HOW GREAT BRITAIN AND CANADA TRAIN THE MEN WHO LEAD THEIR GREAT ARMIES AT THE FRONT

Now that the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission is starting the biggest drive for volunteers it has conducted since Brig. Gen. W. A. White started his campaign in the United States, there is a splendid opportunity for 200,000 Canadians and Britishers in this country to join their brave kinsmen in the British and Canadian armies. In one week recently over 800 men joined the colors—men who felt that it was not only a duty but a privilege to fight for this war's issues side by side with the soldiers of France, Italy, Belgium and the United States. In England there are a dozen camps where regulars and territor-als are trained as officers for the artillery, engineers, cavalry, infantry, tank and flying corps. Regulars are instructed at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, the West Point of Great Britain. Many of them are volunteers and they put in a strenuous year of work before they become leaders of men. The Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, is another great officers' training institution, and other camps are advantageously situated in different parts of Great Britain. There are a dozen similar camps in Canada and all the large colleges are hard at work turning out young officers. One of the principal centers of activity is the Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont. Canadians enlisted in the United States are trained in Canada and Britishers in Great Britain. These men start as privates, but any man in the army who shows his fitness may win a commission. Brig. Gen. W. A. White is the general officer commanding the mission, with headquarters in New York; Col. J. S. Dennis, second in command, is in charge of the Western Division in Chicago, and Major C. S. Manchester is the commanding officer of the Pacific Coast Division. The Eastern Division, headquarters in New York, has as senior officer in command, Lieut. Col. F. C. Jamieson.

Purchases Two Fine Sows.

Victor Miller, of Elkton, today purchased two thoroughbred Duroc Jersey sows from the Overland Orchards, at Wilbur, which were shipped to the Miller farm near Elkton. They were fine specimens and fully demonstrated the fact that the hog industry in this county is being brought up to a high standard.

THE NEW GAME.

One day last week a bunch of boys came down to play with me. Said one, "Let's take the dogs and go to see what we can see." And then we sauntered down the road across the railroad tracks, to where a pile of old boards lay—enough to build ten shacks.

Then we got busy right away and made a big long den. We piled it high with boards all round.

With room for nine or ten. Then up we climbed and jumped down in. And fixed us up some benches. And every one agreed that we pretended we were in trenches.

We measured off our "no man's land" and got some rocks for bombs. When suddenly there came a cry—"The enemy—he comes!" We poked our heads up from the trench.

But all we saw a comin' was a dark figure, bent and slow. Some aged man or woman. At least it looked like that at first. But as it nearer came, sir. We got so scared we didn't stop to ask the creature's name, for a mask it wore, a sword and gun. A flame burst from its eye, too. It didn't make a bit of noise. We whispered, "German spy, you—"

"Over the top" through "no man's land"

We started home to mother. And one big "soldier" was so scared he left his little brother away behind, and then the "spy" began to laugh and shout, "Ho." And soon I saw 'twas brother Jim. Had put us all to rout, O.

"I didn't mean to scare you so. Now come and talk with me. Camouflage is my little game. 'Tis lots of fun," said he. So now we're for it good and strong. And next time we'll be braver. Meanwhile we'll try to turn the fun and scare some other shaver. —Orpha Collins.

VOTERS ALLEGED TO BE "HOSS" TRADERS

To the Editor: This fine autumn weather that has been nestling in the lap of spring has developed an abnormal crop of mushroom candidates for the different jobs. Many are destined to encounter a killing frost that will forbid their early budding again. Glancing over the list I see many names. I can imagine them running out of their orbits to greet a prospective voter, each one swelled up with pride as he proudly announces his candidacy to his supposed receptive victim, airing his virtues and reminding those in hearing that the people could go further and fare worse than elect them. I am of the opinion in many cases that is just what the people will do. We are hoss traders. Trot out some of your dark ones! J. W. TOLLMAN.
