

Old Coughs

Keep in close touch with your family doctor. No medicine was ever made that could take its place. Trust him at all times.

Old coughs, desperate coughs, rasping coughs, extremely serious coughs, coughs that shake the whole body. It takes a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine, to master such coughs. A great many people rely on Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Liked Native State Better.

Representative Alien of Maine, Uncle Amos, as many of his friends know him, has resided in Washington longer than any of his Pine Tree State colleagues. He was many years a government clerk and then secretary to Speaker Hoed and likes the town. But he is the most loyal Maine man of all the local Maine colony. When the youngsters get homesick, they go around for a chat with Uncle Amos, who is sure to cheer them up. It makes a Maine man feel good even to hear him tell his favorite story, which is a comparison on Paradise.

"One recently admitted there," says the First Maine district representative, "saw two men in shackles. Handcuffs and a ball and chain were affixed to each of them. The newcomer marveled at that in such a happy land and inquired the reason."

"He was informed that they belonged to an unusual human species. They had come from a peculiar little corner of a big country, which corner was known as 'Maine,' and had to be kept under restraint so that they would not return there."—Washington Cor. Boston Herald.

ALFALFA LANDS.

Old Garden and Tobacco Soils Produce the Highest Yields.

It has been announced by Dr. C. G. Hopkins of the Illinois experiment station that soil from about the roots of sweet clover plants will serve to inoculate alfalfa also, and a pot test at the Ohio experiment station seems to support this statement.

In preparing alfalfa or sweet clover soil for use it should not be dried in the sunlight, as the direct rays may kill many of the bacteria. For this reason also care should be taken in broadcasting the soil not to allow it to remain in the sunlight without harrowing.

The Preceding Crop.

Alfalfa has followed almost the whole list of other crops, but those which have most frequently preceded alfalfa are corn, clover, wheat, potatoes, oats and timothy, arranged according to the number of times they have been represented, corn leading in a large majority of cases. We find that the clover and potato lands have led with about an equal yield and are followed in the order of their yields by corn, timothy and oats. The very highest yields have come from old garden and tobacco soils. The chief point of interest in these facts is the evident advantage which comes from the richer soils.

Clover land usually contains a comparatively large quantity of organic matter in the form of manure, roots and stubble. The potato land has usually been well manured and fertilized, and the garden is always the richest spot on the farm. The tobacco land sowed to alfalfa was naturally fertile and in addition of course had been fertilized and given good cultivation.

Amount of Seed to Use.

From seven and a half to twenty pounds of seed are reported by growers to have been used on one acre of land. A twenty acre field which was sowed with only seven and a half pounds of seed per acre is said to have given an average yield of four and a half tons of hay per acre, and various fields having been sown with from ten to twelve pounds of seed per acre are said to have given yields ranging from three to four and a half tons per acre.

On the other hand, no complaints have been reported from farmers where the larger amounts of seed were used, and a considerable number who in the past have used from fifteen to twenty pounds of seed state that they prefer using more seed.

Various writers and speakers have correctly shown that twenty and even fifteen and twelve pounds of seed is an extravagant waste of seed when even a reasonable per cent of the seed-planting. It seems in most cases where heavier seedings has been considered an advantage that the main object was to combat weeds or, in other words, to make the extra amount of seed serve the purpose of a nurse crop.

Alfalfa seed of course is rather expensive to be used for the production of a nurse crop, but it is quite probable that it is as good as or better than some of the regular crops used for nurse. As will be seen in that which follows, however, we prefer to combat weeds with clean culture.

Under Average Conditions.

The amount of seed that will be required will depend upon the perfection of the seed bed, the kind of soil and the condition of the weather at time of sowing. The more perfectly the seed bed is supplied with food and moisture and cleared of weed seed the less seed will be required. Sandy soils will usually demand a little more seed than the finer grained soils. In seasons when the weather is especially unfavorable (exceptionally cold, wet or dry) more seed should be sown also. Under average conditions as now found on the farm from fifteen to twenty pounds of seed is at least a safe amount to use. As the importance of a weed free seed bed becomes better appreciated and the land becomes more generally inoculated this amount can likely be reduced.

Thousand Dollar's Worth of Good.

"I have been afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for years, passing gravel and stones with excruciating pain," says A. H. Thurnes, a well known coal operator of Buffalo, O. "I got no relief from medicine until I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure, then the result was surprising. A few doses started the brick-dust-like substance and now I have no pain across my kidneys and I feel like a new man. It has done me $1000 worth of good." Foley's Kidney Cure will cure every form of kidney or bladder disease.

The prospects of the prune growers look bright ahead. It looks as if they were going to have a record-breaking crop, and prices promise to be very satisfactory. Several growers have already been offered 4-4-4 cents for their 30s-35s with a 1/2 cent drop on each subsequent lower grade.

J. W. Weaver, of Missouri Bottom, tells us that his prune crop gives such promise of being a record-breaker that he has decided to build another prune dryer similar to the one he had constructed last season.

S. H. Knight and W. V. Harst returned to Josephine county Wednesday evening to resume their prospecting work on lower Rogue river. They have located some promising claims and expect to develop some paying ledges.

Dr. C. E. Rague is in Myrtle Creek this week straightening up his affairs and will probably dispose of all his property in this section and locate permanently in Portland.

The strawberry season is about over for the Myrtle Creek section. The crop fell far short of what it was last year, and while the price was not so favorable this season as it was at the opening of the market last year, it has held up better and the growers have realized a snug sum for their crop. The Myrtle Creek country continues to demonstrate to the world at large that it is the early berry, banner section of the state.

Ted Dyer was seriously hurt last Friday by being knocked off a spirited horse which he was riding. The animal got beyond his control and in trying to prevent it from running away his head was struck against a post rendering him unconscious for some time. soon revived. He will soon be all right again.

Edwin Weaver, the Missouri Bottom fruit grower, tells us that he has decided to sell his entire land holdings, amounting in all to about 2500 acres, much of which is the very best of river bottom land. He has placed the entire tract on the market. This is a very commendable move on the part of Mr. Weaver. It means the establishing of many new homes in this vicinity and opens an opportunity for the land-hungry man to get a home at a reasonable figure in one of the best sections of the state.

Myrtle Creek is to have a new hotel. F. H. Miles, who has had charge of the Central hotel for the past few months, will be manager of the new hotel. Work on the building will begin soon. The structure will be of brick, two stories in height with thirty rooms and all other accommodations and conveniences usually found in a first-class hotel. The location of the new building, the Kramer lot, adjoining the site of the Overland hotel ruins, is one of the best in town.
