

WEARING NEWEST SUN BATHING COSTUME AT FLORIDA RESORT

Mrs. Sidney A. Williams and her new sun bathing costume, at Palm Beach, Florida.

This novel creation, seen at the famous Florida winter resort, is of yellow silk crepe. The sleeves are extremely long, covering the wrists. The skirt is very short, seven or eight inches above the knees. The collar is rather high. Belt, cuffs and collar are of white linen, as are the French knee caps. The four-cornered hat is of yellow silk to match. The trim of the hat is of navy blue. The parasol is a Japanese model with black and white stripes and a touch of green. No more striking costume for sun bathing can be imagined.

WILBUR NEWS

J. M. Donnell was a Roseburg visitor on Saturday.

Thomas Gray, of Oakland is visiting at the home of A. B. Grubbe.

Won't it look cunning to see the men wearing sack coats draped over the hips?

The aid society met at the home of Mrs. Green on Wednesday for an all-day session, taking their lunch baskets and spending the time with doing different kinds of useful work.

The local W. C. T. U. held their medal contest on Friday evening. The girls who spoke included Marie Sands, Frieda Branniger, Clara Malvey, Myrtle Sidwell and Emma Russell. The judges were Mrs. Porter, Miss Martens, of Roseburg, and Mrs. C. Hill, of Portland. The medal was awarded to Frieda Branniger.

Mrs. G. W. Grubbe attended a social afternoon given at the home of Mrs. E. L. Henninger, of Oakland, on Wednesday. The rooms of the beautiful home were decorated with potted plants, and games of rook were the special feature of the afternoon. Mrs. Geo. Stearns assisted the hostess in entertaining. A goodly number of dainty refreshments were served by Eugenia and Josephine Henninger and Mrs. Floyd Watson.

The Parent-Teachers Association met on Friday evening and owing to the absence of the president and secretary, Mrs. Short and Mr. Russell, Mrs. Brown and Miss Mazie Walker served. After the business session the following program was given: Reading by Mrs. Cole; vocal solo, Kathleen Laruff; recitation, Thelma Brown. Refreshments were served.

THE KING'S GAME AT THE MAJESTIC TONIGHT

The King's Game, a five-part Gold Rooster Play at the Majestic theatre today and tomorrow, February 15 and 16, which served as a starring vehicle for James J. Hackett for a space of two years, finds itself very possible of screen adaptation in the hands of Arnold Daly and Ashley Miller. Pearl White, after a lengthy vacation, returns to her work with quite as much spirit as she displayed in the Elaine series through which she starred unwavering alacrity, and we might truthfully add, more charming than ever, Sheldon Lewis, too, is seen in the play, playing as usual the role of the bad man. With these three well known artists heading the cast it is needless to add that it makes a strong play.

The plot of the play originates in the unwarranted desire of the grand duke of Kiev for the pretty young wife of Count Dardinillis, a colonel of the Hussars, and the murder of the grand duke by Dardinillis. The accidental death of the wife of Dardinillis at the hands of the Cosacks while endeavoring to arrest the count is an added incentive to the hatred of Dardinillis for the house of Kiev. Taking with him his little daughter, he sails for America where he joins the Nihilists and plots to put to death Philip, the son of the murdered grand duke, who is being educated in America.

George Probert in the role of Philip adds a touch of humor to a play that is to all intents a serious drama. How he rounds up the Nihilists and falls in love with Dardinillis' pretty daughter and refuses to prosecute, makes an intensely interesting play.
