SATURDAY, JULY 21.

HARDEN MUZZLED.

The bravest and noblest voice in Germany has at last been silenced. Saxmillian Harden, the brilliant editor of Zukunft, has been ordered by imperial decree to write no more during the war.

When such a man is muzzled, the world may well question the sincerity of any program of political, social or military reform put forward by the government.

It was Harden who warned the German government, time and time again, that its treatment of the United States would drag this country into the war.

He called upon his fellow-countrymen to make their own house habitable and not an eyesore to the world. He preached a return to the higher spiritual values that had animated the older Germany.

"How long?" Harden was accused to ask, in his eloquent philippics. How long will the German nation continue to endure such tyranny without protest, and tetter on blindly to its own ruin?

PRICE FIXING.

The conservative gentlemen who object on principle to governmental price-fixing might do well to ponder the fact that the Chicago Board of Trade has just fixed the price of corn, by establishing a maximum trading price for it, and is likely to fix the prices of other important cereal crops in the same informal way.

Prices will be fixed, never fear. They are being fixed now with a vengeance, and its going to require a Herculean effort to undo them on a popular and equitable basis.

Four hundred years of Turkish rule have made a howling desert of the richest country in the world. Take, for instance, Mesopotamia. Barely one-tenth of the land there is cultivated today and only in the most primitive manner.

The chautauqua has closed. The program given to the Roseburg public was heavy—from the standpoint of public orators—but quite light and witty from many other points of view.

Reports from many cities indicate a striking decrease in the quantity of garbage collected, and in the amount of fats and nitrogenous matter it contains. In Buffalo and Cleveland, during a period of two months, the amount of fat recovered from the garbage has decreased 40 per cent.

The United States army is relentless in its pursuit of the high cost of living. According to figures given out by General Smith of the quartermaster's department it costs almost three times as much to feed an American soldier today as it did in the Spanish-American war.

In these days of fast living there are many "fast" writers whose utter disregard for the truth and veracity of their utterings is so "strong" it leads the public to believe "ah that glitters is not gold."

It's got so that the economical housewife can split a pie evenly among a family of nine or 10 persons.

Vacation at Brewster. Bright and early tomorrow morning Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Huffman and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Russell will leave for Brewster where they will camp during a well-earned two-weeks' vacation. During their absence Mr. Russell's situation at The News office, as linotype operator, will be occupied by Frank Lawrence, of Salem, who is a brother of State Printer Lawrence.

Want War Song. Local members of the 4th company and hospital corps have the little bee buzzing in their bonnets these days, for the suggestion has been made that the local organizations have a war song to be used by them exclusively. It is probable that some popular song will be chosen and a parody written for it.

Hikers Coming. Roseburg will soon be visited by three girl hikers who left Portland yesterday enroute south. The three girls are Betty Roser, Ruth Helmes and Jean Paulson, of Seattle, and they have as their destination San Francisco. They are on the trip purely for the novelty of it and from reports coming from up the line, they are having a fine time. They are equipped only with a knapsack and blanket each, and between them one revolver. They will probably remain in this city a short time.
