right hand one day last week by a knife which she had pulled from beneath a rained window sash that, in descending, caught the child's hand within which the knife was tightly grasped. She was taken to Roseburg for treatment and at last report it was thought the finger could be saved.

Mrs. W. L. Cobb and children are at the Miller home this week.

Rev. W. G. Miller, of Dillard, preached at the Brockway school house Sunday morning to an appreciative audience.

Mr. Tompkins, of Olalla, shipped a carload of cattle to Portland from this station the first of the week.

Finlay Green, of Seattle, is visiting his cousin, T. R. Green.

Miss Beatrice Rice, of Myrtle Creek, has been visiting Miss Margaret Weeks for several days.

Avery Roser and John Frye, two promising Brockway lads, called on friends here Sunday.

Miss Lux, of Portland, and Miss Jackson, of Myrtle Creek, guests of the Willis family on Rice creek, attended church services here last Sunday morning.

Several of the younger members of the Toush family came over from Brockway Sunday and spent the afternoon at the Hercher home.

The experiences of those who find it necessary to flag train No. 16 late at night, in order to meet an appointment or to reach a destination, are many and varied, but the trials of a stranger that were related to the writer recently certainly afford a fitting example of "a brave man struggling in the storms of fate". The story runs about as follows: It was a chilly night in winter and the lone traveler, evidently of ministerial calling, was permitted by the accommodating agent to sit by the fire in the depot while waiting and to use the agent's lantern for flagging the train, with instructions, however, to put out lights and close the station door upon his departure. After what seemed to be a sufficient long wait, the whistle of an approaching train roused the drowsy traveler to swift action. Following instructions, he carefully closed the door which, shutting behind him with a spring lock, caught his swinging coat tail, as in a vice. What should he do! He couldn't leave his coat and the train was near at hand! There was no alternative but to part company with that coat tail instantly, rush to the track and wildly swing the lantern. As the big engine came to a stop, he discovered that it was pulling freight cars instead of passenger coaches, and that he had unwittingly brought upon himself the maledictions of an angry engineer. To complete his discomfort, as the freight rolled by he found that he had sentenced himself to an hour or more in the dark on the cold platform with the warm waiting room locked up, all lights out, and his lamented coat tail flapping leeringly at him from the door post.

Likewise, a community can go after more business—and get it. The "clean collar and shiny shoes" of this town are the well-painted stores, the bright, cheery homes, the fresh, clean-looking buildings. The part paint plays in building up local pride cannot be put in figures—but its good effects are recorded on the local merchants' sales sheets. Buy good paint. We recommend and sell
