ROBINSON'S BIG CIRCUS IN TOWN

"Here they come! here they come!" The cry rings up and down the streets and the crowds press to the curb as the glittering parade of the John Robinson circus passes by and affords a fleeting glimpse of the many attractions to be viewed within the "big top". They are all there. The elephants, the tigers, the camels and the riders and the bands, wagons and riders all of which are associated with the circus, the institution which has always proven the greatest attraction to the American people.

The three trains of circus para-

PORTLAND CHAMBER OF COMMERCE REPRESENTED

Sam Josephson, secretary of the Roseburg Commercial club today received a letter from the Portland Chamber of Commerce stating that they would have several representatives in this city during the Strawberry carnival. Those named were E. E. Sharon, J. F. Hand, W. H. Young, C. C. Peterson, Dr. Byron Miller, K. J. Nolan, G. W. Baldwin, Theo. Anderson, J. D. Coxan, W. A. Wheeler, Robert Andrew, E. G. Work, Geo. W. Miser, F. J. Mendle.

phernalia arrived in this city this morning shortly before daylight, hardly had the wheels stopped turning until the horses were unloaded and were pulling the many wagons containing canvas, stakes, etc., from the cars on which they had been brought from the last stop. Within a few minutes the road to Hellows park was threaded by many teams drawing the heavy red wagons with their loads and each added a little to the huge tent city under course of erection.

Cook tents were erected and breakfast served to the 800 employees. Everything imaginable for the cars and comfort of the many people with the traveling performance was at hand and the lot resembled in every way a small city. The parade left the circus grounds about 10:30 and for half an hour paraded the main streets of town.

At two o'clock the tent was packed by the crowd to attend the afternoon performance which was one of the best ever seen in this city.

WAR IS DEPOPULATING GERMANY AND AUSTRIA DESPITE THEIR DENIALS

AMSTERDAM, May 22.—The war is depopulating German and Austrian cities, according to travelers arriving here from the territories of the central powers. They attribute the alleged diminution in the number of residents in such centers as Berlin and Vienna partly to casualties at the front and partly to the increased death rate incidental to the hardships the civil population has suffered. Statements that the public health is better in the war-stricken countries than before hostilities broke out are declared ridiculous.

From reliable and impartial sources, it is estimated that Berlin has lost 800,000 inhabitants, Hamburg 550,000, Breslau 200,000, Dresden, Leipzig and Munich nearly 33 per cent of their populations, Vienna 200,000 and Trieste, Lemberg, Prague, Budapest and Graz respectively 80, 60, 50, 40 and 35 per cent.

It is conceded that this loss will be made up in part when the troops return home at the end of the war but a large part of them are believed certain to be permanent.

Mrs. Lillian Bogard left this morning for Medford where she will remain indefinitely.

Ed. Hinkle, the well known mail carrier between this city and Peas today purchased a Buick six from A. D. Bradley, the local agent. Mr Hinkle expects to top off a few hours from his regular running time from this day on.

In the soft twilight, or as the deeper shadows gather, the song of "Juanita" always seems to soothe. The gifted authoress of this popular song was Mrs. Norton, a granddaughter of the famous Richard Brinsley Sheridan, born in England in 1808. Her songs of "Biggen on the Rhine" and "Juanita" were very popular. She died 1877 and lived to hear the echoes of her plaintive "Juanita" come to her from nearly every civilized country in the world.
