Entered as second-class matter November 5, 1909, at Roseburg, Ore. under act of March 3, 1879.

MONDAY, JANUARY 21, 1917.

The dollar that the merchant saves by not advertising usually goes for interest on the note necessary on carrying the goods over.

After mature reflection on their sins, many people are keeping the New Year's resolve not to be any better than they ought to be.

If they can prove that any congressman got the advantage of the leaks to the stock market, a lot more people will want to get into congress.

"Going farther and faring worse." How truly this title old phrase applies in buying home supplies. People will pay far more to some distant city, exhaust themselves with a day of shopping, waste valuable time, and return with goods they could have bought better at home.

The letting of a contract by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to a British firm for a large quantity of armor-piercing projectiles, has brought on that official's head a storm of protest from American manufacturers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellington arrived this afternoon from Grants Pass and will visit in this city for several days with Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Myers.

R. P. Rasher, of Days Creek, who has been receiving medical attention at Mercy hospital, was released today. He was under the care of Dr. E. B. Stewart.

Owen Gordon and Ross Bates today celebrated their sixth birthdays by a joint party of their immediate friends. It is needless to say they spent the afternoon enjoyably.

The Indian office reports that a large shipment of prunes from the local Drager packing house was made today the prunes being shipped to various Indian agencies throughout the country.

City Health Officer B. R. Shoemaker reports that there are several cases of chicken pox still in the city. It has been discovered that several have not been reported and he asks the co-operation of all citizens in the effort to stamp out contagion.

Attorneys Dexter Rice and O. P. Coshaw leave this evening for Salem where they will appear in the case of Caro vs. Wollenberg which comes before the supreme court tomorrow.

MONTHLY AND ANNUAL METEOROLOGICAL SUMMARY, 1916, ROSEBURG, OREGON

Table with columns: Months, Temperature (Mean, Highest, Lowest), Precipitation, Weather (Clear, Partly Cloudy, Cloudy), Wind (Hourly Velocity, Prevailing Direction). Rows for each month from January to December, plus a Year total.

The average temperature for the year of 1916 was 52.5 or .4 below the normal for 39 years record, and the total precipitation from rain and snow for the year was 33.45 inches or .33 below the average of 39 years record.

The months above the normal temperature were February, March, April, June, August and September. There were 47 days with a minimum of 32 degrees or below or 13 days above the average 39 years record, and 13 days with a maximum of 90 or two days above the average.

January recorded the lowest mean temperature, and also an excessive fall of snow, 20.8 inches (unmelted) fell during the month. February was decidedly warmer with no snow; March was not quite so warm, although the temperature was slightly above the normal with a little snow in the fore part of the month.

The lowest temperature during the year was 18 degrees above, which occurred on the 13th of November, and the highest recorded was 101 degrees, which occurred on August 24.

The longest period without rain during the growing season (days of .01 inch being omitted) was from July 17 to August 16 inclusive, making 31 days.

Longest period with precipitation was from January 4 to February 11 inclusive or 23 days, although the rainy days were frequently interspersed with sunshine.

The unprecedented heavy rain in July occurred mostly on the 15th and 16th with the exception of .51 inches falling on the 1st of the month. However this gave abundant moisture for all growing crops, especially to corn, potatoes and fruit. This was followed by a long dry spell which continued to the latter part of October, with only light showers intervening. During this latter period the weather was ideal for the orchardists in picking and shipping their heavy yield of fruit.

Owing to the dryness during the fall months, the soil was unfavorably for plowing and fall seeding, although considerable work of this class was accomplished during the succeeding two months.

The last killing frost in spring occurred April 12, and the earliest killing frost October 4, making 155 days of growing weather for the season, which is 73 per cent of the growing season for the 39 years record. With the exception of the year 1908, this has been the shortest growing season on record.

CAMAS VALLEY PIONEER PASSES TO THE BEYOND

Mr. D. J. Harris, of Camas Valley, died January 19, at 4:30 a. m., his age being sixty-eight years, ten months and three days. Mr. Harris was a man of good habits, kind disposition and a clean character. He did considerable thinking and said little, therefore being a man of few words, we do not know what his religious belief was other than he was a strong believer in the Bible and tried to live his life according to its teaching. He was born in Cleveland, Ohio, March 15, 1849, and came to Camas Valley in 1906, having lived here since that time, making his home with Mr. and Mrs. William Murray. His sickness was of short duration, being a paralytic stroke. He leaves a wife, two sons and one daughter to mourn his death. His wife and one son living in Los Angeles, Cal., one son in New York, and a daughter in New Jersey. Funeral services were held in Camas Valley, January 20, at 11 a. m., where the body was also buried. The services were conducted by Rev. M. E. Ferdinand.

CARLOAD OF FORDS RECEIVED.

W. A. Burr, of the Ford agency, this afternoon received a car load of Fords from the Portland assembling plant. He has already disposed of nearly half of them and expects to sell the remainder within the next few days. The car shortage has made it hard for him to receive shipments and this is the first he has been able to get for several weeks.

O. T. Larson, manager of the Roseburg Sand and Gravel plant, announced today that he had been forced to close down for a short time on account of the car shortage.

Mrs. C. H. Davies, who has only recently completed the remodeling of the interior of her millinery shop on Cass street is planning an opening to be given in the near future.

SOME GOOD ADVICE TO ADVERTISERS Read It All Through!

There is no other space in a newspaper that contains as much real value to the reader and will result in saving money and time to him or her than the advertising columns. The "News" would not feel like asking its patrons to use space in giving publicity to their merchandise, if it did not appreciate the value of this space for its own use. Advertisers who buy space in the

can be assured that their notices will go into the best homes of the county and more of them than at any previous time in the history of this publication. The management can confidently assert that no other paper in the county has as large a circulation among people who pay for it regularly--and that is what makes the best customers. Extra features are being arranged for during the coming year which will add to the value of the "News" as the best home journal in Douglas County

Advertisement for THE UMPQUA VALLEY BANK. Text: YOUTHFUL FRUGALITY MEANS HAPPY OLD AGE. Every young man should have a bank account. Youth and energy are all right. But more is needed in this rapid age of competition. The young man must have capital if he wants to make a mark in the business world. If you are making a good salary today, be ready for that business opportunity. If you are in business, be prepared with a bank account for an extension of your business. Ready cash is business preparedness. THE UMPQUA VALLEY BANK. B. W. Strong, President; J. M. Throns, Cashier; D. R. Shambrook, Vice President; Roland Agee, Vice President.
