Prof. B. F. Wagner, Gale Sanders and Frank Berry had an exciting encounter with a bull last Saturday evening while returning home on their bicycles from a fishing trip up Deer Creek. They were attacked by the animal as they were riding through a field. The bull first charged on young Sanders, striking his wheel and upsetting him and Prof. Wagner immediately dismounted and went to the aid of Sanders. He faced the bull and received the second charge of the animal by holding his wheel in front of him. The animal withdrew and then charged upon young Berry who was making for the fence. Berry reached the fence first and got out of harm's way. In the meantime, Wagner and Sanders took advantage of the opportunity to make their escape. The damage resulting from the conflict consisted of the loss of Berry's camera and a broken spoke in Wagner's wheel.
