He was engaged in hauling ammunition to the front lines, when the armistice was signed. Smith is at Engers, Germany and describes the last big drive in France. The men in his signal corps battalion, threw aside their pistols and taking rifles and ammunition from fallen soldiers, went into the fight with the infantry. He says, he had some "good shots" and also took a machine gunner prisoner. Both have been recently promoted to private 1st class.

LOCAL MINISTERS EXTEND SYMPATHY

The following message of condolence was signed yesterday by the Roseburg Ministerial Union extending to Rev. C. H. Hilton the sympathy of the Association, in his bereavement for the death of his mother, who passed away about a week ago. Inasmuch as the mother of our beloved Brother Hilton has passed to her reward:

We, the members of the Roseburg Ministerial Association hereby extend to him our heartfelt sympathy in what, in spite of all that our blessed faith may bring him in the way of consolation, must still be a sore bereavement.

We pray that the sustaining grace of our Lord and Savior may be with him, and bring him the peace that passeth understanding.

(Signed):

FREE LANCE COLUMN.

To the Editor:

Inasmuch as no reply to Mr. Newman's "On With the Dance", has appeared in your columns, I would like room for a few remarks. First—regarding the intimation that the Bible sanctions the common dance. At a very early period dancing was a part of the services of religion among the heathen—accompanied by music; then the Hebrews in common with the surrounding nations had their sacred dances performed on solemn occasions, commemorating some special token of divine favor; the performers usually being a band of females (Read Ex. 15-20 and I Sam. 18, 6). So it is easily seen that the character of the Hebrew dance was very different from the modern dance, both in motive and results, as women alone were the dancers; or if men danced, it was entirely apart from the women. To all close Bible students these points are clear: The Bible dance was a form of religious worship. It was performed by the sexes separate. Though I have asked numbers of both men and women, who were devotees of the dance, how much time or money they would give to join in a dance with their own sex only, have so far failed to find one, who expressed that desire. They admit that it takes two sexes to make the dance pleasurable or desirable. McClintock and Strong in their Cyclopedia never tell you that the "religious" dances had any similarity to the modern amusement. They were processions, in which all who took part, marched in time to Hymns which they sang, but the custom was very early laid aside, because it led to the adoption of the objectionable dances. Prohibitions of dancing as an amusement abound in the Church Fathers and in the councils. (Vol. 2, page 660). Cicero says, "No one dances unless he is either drunk or mad."

Those who refer to the Bible in justification of this very questionable modern amusement remind us of the efforts of the whisky advocate trying to prove the Bible sanctions alcoholic drink, because "Jesus made wine", but these fellows never tell you that the wine Jesus made was non-intoxicating, neither does the whisky advocate quote Prov. 20-1, or Prov. 23-29-32. (See these.) So the dancing master hardly ever quotes I Thes. 5-21-22, "Hold fast to that which is good, abstain from every appearance of Evil"; not applicable to his calling and profession.

My second point is: "The tendency of the dance is immoral, and nobody knows this fact better than a dancing master. I don't say, the dancer is always immoral, but the tendency of the dance is immoral and I give only a few of many facts. Some time ago the W. C. T. U. gave statistics, showing that of half a million of fallen women, 375,000 started with the dance." T. A. Faulkner, a converted dancing master (would they were all converted) filled with 200 girls, who were inmates of the brothel, and found that 163 attributed their fall to the dance. In his book "From the ball room to hell", this same dancing master tells us that the best place for those who go out to recruit for the house of assignation is the dancing school, and the second best place so he considered, is the common dance, and gives the plain reason why these are true, as well as the methods of these vampires.

Fenwick Read, once a missionary in the slums of London, was called to talk to a dying woman in a house of shame, and seeing so many inmates there, he asked: "How can you keep your house so filled, located in this so-called fashionable district?" Pointing to a dance hall across the street, the woman replied, "that is what does it!" Continuing she said, "none but select dances are held there, but after the young men have seen their ladies home they come here, as a result of other churches." Mr. Read also says: "I saw many girls once pure and innocent, who in their wealth and influence had the best of teachers, they fell until abandoned, ruined, lost; they led a life of revelry in haunts of infamy and shame." Further he says: "I saw many of them—the finished products of dance. He specializes a number of instances, where young lives were blighted by this so-called innocent amusement of modern times.

Third—The dance keeps people away from the Kingdom of God and a religious life. All church workers, especially pastors, understand this, and that is why they oppose it. In thirty years in pastorates of the M. E. Church I have been associated with many pastors and evangelists of other churches, and never yet have I met one such, who sanctioned the dance. These men are in a position to study and know its effect upon the church and the Kingdom of God. I am free to say, I have lost more people from the church through the dance than I ever lost by the nefarious liquor traffic, now tried, condemned, wearing the black cap on its way to the gallows and forsaken by all except its immediate relatives. Archbishop Spaulding is reputed to have said, that nineteen out of every twenty confessions from fallen women attributed their fall to the dance.

A Jesuit priest said: the reason we condemn the dance and say little about intemperance, it is because we believe the dance brings more to ruin than strong drink and we want to uproot the evil of the dance first, and he is not boasting the saloon either.

I do not say, that all who participate in this form of amusement intend to foster these evil tendencies, but I ask, if evil results grow out of it, and no good, except the dollars the dancing master is chasing, why patronize it?

If one of Uncle Sam's chief concerns is how to keep his brave soldiers from the association of fallen

INTRODUCE FISH AND GAME CODE

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 5.—A new fish and game code for Oregon has been introduced in the house by Dr. Earl C. McFarland, representative from Multnomah county. It makes many additions to the protected list of game birds and some slight changes in the open season dates. In general the measure is intended to tighten upon hunters' rights and afford more protection for birds and game.

PLAN BUILDING FOR UNIVERSITY

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 5.—The house committee on salaries has recommended that the salaries of supreme judges in Oregon be increased from $4,500 to $5,250. The sum originally requested was $6,000.

The ways and means committee tentatively voted to allow the University of Oregon $235,000, including $100,000 for a women's building. This latter sum is conditional on the same amount being raised by the university.
