HITS P. O. MANAGEMENT

Senator Hardwick, of Georgia, handed Brother Hurlston and his numerous assistants a hot one recently on the floor of the senate. He said: "I want to tell my friend from Florida (Senator Bryan) that if my state was not as certainly democratic as it is the conduct of the postoffice department in that state would have lost it to the democratic party, and, as it is it may cost it many votes, although, thank God, we can stand it and still have plenty to spare. If it were a state in the middle west it would be impossible for the democratic party to carry it, with any such administration of the postoffice department as we have had there, in respect to this matter of this rural mail service."

The state of Georgia is not alone in its complaints regarding the administration of the postoffice department. Never since the organization of the postoffice department by Benjamin Franklin has such gross inefficiency been exhibited as under the Hurlston-Roper-Blaklee regime. Members of the house and senate are swamped with correspondence from their constituents protesting against the punk service they are receiving. As a campaign issue the postoffice department makes a good republican asset.

ZEPPELIN TORPEDO FAILED TO EXPLODE

After a bombardment.

This photograph shows the type of huge, ugly torpedoes that the Zeppelins project upon the enemy in their soaring bombardment of trenches, woodlands where companies have sought hiding places and protection, and upon clumps of foliage that perchance mask enemy batteries.
