Sketches of first row of "spectator jurors" at Orpet trial.

Day after day the women sketched here have appeared at the murder trial of Will Orpet at Waukegan, Ill., and occupied the front row whenever possible. Apparently they have already made a decision, and it is in favor of the young man who is accused of poisoning his sweetheart.

FOOD IN GERMANY.

BABIES EAT CARROTS.

ROTTERDAM, Holland, May 25.—(By Mail.)—Babies seven months to a year old are eating carrots, apples and spinach in Germany. Other folks besides the babies are having food troubles. These food stories will tell about them all. If you watch the consulates here and keep your eyes off the incoming trains you can meet every day a scant few persons who have just come from Germany and who will gladly tell you what experiences they have in their kitchens, dining rooms and stomachs since the food stringency in Germany became noticeable. These travelers feel themselves heroes, as, indeed, you come to regard them, in a manner of speaking, when you see them abandon themselves to a full, man sized meal here. Travelers to Berlin, especially the American writing and, live at the best hotels. They return with stories of plentiful and excellent food. Berlin is the wartime show place of Germany and the hotels where writers go are the wartime show places of Berlin. What the American writers have said of the plentifulness and the excellence of the food, is not necessarily true. Here in Rotterdam you have the truth, straight from the dining rooms and kitchens of civilians in every part of Germany. It indicates that life in Germany is uncomfortable, highly so for a civilian who is keeping house.

Here's a Swedish mechanic from Germany, running around Rotterdam filling his arms with packages of bacon, bottles of olive oil and rice. Perhaps the Hollanders will refuse him permission to take these things across the border but, "I'm going to make a try of it," he says. Here's a pretty American girl dining alone in a Rotterdam restaurant. She's studying music in Berlin. "I've just run over to Holland to spend a week eating," she says. Here's a Spanish woman with three little children. "I brought the baby down to get him some milk. He is tired of carrots, spinach and apples. No wonder: he is only seven months." And here are Germans—rich, elderly, retired Germans—who haunt the doorways of the hotel restaurants, waiting for the American plan dinner bell to ring and who seem to be always eating, even at the hated English tea hour. They are here a week, then they go back to Germany. Germany, civilian Germany is hungry. Not hungry for victuals, because victuals are anything a human being can eat and digest, but for decent food like meat and wheat and milk and animal and vegetable fats.

Is It Harem or 1830? BLANCHE SWEET, LASKY-PARAMOUNT STAR. Appearances ARE deceiving in this instance. Of course Blanche Sweet isn't just stepped out of the loins of a screen sultan, though she is wearing quaint pantalottes of creamy shadow lace over satin. She probably got the inspiration from her grandmother. At any rate the camera-man caught her off-stage in a moment when she was indulging her preference for pretty clothes. The Lasky-Paramount star appears emerging from a cloud of white tulle. Her tiny cap sleeves are caught over the shoulders with strands of pearls.
