

Myrtle Stedman, the American Beauty

MYRTLE STEDMAN, PALLAS-PARAMOUNT STAR.

Of all the beautiful girls in motion pictures Myrtle Stedman has been selected by Pallas Pictures to portray the title role in "The American Beauty," now being produced for the Paramount Program. That Pallas Pictures have chosen wisely is evidenced by one glance at the above picture, which in itself, however, does not do Miss Stedman full justice in that it only portrays her beauty. The talent of this popular screen star can only be appreciated by the many thousands who have seen her in such productions as "The Wild Olive," "Peer Gynt," "The Reform Candidate" and other photoplays of equal prominence. In "The American Beauty" our pretty blonde heroine is given the greatest opportunity of her career as an actress. In this film she portrays the parts of mother and daughter in the same scene by means of what is conceded to be the most remarkable "double exposure" work ever presented on the screen. In one scene she actually embraces and kisses herself. For these characters Miss Stedman was compelled to make eighteen different changes of make-up in one day. A big production is promised by Pallas Pictures in "The American Beauty."

PORTLAND MARKET REPORT.

PORTLAND, June 21.—Cattle receipts fairly heavy although not as heavy as last Monday, about 3100 head being on the market. Quality in main was anything but choice. Good steers were steady with best selling at $8.25. California brought $8.00 on down for rather inferior offerings except for well finished cattle the market was slow.

Hogs.

Nearly 4,000 hogs saw a higher market today. Tops were again at $8.25 with bulk going a good nickel to a dime higher than last week's close. Market closing strong.

Sheep.

There was a very sizeable run of sheep today—nearly 3,000 head. The market was not very strong. Lambs sold steady but other sheep were weak. Lambs are quoted $9 to $9.25 for best quality.

From the Grove creek valley we hear the most favorable news of the mining boom that is on. A call for practical miners is an advertisement in one of our weeklies, and it indicates a return to the days of the 60s when miners could go out and "pan out" enough gold for their months' supplies in about 15 minutes and rest the remainder of the time. At any rate the mines of southern Oregon are gold producers and form a prominent part in our prosperity.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Following is a summary of the crop conditions in Oregon for the week ending June 20, 1916, as reported to the local office of the weather bureau by special correspondents throughout the state:

Unusually warm weather prevailed the first four days of the week, which was followed by a sudden change to cooler with general rains. Fall wheat is now heading and considerable barley has already headed. Fall wheat was damaged somewhat by the hot weather, but correspondents differ greatly as to the extent; some say that on heavy land suffered the most, while others think it was hurt worst on light land. The cool, wet weather was very beneficial and undoubtedly saved the fall wheat crop from serious injury. Corn made splendid growth during the warm days and it was also greatly benefited by the rains. Cut worms are reported as more numerous than usual in the corn fields in a few localities.

A large proportion of the first crop of alfalfa has been cut, and some was damaged by the recent rains while being cured. The second crop of alfalfa is doing nicely and promises to be better than the first crop. Meadow grasses have, on the whole, made satisfactory progress, except in some few places where growth has been very slow on account of the previous dry weather. Pasturage continues good and stock is in fine condition.

The rains have been of great benefit to spring wheat, potatoes, gardens and in fact to all late sown crops. Quite a large amount of clover has been cut for hay and most of it was secured in good condition. Tree fruit did well during the week, especially apples and prunes. The strawberry harvest in the low valleys is about completed, but in the higher valleys it is in various stages of progress. This crop did not turn out so well as expected, either in quantity or quality.

HIGH PRICES HAVEN'T CURBED DRINKING IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, June 20.—High prices and drastic restrictions have done little if anything to curb drinking in England. Some authorities say there has been an increase. There has been much controversy over the question. Advocates of rigid regulation or total prohibition maintained the new rules has made the country more sober. Their opponents denied it.

The United Kingdom Alliance, a neutral organization devoted to the compilation of all sorts of social statistics which the country supposedly ought to know, has finally submitted definite figures. Before the war the "pubs", saloons, were open nineteen and a half hours daily, from 5 a. m. until 12:30 a. m. Today they are open five hours and a half daily. No intoxicants may be sold before noon; none between 2:30 and 6:30 p. m.; none after 9:30 p. m. Trading also has been strictly prohibited. These regulations are enforced energetically. The United Kingdom Alliance's records show that drinking was decreased in 1915, by 8 per cent, compared with 1914, and 19 per cent compared with the last full peace year, 1913. It is pointed out, however, that this reduction is offset, or more than offset, by the fact that from 750,000 to 1,000,000, the soldiers, were out of the country.

The increased percentage of reduction is attributed to the increased number of men sent abroad.

Expenditures for drink have increased, owing to higher prices. In 1914 the total was something over 144,000,000 pounds, about $220,000,000. In 1915 it was 132,000,000 pounds, or about $210,000,000.

C. M. Fleming and Mrs. C. G. Frey, of Merrill, were in the city yesterday attending to business matters. They returned home this morning.
