SUPPORTING U. S. A. WORK.

The drive for the army U. S. A. fund is on in earnest in this city and surrounding vicinity. Those in charge of this very important work for our soldier boys are putting every effort forward to meet the full quota—and more, if possible. They are giving their own time, to the great cause and are making many sacrifices that their energies may make some soldier boy who is fighting our fight on foreign soil appreciate the fact that the "tag of home" are even thoughtful of the welfare of those serving in French line.

But, are the people of Roseburg and vicinity responding to this wonderful work with the true patriotic spirit that they should? The campaign is almost half over and up to last evening the total sum subscribed amounted to only $257.73. This is the report from the Roseburg committee, and in view of the high school students, who have already raised over $400, this quota being but $159.

It is quite true that our people have been called upon for large sums of money to support the various branches of the nation in its terrible struggle against the enemy and hear this fact in mind the end is not yet.

It takes some people a long time to get used to supporting the government, especially when it comes to finances. The "social patriot" in some "poor" until your hand reaches his purse strings, then all the ex-claims of patriotism disappear, and it is by magic, and he is as docile as a lobster.

This war must be carried on—every individual must do his duty financially and otherwise, and the U. S. A. work is one of the very paramount features in connection therewith. A veritable rainbow to the tired, homeless and mud-beattered soldier whose energy has been exhausted on the firing line—the nearest thing possible to the comfortable home that he once enjoyed—a work that carries, at long range, into the additional heart of the soldier and makes life purer and better for him. It is a work worthy of the most generous support—a work that must be carried out in order to wage a successful war.

general co-operation in a suspension during the conflict of "all efforts not designed to help directly in winning the war." It is the obvious duty of all officials and private citizens to accord this co-operation. It is for another of the many cases in which the man who does not wear a uniform may serve, and where all the people will have an opportunity to display their patriotism. For instance, no complaint should come from any one on account of your transportation facilities while the biggest troop movements in the history of the nation are being taken care of and it is needless to say that all will cooperate in the best of ways. The sense on the part of traveling and shipping facilities is necessary at this time. It will be only a matter of a few days when normal conditions will prevail.

They are having some time in these days. If all the effort put forth creating here, it would be for the benefit of the community and the better the Roseburg would be, possibly made some service in the time.

Beautiful spring weather, nothing unusual in itself, except as any old power will admit.

ACUTE SUFFERING IN GERMANY

HATRED FOR AMERICA

Recent Arrival From German Seaport City Gives Information Concerning Actual Conditions as They Now Exist.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(Correspondence to the Associated Press.) There has just arrived from a German seaport a German who has lived in Germany throughout the war, worked in German seaports, and passed for an active member of a German citizen, including not only the common people, but having occasional access to the councils of the high.

It is a sad condition to suffer in a country where the people are suffering from the effects of the war. The people are suffering from the effects of the war. The people are suffering from the effects of the war.

FAVORS ANNEXATION BY THE TEUTONS. AMSTERDAM, Nov. 12.—At a meeting of the new fatherland party in Munich yesterday, Admiral von Tirpitz, former German minister of marine, made a violent annexation speech. He said the question which Germany or England became the proprietor of Belgium would be the decisive issue of the war.

over if they are hated in all the world. Pan-Germantism, they are coming to feel, is likely to intensify the feeling against them, and thereby make their economic struggle in the future more difficult.

He then touched briefly on Austro-German relations and cautioned against any hope that Austria will aid away from her big ally, for, he explained, she is too dependent financially and militarily, to be able to shake loose, such as she might like to do so. The German military authorities see to it that German soldiers are accompanied with Austrian troops not only to spur them on in fighting but also to prevent their desertion.

Discontent in the naval and military branches is limited, at, by Von Caprivi. The men had, he said, dismounted guns and thrown them about, but assaulted officers and refused to obey orders, in the hope of compelling the German navy to bring about a peace of desperation in that way. The mutinous forces, however, had not been large or strong enough to accomplish much, and had been put down.

This spirit, he continued, extended to the army also, turned to a place occasionally by sectional prejudices and doubts. Thus he said he knew that mutinous battles had been fought between Bavarian and Prussian troops, and that certain troops on the east front had on one occasion mutinied and declared in favor of marching on Berlin rather than Petersburg. Naturally all news about these and similar matters had been carefully suppressed and leaked out only when the soldiers returned or wrote home, in the same way that sailors in Hamburg and Kiel spread the first reports of the mutinies aboard the ships.

The admiral added that it was a mistake to believe the submarine would prove sufficient protection against Great Britain as some effective counter weapon, was bound to be discovered. He declared that many more have Antwerp, that Antwerp must become the principal port of the north of the English and that Germany was in a position to settle the settlement of the Atlantic question.

Germany's struggle, he added, is a terrible battle against the all powerful tyrons of Anglo America.

"ROOT OF ALL EVIL" CAUSES SEPARATION

Chief of Police T. J. Williams was called to the south end of town about three o'clock yesterday afternoon to search for a man who it was alleged by his better half, absconded with the family "bank roll," amounting to something like $1800. When the search party in which he was joined by a greatly excited lady who implored the information that her husband, telling her that he was going to the city dumping ground in search of an old wheel for his wheelbarrow, had not returned and in her opinion this excuse was only a ruse to get away with the family savings.

The lady described the alleged deserter as best she could to the officers, and a search was immediately instituted, which led to the Alexander Park addition. Searching that neighborhood with a fine-tooth comb without results, the chief had almost given up the chase, when he spied an individual coming up the railroad track answering the description previously furnished, and calling the lady's attention to the fact, she immediately recognized her wandering spouse and it was with great difficulty that the officer restrained her from dashing after the man. In due time the husband encountered his prosecutors and upon being questioned by the officer in regard to the money alleged to be missing from the family depository, the old man readily admitted that he had taken possession of the funds. When asked what disposition was made of the money, the man replied that it was his own's business.

At the request of the lady in the case the officer accompanied the discredited couple to their residence where the weaker half of the marriage contract stayed only long enough to change to her Sunday attire, then immediately left the premises to seek protection of another roof.

Just what settlement was made between the two is not known, but it is thought that the story will have a happy ending, as is usual in most all similar cases.
