GOOD ROADS.

When Caesar took an eastward ride and grabbed the Gauls of Rome What was the first thing that he did to make them feel at home? Did he increase the people's loads and liberty forbid? No! he dug in and built good roads—that's what old Caesar did.

Did Caesar put the iron heel upon the farmer's breast? Or did he try to make them feel that Roman rule was best? What did he do to make them glad he came their lands amid? He built good roads in place of bad—that's what old Caesar did.

He built good roads from hill to hill, good roads from vale to vale He ran a good roads movement 'till old Rome got all the kille. He told the folks to buy a home, build roads their rats to rid. Until all roads led up to Rome—that's what old Caesar did.

If any town would make itself the center of the map, Where folks will come and settle down and live in plenty's lap, If any town its own abodes of poverty would rid, Let it go out and build good roads—just like old Caesar did.

VEXATION OF SPIRIT

So long and earnestly I've wrought, Pursued the beastly grind, I've ringhoned on my dome of thought, And spavins on my mind. The ghastly fear of evil times, Of poverty when old, Has kept me hunting after gold, I have a pocket full of worry, Where none can jar it loose, And sometimes at the close of day I wonder what's the use? Throughout this weary worldly jaunt I've skimped and saved and pared— I've done without the things I want, The things for which I cared, To add one round dollar more To what I have in brine, I've made existents sad and sore, And what reward is mine? Why do I slave and toil and grind, Why do I toil and spin? I'll have to leave my roll behind, For others to blow in. These words seem ever ringing loud, Like some decree of doom: "There is no pocket in a shroud, No cash box in a tomb."
