GERMAN WOMEN SLACKERS.

In a communication addressed "To the Women of the Upper Classes" in the Kölnische Zeitung, the writer brings out the importance of "complete mobilization of the energies of all women" during the war.

"Let no one interpose the objection that a person who in this, the fourth year of the war, has yet to gain a comprehension of the extremities in which our people are laboring, who still places personal well-being above concern for the common good, is irretrievably lost for a great object," says the writer. "Certainly, every German woman, the wealthy woman most of all, ought at the start to have comprehended her duty toward her country in this fearful war of starvation, as well as the divers aspects of the policy of 'holding out' and conducted herself accordingly. However, it is precisely in a mode of life which long-standing culture and inherited wealth have rendered luxurious that force of habit plays so important a role, and herein may well lie an explanation for the disastrous relation of her comforts by the woman of this type. With this attitude there must be merciless interference.

"Because the educated middle class is scarcely able longer to furnish the necessary reserve contingents, we must have recourse to the women of the upper strata of society. Their strength is to a greater or less degree unexhausted; they are relieved of domestic responsibilities by many servants. Thanks to their large financial resources they are, even without resorting to substitutes, immune from undernourishment. For the same reason they are in a position to restore their strength by travel, and because of their larger wardrobes to risk, rather than the women of the lower classes, using up their clothes in war work.

"Thus all considerations favor the enlistment of the services of those women who have hitherto lived at their ease (with the exception, of course, of those who are bound by the duties of motherhood)."

Along with the popular movement for salary increases where does the public official "get off" during these strenuous times, whose fixed wages were made when it cost half as much to live as it does today? As usual, though, a public official is supposed to accomplish many acrobatic stunts for the frisky taxpayer and it is evidently not asking too much of him to keep "patronically" on the job, even though he does so at a sacrifice—from the standpoint of the "down-trodden taxpayer."

Colonel Roosevelt may be mistaken in believing that 10,000,000 American soldiers will be necessary to end the war, but there is a satisfaction in knowing we can raise that number.

Perusal of the peace treaties imposed by Germany upon her weak neighbors leads to the suspicion that a highly efficient burglar looks them over to see that nothing gets by.

If our aviators have no planes of their own to fight in, they manage to do magnificent work in the borrowed plumage of the French bird-raft.

While the war is on just forget you ever ate white bread, and resolve to eat it entirely until our allies have a substantial supply.

Did you get your smoked glass properly focused on the sun?

Having failed to reach London with his long range guns, the Kaiser now tries a long range olive branch.

The Kaiser is volubly "jubilant over the Roumanian peace". Roumania restrains her joy.

And now we are all praying for a good rain—but the weather man holds a deaf ear.

Chasing the Kaiser back to Potsdam is the world's greatest outdoor sport.

Those marines are regular "go-devils"—when it comes to fighting.

Old Sol "winked" at the world today.

PROF. H. O. BENNETT PAID HIGH TRIBUTE

In the mention of the closing exercises at the afternoon assembly of the student body of the Roseburg high school yesterday, the account of the address given by George Hopkins president of the student body of the high school was unintentionally omitted.

In a short but neat speech, Mr. Hopkins paid as high a tribute to Principal H. Omer Bennett as has ever been paid to any principal of the high school. The speaker told of how in work of the student body Mr. Bennett was ever willing and ready to help, how he had sacrificed his own time, often times, meeting with the officers of the student body after night and devoting every energy to their cause. The president of the student body said that he believed he was voicing the sentiment of the entire student body in the tribute he was paying to Mr. Bennett, nor was he mistaken, for a cheer to the echo came from that body, at the conclusion of the speech.

SHOWER IS GIVEN TO PROSPECTIVE BRIDE

On June 6, 1918, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Weber, in Edenhower, was the scene of a very pleasant wedding shower in honor of Miss Nellie Cloake, who will leave Monday, June 10, with her maid of honor, Miss Lillie Melver, for Wapato, Wash., where she will be united in marriage, on June 12, to Mr. Max Myers, at the home of Mr. Ingalls, where Mr. Myers is employed.

The prospective bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cloake, of Edenhower. Mr. Myers was formerly of Roseburg, where his parents reside. Miss Nellie was the recipient of many elegant and useful presents. The young couple have the best wishes of their many friends in the vicinity where they have resided.

Late in the afternoon delicious refreshments were served and enjoyed by all. Those present were Mrs. Arthur Cloake, Mrs. Chas. Mohr, Mrs. John Travis, Mrs. John Ferguson, Mrs. James Sharp, Mrs. J. Jones, Mrs. Ed. Marks, Mrs. Helmbolt, Mrs. Chas. Matthews, Mrs. Alfred Cloake, Mrs. Davis and the Misses Anna Berks, Laura Davis, Pearl Jones, Lillie Melver, Nellie Cloake, and the hostess, Mrs. Geo. Weber. Success attend ye, happy pair; May fond affection ease your care; May harmony and love combine And olive branches crown the vine.

INFORMATION WAS INCORRECT.

H. S. French, of the French Transfer Co., has asked The News to make a correction in connection with the sale of the lot near where the new cannery is to be located in this city, wherein it was stated that his company had refused to admit of a sewer passing through the property, and on account of such refusal 18 local business men donated a sufficient sum to purchase the lot. Mr. French says the property was not a part of his holdings in this city, but was the individual property of his son, Vivian, and that he had no interest whatever in the transaction as far as the power was concerned.

CALL FOR SCHOOL WARRANTS.

Notice is hereby given that all school warrants of school district No. 116, Douglas County, Oregon, not including No. 80 endorsed not paid for want of funds, are this day called for payment by the undersigned, and all interest thereon will cease from the date of this notice. Dated this 29th day of May, 1918. F. G. BUELL, Clerk of School Dist. No. 116, Douglas County, Oregon.

MANY VIOLATIONS REPORTED.

O. B. Frank, manager of the local water and light company, informed The News today that there are numerous violations of the recent orders that went into effect regarding the days of irrigating in the city, and that patrons were not adhering to the rules as they should. In order that the company may govern its supply during the summer months and the special rates be maintained in reference to water for the gardens throughout the city it is absolutely necessary that all patrons use water for irrigating purposes only on those days specified in the orders issued, otherwise it will be necessary, Mr. Frank states, to eliminate the special rates now in effect.

WILL ISSUE PATRIOTIC SONG.

"Fighting for Freedom and You," a very clever patriotic song, with music by Prof. C. H. Arundel and words by Mrs. Arundel is now being published by a music house in Philadelphia, proof of the song having been received here today. It is the intention of the authors to place an order for a large number of copies and within the next few weeks the words and music will be placed on sale in this city.

WILL LEAVE TOMORROW.

Prof. C. A. Arehart and wife will leave tomorrow by automobile, for their home in Springfield. Prof. Arehart, who is principal of the Benson school, will take a summer course at the University of Oregon.

MICHELIN Twelve Tire Tests No. 5

Price YOU owe it to yourself before deciding on which tires to buy to compare the prices of various standard makes. You should, of course, also remember quality. For there are two distinct classes of tires—first, those that are made to sell at low prices; and second, those that are made with the ideal of high quality in mind. It stands to reason that it is better to buy a tire of the latter class if you can get it at the right price. Most motorists have a mistaken notion that all "quality" tires are high-priced. But fortunately this idea is not founded on fact. You will find that Michels are moderate in price, though they are recognized the world over as unsurpassed for durability.
