Oregonian: L. A. Greenley has returned from a trip to his home properties in Douglas County, and he will return there next Saturday to direct the continuance of the work. Yesterday an additional crew was put to work, and he expects to begin the manufacture of lime for commercial purposes within the next few weeks. He says that work is active in the Brasby Butte country in the development of copper properties. Men are sinking shafts and a very good grade of chalcopryite ore has been uncovered. Just how extensive this is has not yet been learned, but the work now being done will determine this.
