BUYING POWER OF THE DOLLAR. There was a time not so many months ago when a dollar went a long way. It would provide enough food to last a small family two days. But since our advent into the world's war, the buying power of the dollar has decreased immeasurably. There have been days when it would buy only a dozen of eggs. And with the diminishing power of the dollar the advance in wages has not been commensurate with the advance in prices.

This can mean but one thing. We must study thoroughly every conceivable expedient. In other words, weigh carefully every dollar. American people have long been criticized for their prodigal and thoughtless buying. They have speculated rather than invested, accepted rather than selected. In Europe before the war a common remark of merchants was, "Save it for the Americans; they will buy it." Careful, thoughtful buying, such as we must do if we are to win this war, calls for the buying of known quantities. These products in every field that have gained a reputation for dependability in service.

They are easily recognized. Their names are almost by-words in our household speech. Their names are constantly before us in the newspapers.

Such articles as Goodrich Tires, Royal Baking Powder, Standard Oil Co. products and other dependable goods, have lived up to our expectations or they wouldn't be where they are today. The resources of their manufacturers have been such as to guarantee constant or improved quality in service.

The American government has virtually advocated this course in its policy of standardization. It has concentrated on those articles, commodities, machines and weapons that have stood the test of long service. It has but one thought in mind, winning this war. And it is not going to dabble with unknown and uncertain quantities. Time and lives are too precious. Let us follow the government's example. Let us buy established, reliable brands. Such a resolve is patriotic and economical. It will make our dollar go further.

NOW ON A CASH BASIS.

In order to decrease the overhead expense, incident to our present system, so as to partially offset constantly increasing prices of labor and material, we have, after maturest consideration, deemed it advisable, and to the mutual interest of our customers and ourselves, to operate our parts and repair shop departments on a strictly cash basis.

This is in no way a reflection upon the credit of our various customers, but a method to keep prices down to even the present high level, and we sincerely bespeak your co-operation. We wish at this time to express our appreciation of the business with which you have favored us in the past, and to assure you of our earnest endeavor, under very trying labor conditions, to improve the service and efficiency of our organization.

J. O. NEWLAND.

PICKED THE DOCTOR'S BEST ONE Little Billie Whittier, aged 4, lives at Wooster, O. He has long felt the need of a baby in the family, says an exchange. So last week on his own hook, he went directly to what he had been taught was the source of the supply of the whole neighborhood, Dr. A. C. Smith. As usual, Dr. Smith wasn't in, but his twin babies were. They were sleeping peacefully and unguarded in their crib. Billie thought he was just in time, there were only two left, and the choice was rather limited, but after looking them over a few minutes, he decided to take a certain one. Carefully picking up this baby, Billy carried it home. About 5 minutes later, Mrs. Smith was observed on her front porch wringing her hands. About this time Mrs. Whittier ran over with the missing baby. Explanations and apologies were exchanged. Only Billie failed to understand. He couldn't see why Mr. Smith, a doctor, couldn't spare at least one baby, when he could order another for his own use at any time.
