FAMILY WASHING

PER LB. 5c PER LB.

A Long Story Briefly Told

It is true that for 5 cents per pound the Roseburg Steam Laundry will wash, starch and deliver ready for ironing, all family washing. The term family washing embraces such articles as underwear, handkerchiefs, hose, sheets, pillow cases, napkins, towels, etc., while all flat pieces are ironed without extra charge. This means more hours of leisure for the overworked housewife. Talk it over with "hubby"

 A dispatch from the Portland Telegram to its local agent, C. B. Cannon, Monday, announced that Misses Flossie Shambrook and Daisy Maiden, of this city, were respectively first and second in this district (5) in the Telegram's great $5,000 contest. Miss Shambrook had her choice of a trip, with all expenses paid, to any of the following four places: Yellowstone National Park, Yosemite Valley, in California; Coronado Beach, the great seaside summer resort in California, and the Catalina Island, off the coast of that state. She accepted the trip to the Yellowstone Park. Miss Maiden will receive a six-months course in the Behrke-Walker Business College in Portland. Both of these young ladies have many friends in this city who will be much pleased to learn of their victory. The house and lot in the city of Portland, valued at $2,500, goes to Mrs. T. P. Randall, of Oregon City, for receiving the most votes of any candidate in Oregon or Washington.

 Hooligan Coming.
 The approaching engagement of Arthur J. Aylesworth's brilliant farce, "Hooligan's Troubles," is attracting more than ordinary interest. Expert dramatic critics declare that this farce comedy is the brightest of the season's offerings, because of its grotesque situations and ludicrous climaxes. A good laugh in these cynical and calloused days is a feat worthy of note. The ability to present brightness and mirth, banishing worldly cares, is not easy, but "Hooligan" does it thoroughly and not an opportunity for a laugh is allowed to escape. "Hooligan's Troubles" will be at Roseburg Theatre on Tuesday, Nov. 21.

THE POTATO CROP.

With a Marked Shortage Good Prices May Be Expected.
 The potato crop of 1905 is bound to fall millions of bushels short of that of last year, according to Orange Judd Farmer, which is authority for the following: So universally grown are potatoes that, of course, the tonnage will be enormous. It always is. But so far as what is regarded as the commercial supply is concerned, made up chiefly from such great states as Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Ohio, New York and northern New England, this must prove far short of a full one. Buyers are at a loss to know what to do. Measurable producers should see to it that they secure all the market will warrant.
 The west is in less satisfactory shape than the east so far as the main potato crop is concerned. Such producers as New York and northern New England show up fairly well, although there are shortages there too. The most disappointment is in the northwest, centering in Wisconsin, one of the leading potato growing states. Our advice point to a very general development of serious blight and rot in the west and northwest during September. In important sections this has been perhaps accentuated by unfavorable condition of the plant prior to that.
 This matter of blight has been prevalent throughout the west, all the way from Michigan to Colorado. Michigan has suffered less than Wisconsin, and the state as a whole will turn off a good many potatoes, although a large number of fields may be scarcely worth the digging. Latest advices from Colorado indicate 60 to 75 per cent of a full crop, some seeds, tubers rather smaller in size than usual, digging beginning in earnest in early October. Only parts of Minnesota escaped blight, but the state already shows much damage by rot. This is true also in Iowa and west of the Missouri river to some extent.
 In the middle and eastern states there is some complaint of blight, here and there quite serious, but the potato crop as a whole appears better than in the west. Ohio and Pennsylvania will have a fair crop of potatoes, but many of the tubers under size. While the west was burdened with excessive moisture, portions of the east suffered protracted drought. Northern New England will have a medium to good crop, but somewhat irregular; some reports of blight and rot in Aroostook county, Me., always an important producer, the crop is generally good, yet not a full one, potatoes attractive in size and quality.

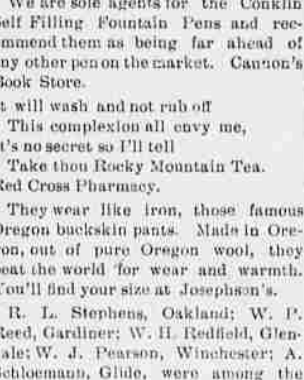

Unbalsamed Honey Sections.

There are two methods of dealing with sections more or less unfinished—namely, feeding back extracted honey to secure their completion and selling them at a reasonable price in the local market. For most beekeepers the latter course is probably preferable. All sections not three-fourths completed should be emptied by setting supers of them over colonies lacking in stores, and then the dry, clean combs kept over for use the next spring.

Fall Wheat in Upper Michigan.

Fall wheat has been grown with good success on clay soils in practically all parts of the upper peninsula of Michigan in the earlier work at the experiment station, Dawson's Golden Chaff rather leading the other varieties in hardiness and abundance of yield. The late frost blackens but does not kill the wheat. In 1903 plant lice seriously injured the crop and shortened the yield.

FOR RENT.—Twenty acres of grain land in Edenbower; for cash or part of crop. Enquire of H. E. Huntington, Roseburg, Oregon. Phone 493.
