Smoot Case Resumed

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Brigham Roberts, one of the seven first presidents of the Mormon church and who was elected to congress, but prevented from taking his seat, was the first witness this morning at the resumption of the Smoot inquiry before the senate committee.

Roberts said he had been married three times, the first time in 1877, the second in 1886 and the third in 1890.

By his second wife, Celia Dibble, who was his first plural wife, he had eight children, some of whom have been born since his election to congress in 1896.

He was married to his third wife by Daniel H. Wells, counsellor to the apostles of Salt Lake. There were no witnesses nor was either of his previous wives present. Wells made no objection to his marriage to Mrs. Shipp, his third wife, neither had his other two wives. However they did not know of it at the time, and did not learn of it for two or three years.

Roberts said he concealed his marriage chiefly for the purpose of relieving them of embarrassment.

"Of course we know the marriage was illegal," he said. This third wife was formerly the wife of Dr. Shipp. He admitted that Wells knew that he had a first wife and no action was taken by the authorities of the church against him for marrying Roberts to his third wife.

When asked what reasons led him to contract this marriage when he knew it was against the law, he said from boy-hood he had been taught the rightfulness of plural marriages. He believed it the law of God and preferred to accept it to man's law. He believed polygamy was and is a divine institution and admitted living in polygamous cohabitation "in defiance of both the laws of God and man," as the cross examination worded it.

When the present hearing is concluded the committee will meet at Salt Lake on July 28.
