Increasing acre yields—the Gold Medal Alfalfa.

A billion dollars or so added in crop returns through improved alfalfa and fertilized crops as a topic of interest to the agricultural commission of the American Bankers' Association kept farm home bathrooms and kitchen conveniences still in second place. Chairman B. F. Harris said: "We will always remember that farming is a life as well as an industry and business. Let us, however, remember that effort and money spent in this cause of better farm life will be the most marvelous earning asset of a magnificent future. We are realizing more and more the necessity of increasing acre yields."

A sheaf of gold medal alfalfa that weighed thirty-two pounds, winner of first awards, showed what scientific methods had done and could do. The data supplied to Swift & Company revealed benefits of alfalfa to the soil and of fertilizers to the crops which gave promise of new farm wealth reaching the billion dollar mark. The "best alfalfa in the world" was grown by the Schwartz Brothers of Waukesha, Wis., who offered to sell any banker or farm owner how they have increased farm comforts, profits and crops by the scientific methods advocated by the bankers. Chairman Harris pointed out that it is only in recent years that the people, including a large percentage of farmers, have begun seriously to appreciate the dominating and the newer and larger possibilities of agriculture. "Despite our tremendous industrial development," he said, "and the 'trend to town'—nothing but our great food supply—which warriors as well as peace makers needed—could have turned recent international cash demands on us into balances in our favor."

who passed through Dillard last week, was known by his democratic admirers as "Honest John Burke when he was just a plain, ordinary, attorney-at-law and a fellow townsman of the writer, a decade ago. Then occurred a split in the opposing political party and other favorable conditions that made Burke governor of the state. He made good and was twice re-elected, serving for a period of six years. For sacrificing a possible chance of becoming the presidential nominee himself by swinging his North Dakota delegation into line for Woodrow Wilson, at the Baltimore convention in 1912, and holding them there from start to finish, he was rewarded with an appointment to his present office, and is now the custodian of our nation's coffers. Thus, another instance is afforded of that almost incredibly rapid ascension from obscurity to prominence so often found in the record of American politics.

DOUGLAS COUNTY NEWS

DILLARD

Rev. and Mrs. Rummell and little son, Paul, of Wilbur, have pitched their tent near the river and will enjoy an outing of several weeks among their friends here.

Some one carelessly tossed a burning cigar or cigarette stub from a passing automobile Thursday evening, setting fire to the dry grass opposite the Miller home. Mrs. Miller noticed the smoke and started an investigation which immediately resulted in a hurry call for all hands and the neighbors to form a quick-action fire brigade, and the flames were soon under control. Fortunately, the blaze was discovered in time to prevent its gaining great headway or reaching the barns on that side of the road. Otherwise, much damage would have resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. Fancher spent Thursday afternoon in Roseburg.

Vivian Buell visited her cousin, Eva Rice, in Roseburg last Thursday and Friday.

Floyd Lamb has gone to Klamath county on a prospecting trip.

Mrs. Neeley and Mr. and Mrs. Allison, of Roseburg, spent Saturday visiting old time friends here.

Mrs. W. L. Cobb and children returned to Roseburg Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker have moved in from the ranch and now occupy the Walker cottage.

Mrs. G. W. Gage and daughter, Gladys, of Roseburg, spent Sunday with Dillard friends.

Mr. Walter Gatchie has returned to California after a protracted visit with friends in this vicinity.

Mr. P. H. Black motored out from Roseburg and attended services here Sunday evening. He found a passenger to accompany him in his side car on the return trip.

The church is being treated with a fresh coat of paint this week, which will greatly improve its appearance.

Rev. D. B. Bowers held two services here Sunday, preaching his farewell sermon to a large congregation in the evening. With his family, he expects to leave Dillard for his former home in Tennessee next week. His many friends, while regretting his departure, sincerely wish for him and his a hearty God-speed.

Messrs. S. C. and Floyd Miller, Campbell and Hubbard returned Saturday from their 1,000-mile auto trip with W. L. Cobb and others, of Roseburg. They were gone just a week and besides traveling the entire length of Douglas county, going and coming, their route took them through Lane, Crook, Klamath, Jackson and Josephine counties. The tourists express much satisfaction with their excursion, but were travel-worn and weary when they reached home.
